GIRL AND MAN SHE SAYS BETRAYED HER

IRENE SHEAR AND LEO KAPLIN

Kaplin was in court today on charges brought by the young woman. The latter claims he brought her here from Syracuse with the promise of marrying her and then failed to keep his word.

Charging she was brought to Boston by a man who promised to marry her but, instead, deserted her, Irene Shear, twenty-two, a Syracuse girl, told a pitiful story to Judge Parmenter in the Municipal Court today.

The defendant was Leo Kaplin of No. 10 Hancock street, West End.

Miss Shear said she met Kaplin in Syracuse five months ago and he asked her to marry him. She agreed, she said, and they came to Boston.

THRILLING RESCUE BY FIREMEN

Crowd Spellbound as Laddermen Save a Steeplejack From 100-Foot Stack

Samuel P. Ware, a Boston steeplejack, was rescued from death inside a 100-foot smokestack today by firemen of the Woburn department.

The rescue was witnessed by hundreds of spectators.

Ware and an assistant, George McConn., also of Boston, were repairing the inside of the smokestack of the Woburn Decreasing Company, at Bedford street, Woburn. McConn was on the top, and Ware had lowered himself ten feet into the stack. The rope he used had a pulley arrangement which could be operated only by himself.

OVERCOME BY FUMES.

He had been at work only a short while when McConn heard him call for help.

The gas fumes had overcome him. Looking down McConn saw him hanging limply. It was impossible for McConn to do anything. If he hauled at the rope which held Ware, the arrangement of the pulley was such that it would send Ware ninety feet to the glowing furnace below.

The gas fumes continued rising. McConn yelled and succeeded in attracting attention of pedestrians on the street below and they summoned the firemen.

CROWD SPELLBOUND.

A crowd collected. While they watched, spellbound, Lieutenant Daniel Kerrigan and several of his men were hoisted to the top of the Springfield, O., Nov. 6.—Pinned beneath his burning automobile, W. H. Smith of Zanesville fired a revolver and sounded the horn in an effort to attract attention.

He was burned to death before anyone could extricate him. The automobile skidded and turned turtle into a ditch.

MANY POLICE AT KING FUNERAL

Police Commissioner Wilson and practically every police officer who could get away from duty today attended the funeral of Captain Patrick F. King, drillmaster of the Boston police force.

Services were held at the Church of the Sacred Heart in Roslindale. The celebrant was the Rev. Henry C. Reardon. The Rev. Father John Cummins was the deacon and the Rev. Father Eugene Twomey the sub-deacon.

There was a police escort of forty-eight patrolmen.

JAIL AUTOIST IN COURT ON 5 CHARGES

Angelo Tredello of No. 5 King street, Cambridge, was arraigned today in East Cambridge District Court, charged with violating several traffic laws.

He was fined $5 for refusing to stop on signal from a traffic officer. A charge of not having head and tail lights lit was placed on file. He was fined $5 for speeding; $5 for driving without a license and was sentenced to three months for driving while under the influence of liquor.

ELECTION OF FITZ FORECAST,

Many Republicans Concede Defeat of Their Candidates Tomorrow

An irresistible wave which will sweep not only John F. Fitzgerald but probably all the other Democratic candidates into office is rolling through Boston and Massachusetts today.

The size of it can't be measured. It has the Republicans worried. Some already concede defeat. The Boston Herald today pleaded with Republicans to stop it. The Herald conceded Fitzgerald at least 400,000 votes.

Fitzgerald said it is a concession of victory.

BACKED BY VETERANS.

The wave straws are in the air. A straw poll in a Charlestown car barn gave Fitzgerald 37, Cox 3. At the B. A. A., ordinarily conservative, Fitzgerald got more votes than Cox.

A poll on the morning train from Cohasset and the Cape gave Fitzgerald practically an unanimous vote, even among Republicans. Haverhill says the mill workers, most of them Republican protectionists, will vote for Fitzgerald and Colonel

DEMOCRATIC WAVE SWEEPS STATE; FITZGERALD SEEMS CERTAIN

LEADERS OF G. O. P. WORRIED, MANY CONCEDE DEFEAT

William A. Gaston. A test of sentiment at Thompson's Spa was nearly all Fitzgerald. The telephone girls cheered "Hooray for John F."

The disabled veterans at the United States Hospital in Groton called a special meeting. There were 75 per cent. present. They voted unanimously to indorse Fitzgerald and Gaston. Although disabled, all the Boston men have made arrangements to come to the city tomorrow.

Those who come from other cities and towns are sending their "absent" ballots. All are marked Democratic.

New Bedford says not only will the Democrats sweep that section, but Judge Doran will doubtlessly be elected to Congress. English and French mill workers from Lawrence say they are for Fitzgerald. Light wines and beers, also his attack on the Governor's failure to stop the strike, have rested well with them.

The East Boston Improvement Organization, non-partisan, is unanimously for Fitzgerald. The Berkshire hill towns send the report that "Tom" Cassidy may beat Congressman Treadway.

Governor Cox is reported to have said: "If Boston doesn't give Fitzgerald 60,000, I will win."

Speaker Young of the House privately confesses he is "up in the air." Republican rally arrangers are saying: "O, why didn't we do this?" or "why didn't we do that?"

Ben Gibby, who was Governor Foss' monitor, said: "It is either very close or a Democratic landslide."

ODDS ARE SHIFTING.

Betting was 10 to 3 last Saturday. It has gone up to 7 to 10, with "seven" money plentifully in evidence.

What's the cause of all this Fitzgerald talk in the air? Fitzgerald said in Faneuil Hall and the Tremont Theatre rallies this noon:

"The people want a change. It's not a fight between Fitzgerald and Cox. The contest is not between Democrats and Republicans. It is between the people and that selfish group which is behind the party in power. It is the highest cost of living in the country, wrecked banks, wrecked street railways, broken-down railroads, the highest cost of gas, electricity and street car fares in the country."

Press reports from Ohio say Senator Pomerene will beat President Harding's own candidates by at least 300,000. Republicans concede Governor Edwards' election in New Jersey. New York Democrats claim the State for "Al" Smith by 500,000. Indiana reports say while Beveridge was good enough to beat the Republican Old Guard, he is still a Republican and must go down in this protest against the administration.

Heartened by all the favorable reports which have come to him, Fitzgerald went whirlwinding through Boston today. He started six weeks ago on the proverbial shoestring. No one said he could win. But he fought like a lion. Never was a campaign like his waged in this State.

He carried his fight into every city and town in the State. He visited Republican haunts which haven't seen a Democratic candidate since the Civil War. He preached the gospel of democracy with a small "d." He told them he was proud of his State, he was full of initiative and he put the old Commonwealth back on the map again. The eighty-six-year-old Republicans nodding their heads gravely, said, "I guess the young man's right. Let's give him a chance."

LIVELY CAMPAIGN.

So the tide has come rolling into Boston. If Western Massachusetts Republicans and Cape Cod Republicans like Fitzgerald well enough to vote for him, what about Boston? Is everybody going through?

Fitz is their neighbor. He has been through hard fights. He has made his enemies. He has taken his blows and given hard ones in return. But he's always been out there fighting. He's been at the beck and call of even the humblest candidate for the House.

When all the others have run away, Fitzgerald has been out there doing the fighting for the little fellow. He has always been ready to shake hands with the vanquished. The victor always gets his wishes for good luck.

The Governor doubts if Boston will stand up. Republican are saying, "Watch them cut Fitz." The little general, himself, has made no comment, but he has gone out fighting on the issues, taking a stand on every one of them, avoiding none. Boston has always liked a game fighter. It has always been with the under-dog fighter. If it stands by Fitzgerald, everyone says "there's nothing to it."

SIGNS OF VICTORY.

Fitzgerald's manner of campaigning has also helped him. Whil vigorous, he has been pleasant, gentlemanly and courteous. In his speeches he has, of course, made a great many references to Governor Cox. He made one mistake and the Governor nailed him, calling him a "falsifier."

Fitzgerald took the attack manfully, wrote the Governor a courteous letter of apology and then banged away at him again. "You've answered one detail," he said, "now answer these." And he hurled seven new charges of inefficiency against Cox with the fourteen he had already made.

Fitzgerald landed in his headquarters at 3 o'clock the morning after Governor Cox had attacked his record at Dayton sixteen years ago. Fitzgerald was tired. His eyes were drooping. "What did he say about me?" he asked. He was told. "Get Faneuil Hall this noon," he said. "I'll reply to him. One or the other is going overboard. It won't be me."

Fitzgerald's courage and popularity, added to the sweep which everyone says is here, are expected to take him over the top with the greatest victory ever won in this State.

Sails to Plant Flag of Suffrage on Top of Mount

New York, Nov. 6.—Miss Annie Peck, mountain climber and suffrage worker, sailed on the Van Dyck for Brasil to keep a promise made ten years ago. At that time Miss Peck announced that when suffrage became universal in the United States she would plant the suffrage flag on Mount Corcovado, in Brazil.

Miss Peck is making the trip for that purpose.

FITZ PREDICTS VICTORY BY 60,000

Governor Cox, Senator Lodge and the Republican administration were denounced, and a sweeping victory for the Democratic candidates predicted, at an eleventh hour rally in Faneuil Hall today.

John F. Fitzgerald, candidate for Governor; Colonel William A. Gaston, U. S. Senatorial candidate; and Mayor James M. Curley, addressed an enthusiastic audience, and predicted a majority for the Democratic ticket of at least 60,000.

Other speakers, all of whom urged that the entire Democratic ticket be elected, were ex - Congressman Michael J. Phelan, Representative John W. McCormick, John F. Doherty, candidate for Lieutenant-Governor, Mrs. Alice E. Cram, candidate for State auditor, and John B. Swift, candidate for attorney-general.

FITZ SEES VICTORY

Ex-Mayor Fitzgerald said, in part:

"Throughout the State everyone has asked: 'What is Boston going to do?' I say there will be 150,000 to 190,000 votes cast and the entire Democratic ticket will receive not less than 60,000 plurality.

"Governor Cox attempted to reply Saturday night to the charges I made against his record. Every vote I quoted Saturday noon cast by him. The only thing he can say for himself is that he reduced taxes $2,000,000. Owing to an error in the auditor's office that should have read $2,000,000 more rather than $2,000,000 less.

"The Republicans themselves admit they have the most incompetent official in the auditor's office.

RAPS COX'S BACKERS.

"Cox has been the creature of the interests. Who are his most intimate friends? Charles Innes, Everyone knows his business. Robert J. Bottomley. His brother, Guy Cox for whom, as Speaker, he appointed men on the insurance commission who were employed by the insurance companies.

"Guy Currier, known nationally as a lobbyist, and William M. Butler, owner of the Butler mills at New Bedford, who warned Cox not to go into Lawrence during the strike.

"It is because of those men that Massachusetts is disgraced before the country as having the highest cost of living. Even in the worst days of Pennoism in Pennsylvania and Cannonism in Illinois they were never so bold as they are at the State House.

"Not content with that they went into the savings banks and robbed the people of millions. And the leaders were three active Republican politicians, one of whom was put in the highest position outside the Governor."

HOME ROBBED OF SAFE

HOW DORCHESTER THIEVES WORKED

The home of Max Cohen (inset) at No. 85 Ridgewood street, Dorchester, was invaded by five men, who sent Simon Cohen (inset) eleven years old, away on a pretext and then moved out the safe, which they took away and looted.

LOMASNEY FOR FITZ; SCORES PELLETIER

"John F. Fitzgerald made a good Mayor of Boston, and he will make one of the best Governors Massachusetts has ever honored with office."

This was the comment of Martin M. Lomasney, Mahatma of Ward 5, at his annual "Sunday-before" meeting of the Hendricks Club on Green street.

"We are not fighting for a stranger when we fight for Fitz," he declared. "He has always been our friend and we his. We've had our disagreements, perhaps, years ago, but he's learned a lot since then and he knows Martin was right.

FOUGHT FOR CHILDREN.

"In the Senate he fought for the eight-hour day for women and children, for free text-books and evening schools, and for the repeal of the infamous fifty-eight-hour law. When in Congress he led the fight against the anti-immigration bill, which would have shut out as future citizens the Jews, Italians, Poles and Greeks."

"As Mayor of Boston he built the first municipal consumptives' hospital ever constructed, he increased city employes' pay, signed the first laborers' pension bill, toured the West and South and even Europe and South Africa, booming 'Bigger, Better, and Busier Boston.'

EXCEPTS PELLETIER.

"That's our man, and he's worthy launched into a bitter attack on the of support. Support the rest of the regular Democratic candidates, too, except Pelletier," he continued.

Here, livid with anger, Lomasney Democratic nominee for district attorney.

"Vote for O'Brien, he's our man," he declared. "We never were with Pelletier. When he was running for Governor I put Foss in the field against him. Don't vote for him. He extorted money from people to enrich himself.

"He's the worst sort of a man. He used his race and religion to conceal his infamy. Would you cast aside the decision of the learned justices of the Supreme Court for such a man. - Vote for O'Brien and cast this footer aside."

The Lomasney candidates, Representatives and Senator spoke, as did District Attorney O'Brien, in behalf of their own candidacies. Frank Whelton addressed the gathering on behalf of William A. Gaston, Democratic nominee for United States Senator, and Howard Ruby in behalf of Fitzgerald.

Schooner and Rum Seized Off Rhode Island

brought her to the State Pier here on charges that it had aboard 140 cases of liquors which went out of here last Saturday when the British schooner Marina was allowed to go.

The Marina was seized August 12 off Block Island with 775 cases of liquor aboard. The captain and others were charged here with illegal transportation, but were released on their assertions they were not bound for an American port but were blown off their course by a storm and were seeking temporary harbor on account of a leak.

LIQUOR RETURNED.

The government agents were required to return all the liquors seized from the Marina, which triumphantly sailed away.

But the Federal forces were still suspicious of the Marina. They say a fleet of schooners had ocean dates with the vessel to take off the "wet" cargo, and that the Pandora 2d was in the plan.

When the Pandora 2d came into Greenwich today the government forces were in wait. Director Sheldon says they found 140 cases on the Pandora 2d, and that these were part of the original Marina cargo, even bearing the government labels which were plastered on when the Marina was seized.

SEEK OTHER VESSELS.

The Federal agents assert, too, that they know just what was paid for the stuff on the Pandora 2d, giving the prices quoted above.

Watch is now being kept for other vessels, the agents say, which are suspected of having met the Marina to take off the rest of the 775 cases.

Evarista Larrivee, said by Federal agents to be owner of the Pandora 2nd, was arrested when the schooner arrived here. He denied ownership. He said he was merely a guest on board the schooner.

Director Sheldon has telegraphed Washington, asking that a naval vessel be sent here to search for the Marina; also for smaller boats suspected to running rum from her.

SEND 1,600,000 BALLOTS OUT

More than 1,600,000 ballots have been sent out for use at the State election tomorrow.

The law provides the Secretary of State shall provide 40 ballots for every 50 registered voters. The total vote in the last State election, 1920, was 1,029,135.

FIVE ROBBERS SEIZE SAFE IN HOME

Robbers went to the home of Max Cohen at No. 85 Ridgewood street, Dorchester, sent the only occupant of the house on an errand and then proceeded to walk away with a 400-pound safe.

In the safe was a diamond ring, a gold wrist watch with the letters "D. C." on the case, and $150 in bills. The only other valuable missing is a $1,000 life insurance policy.

Eleven-year-old Simon Cohen was alone in the house when five men appeared at the door. They asked if his mother was at home. When they were informed that she was out the leader of the gang told the lad they would wait.

The men made themselves comfortable and then asked Simon to go out and buy a newspaper. He went. When he returned the safe was gone and the furniture had been overturned and moved about.

Simon told his parents about the robbery when they came home and they in turn notified the police of the Field's Corner Station.

The safe was in the bedroom of the home. The building is a three-tenement affair. The Cohen family lived on the first floor. The safe had been rolled across the room, with a bedspread covering it, and taken down the stairs to a waiting automobile.

The safe was later found in a vacant lot on Ballou avenue, near Mascot street, in Dorchester.

90 ENTOMBED IN PENN MINE

Reilly mine of the Raleigh Coal Company here at 7:30 this morning, entombed between ninety and ninety-five miners who had gone to their work scarcely half an hour before.

Superintendent O. J. Flannigan at once organized a rescue party from employes in the vicinity and entered the mine.

The first rescue party to enter the mine after the explosion found three bodies and expressed fear that some, if not all, of the other ninety men entombed were dead.

The first bodies removed from the shaft were identified as Thomas Logue and Joseph Fritz.

Shortly after these bodies were removed, two living miners, fearfully burned, were brought up and rushed to a hospital. The men were unconscious and their recovery is regarded as doubtful.

Owing to the volume of gas in the mine, the rescuers worker in relays and replacements were necessary at brief intervals.

A second rescue party composed of volunteers chosen from hundreds of men who had gathered at the shaft, went into the mine.

Silent groups of weeping women and children huddled together close to the mouth of the shaft, mutely awaiting a gleam of hope. A steady rain was falling, but the women, many of them bareheaded, paid little attention to the weather.

It was said by mine authorities that one of the main entries was blocked by debris about 500 feet from the bottom of the shaft.

PELLETIER ASKS VOTES AGAINST REFERENDUMS

"My last pre-election word to the people of Suffolk County through the Boston American, is a final warning to remember to vote 'No' on Referendum No. 8. That done, another people's victory will be recorded in Massachusetts," declared Joseph C. Pelletier, Democratic nominee for District Attorney.

"Let none of my friends be misled by the propaganda that I will not be allowed to sit," he said. "I am competently advised by counsel that this is not so, and that if elected I can sit. I accept their opinion as positive in view of the fact that no one with any legal ability maintains that I cannot.

"There is no law saying that a judge, or an attorney-general or any other officer shall be a lawyer. This proposed law would take constitutional rights from the people—rights which allow them to choose their officials from any profession, from any class without any specification that to hold office one must be a member of the bar."

Curley Flays Lodge; Calls Him "Bloodless"

Mayor James M. Curley, speaking at the Tremont Theatre today declared the defeat of Senator Henry Cabot Lodge is a public duty.

"Those who know him best distrust him most and like him least," said the Mayor. "Let us have a human being in the Senate, a man with human sympathies, red blood, kindly emotions and the instincts of an American democrat. Lodge lacks all these. Elect a man who thinks of all Massachusetts when he acts and not only of his special set and his host of corrupt partisans and tax-eaters.

"President-Emeritus Eliot of Harvard, who has known Mr. Lodge intimately all his life, who has watched his activities, heard his utterances and read his deliverances, denounces him as a menace to Massachusetts and declares he will vote for Prohibition candidate Nicholls.

"The essential danger of Lodge lies in his chilly, bloodless outlook on America, his barely concealed contempt for democracy, his alien point of view, his reactionary instincts.

"He distrusts the people. He voted against popular elections of Senators, woman suffrage and extension of parcel-post system. His policies, he said in his memoirs, were based on sympathy with the British Empire, the conservative forces in it. He favored until political expediency in these election days led him to deny it."

Fitz Predicts Sweep in Today's Speeches

John F. Fitzgerald, Democratic candidate for Governor, speaking at Faneuil Hall and Tremont Theatre, this noon, said in part:

"Indications all over the country point to a great Democratic sweep. Democratic victories in New Jersey, Ohio, New York and Indiana all the way from 100,000 to 500,000 are now being conceded by even the most ardent Republican supporter.

"The progressive forces in Massachusetts are going to join, as the people of all the other States are joining, in returning to a government by and for the people and not one for a favored few.

"This contest is not one between Fitzgerald and Lodge, neither is it one between the Democratic Party and the Republican Party. It is a contest between the people and those selfish interests, few but powerful, who are working through the Republican Party."

The spectacle of wrecked banks, ruined street railways, the highest cost of living, is before every citizen of this Commonwealth. Governor Cox, who represents the worst story years of Old Guard Republican monarchy, is the symbol of the few who have brought about these conditions. He is the apostle of apathy.

It was precarious work. A false step would have meant certain death.

HOLD YOUTH ON GIRL'S STORY

Then, it is alleged, Kaplin ignored his promise to wed, and turned the girl out. Eventually she became ill, went to the hospital and underwent an operation.

As a result of the operation doctors ordered the girl to take a complete rest for a year. The girl said Kaplin again took a hand in her affairs at that time and an argument followed. Neighbors called in the police. The girl's story was investigated and Kaplin's arrest followed.

A continuance of a week was asked. Meanwhile the police will try to secure a complaint against

TRAGEDY FOLLOWS BUSINESS LOSSES

Amesbury Man Shoots Sleeping Mate, Then Turns Pistol on Self and Dies

Amesbury, Nov. 6.—Frank A. Morrill, retired business man, today shot and killed his wife, Mary, as she lay sleeping beside him.

Then he turned the revolver on himself and fired. He died before the arrival of a physician.

Both shots went into the temples. They were heard by John Morrill, nineteen-year-old son of the couple, who rushed into the room.

He found his mother dead on the bed and his father lying beside her, with a revolver in one hand and a flashlight in the other.

The police can find no possible cause for the murder and suicide, excepting possibly business troubles.

Morrill was sixty years of age and his wife was fifty-five. They had been married for over thirty years and had five grown children—four sons and a daughter, all of whom lived with their parents except one son, who is in Boston.

For years Morrill was engaged in the lumber business here. Recently he went into the garage business.

This was an unfortunate venture as it is known to have been depressed because of his losses in the garage.

SEVEN KILLED IN BATTLE OF FASCISTI

Rome, Nov. 6 (By the Associated Press).—Fascisti and Socialists fought today at Taranto, in southeastern Italy, over questions of local politics. Seven were killed and numbers were wounded, casualties being suffered by both.

Count Sforza, Italian Ambassador to France, was the object of a hostile demonstration by Fascisti when he arrived at Russoleno, Province of Turin, while returning to Rome for a conference with the new Premier Mussolini. The Fascisti detached the carriage in which the Count was riding from the train, but carabineers rushed in and rescued him.

Count Sforza thereupon continued his journey, and upon his arrival here was received by the Premier, with whom he had a long conversation.

Immediately after the formation of the Fascisti government, Count Sforza telegraphed his resignation as Ambassador, explaining he believed the new government should have in such important posts men who were in thorough accord with its policies.

In reply Mussolini reproached the Ambassador for his "ill-timed" action and asked him to remain at his post, and later summoned him to Rome.

SALOON MAN HELD IN ATTACK ON COP

Frank J. Donovan of Ferrin street, Charlestown, was arraigned today before Judge Sullivan, charged with keeping and exposing liquor for sale, and assaulting Patrolman James Costello. The policeman is alleged to have been attacked after he had purchased booze from Donovan in a near-beer saloon at No. 7 Chelsea street.

Donovan was held in $1,500 for a hearing November 24. Chris Edwards, also of the Ferrin street address, was charged with keeping and exposing liquor for sale and was held in $600.

RAIN ELECTION DAY MORNING; THEN CLEAR

Election day threatens to open with rain but with clear weather by midday. The weather man balloted his forecast today as follows:

"Unsettled, probably occasional showers tonight and Tuesday morning, followed by fair. Somewhat warmer tonight; moderate winds, generally southerly."

This warm temperature, unseasonal but easy on the coal bin, will probably continue a few days on account of areas of low pressure along our northern border section.

Cold was reported from the Rockies and Northwest today, with freezing weather as far south as Colorado and Utah.

PROTEST GARAGE NEAR ART MUSEUM

Claiming a public garage would detract from the beauty of the Fenway neighborhood, residents of that section, led by Ralph Adams Cram, former chairman of the City Planning Commission, today protested before the Building Commission of Boston against granting Edward Clayton a permit to erect a garage at No. 430 Parker street. The proposed site is opposite the Museum of Fine Arts.

SINGS TO FORGET OLD LOVE

Winchester Girl Who Called Off Wedding Now Appears in New York Cabaret

Miss Brenda Bond of Hillside avenue, Winchester, one of the bridesmaids at the Jack Sanborn wedding, who abruptly cancelled her marriage to Jack Payne Smith just twenty-four hours before she was scheduled to become his wife, has left her home and has gone to New York to become a cabaret singer.

She is now occupying an apartment in that city with two other girls, having secured, it is said, a part in some musical production.

Miss Bond, a prominent member of Winchester society, was to have married Smith on September 7. On the day before the wedding, however, after all arrangements had been made, her parents sent out cards announcing that the ceremony had been postponed.

Both Miss Bond and Smith said at the time that she was suffering from a "nervous breakdown," and that the wedding would be performed later. Now they have told friends, it is said, that they will never be married.

The postponement came, acquaintances say, just after the girl's mother received a special delivery letter telling her of some of the escapades in which Smith figured when he was going around with Jack Sanborn.

It is also reported that another Winchester girl told Mrs. Bond that Smith had promised to marry her.

Miss Bond went into a brief seclusion after the postponement. Then she startled her society friends by announcing that she had registered at a Boston theatrical agency for "some kind of theatrical work."

Her hopes have apparently been realized, as she has now begun the new career which she planned for herself. It is said, by close friends, that she decided to go on the stage largely in the hope that it would help her to forget her unfortunate affair with young Smith.

FINED $200 UPON LIQUOR LAW CHARGES

Benjamin Dorn, 24 years old, of Chelsea street, East Boston, paid $200 today in the East Boston court for violation of the liquor law. He was fined $100 on a suspended sentence and a new fine of $100 was imposed as a result of a raid at Dorn's premises. John Johnson of Border street paid a fine of $50 for violation of the liquor law.

DECLARES HEIRESS IS SANE

Brother of Miss Gordon's Guardian Says Girl Was Always Happy and Normal

William F. Jardine, guardian of Dorothy Gordon, heiress, now in the McLean Insane Asylum at Waverley, declared Dorothy was at the House in the Pines School at Norton long after he had placed the girl in the asylum, according to John L. Jardine of Park street, Dorchester. John L. Jardine is William's foster brother.

John Jardine and his wife declared today to a Boston American reporter they do not believe that Dorothy was insane when placed in the insane institution.

Mr. Jardine also revealed the fact that William Jardine was not born a Jardine, but was given that name by the courts after he became of age.

"As for Dorothy being insane," declared Mr. Jardine, "I do not believe it. I have known her for years. She always seemed like any normal girl to me. She never showed any signs of insanity in my presence. She was always just a happy child who seemed to be glad that she was alive.

TRUTH WAS CONCEALED.

"I could not believe it when I heard that she was in the asylum. The fact was kept from me and my wife. I used to ask William every time I saw him how Dorothy was. He kept telling me that she was 'fine.' He also told me that she was still at the House in the Pines School at Norton. He told me that

Husband and Wife Killed by Gas

Daniel Daley, fifty years old, and his wife, Margaret, forty-seven, today were found dead in bed from illuminating gas poison at their home at No. 386 Highland avenue, Malden.

The gas was found to be escaping from a leaky fixture. A cat lay dead on the floor near their bodies.

FINED $100, CHASED RIVAL WITH KNIFE

Angelo De Fipo, arraigned today in the South Boston court charged with assault and battery on Tony Ignazio, was found guilty and fined $100. He was also fined $10 for drunkenness. De Fipo is alleged to have chased Ignazio with a knife following an argument over a card game.

BACK BAY TENANTS SAVED FROM GAS

James Niles, janitor of an apartment house at No. 105 Queensbury street, smelled gas early in the morning. Investigating he found a leak in an outside pipe which was sending a cloud of fumes into the open windows of sleeping apartments. Niles aroused the ten or twelve occupants of the rooms in that section and they fled to safety.

Police Superintendent Michael H. Crowley was painfully injured when his automobile crashed through a plate-glass window at Columbus avenue and Burke street, South End, today.

One of his legs was cut. He was severely shaken up and bruised.

Supt. Crowley

He was driving his official sedan on his way to the funeral of Capt. Patrick H. King, the department drillmaster.

He was forced to turn sharply to the left to avoid a truck driven by Mike Hester, colored, of No. 21 Yarmouth street, which swung out ahead of him, then swung directly back without any signal that he observed.

He tried to swing into Burke street but his car hit the curb corner, went up across the sidewalk and plunged its front wheels and hood through the corner window of the United Drug Company's building.

Mr. Crowley was given emergency treatment at the drug plant. He returned to police headquarters, then went to the Relief Hospital for further examination and treatment.

The superintendent's car was considerably damaged in front.

U. S. TARS FORBIDDEN TO LAND

Must Have Permission of Kemalist Government to Go Ashore

Paris, Nov. 6 (By International News Service).—The Foreign Office this afternoon announced the Allied High Commissioners at Constantinople have sent a note to Angora refusing the Turkish request that the Allies retire and allow Turkish troops to occupy the city.

Constantinople, Nov. 6 (By the Associated Press).—The Turkish nationalist government has handed a note to the allied high commissioners here to the effect that the warships of all nations must ask it for authorization to pass the Straits of the Dardanelles, the Havas correspondent here has been informed.

They must also salute the new government of Turkey.

So far as can be learned the Sultan has not abdicated. It is believed the British authorities are taking measures to protect him and the prince, his heir.

In Angora the religious committee of the Assembly is hurriedly trying to choose the person it considers most qualified to ascend the Osman throne as Caliph in succession to Mohammed VI.

Meanwhile the Sultan still remains Caliph in the view of the Nationalists and Rafet Pasha has served notice that any attack against his per-

Answer This, Mr. Cox

For four long weeks you were silent. You refused to debate the issues. You broke your silence only at the eleventh hour, and then with a scurrilous, false and unjust attack. The people answered that attack 12 years ago. YOU ANWER THIS:

Why does Massachusetts have the highest cost of living in the country?

Why did you silence the only official who attacked the high price of meat and the high cost of coal?

Why did you block the transfer of the Charlestown State Prison, which Bishop Lawrence denounced as "A Dungeon Fit Only for the Middle Ages?"

Why have you done nothing to relieve the housing shortage and to force down the high rents?

Why did you vote against the investigation of telephone rates?

Why were your appointments of Legislative Committees so outrageous they were publicly denounced by Justice Brandeis?

Why did you vote against woman suffrage and then change your vote when you knew it could not be defeated?

Why did you vote against State aid for tuberculosis hospitals?

Why did you refuse to help the Lawrence mill strikers?

Do you stand with your party to restore the old boss-controlled convention system?

Why was your method of paid recess committees denounced as a system of "public plunder" by the Constitutional Convention.

Why did you refuse to help the 110,000 depositors in the wrecked banks?

Why did you sign the service-charge bill for the gas and electric interests?

Are you for the Volstead Act or are you against it?

Are you for or against State control of the county institutions?

Your party leaders think only in terms of the dollar. You are the symbol. Your whole career is not marked by a single vote for the people when they conflicted with the "property rights" of the big interests you represent.

MRS. HALL OPENS PERSONAL PROBE TO SOLVE CHURCH TRAGEDY

SEEKS TO CLEAR HER NAME

Wife of Slain Pastor Hires Detective to Gather Evidence in Jersey Mystery

New Brunswick, N. J., Nov. 6.—To emphasize and drive home her protestations of innocence, Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall has begun an individual investigation into the murder of her husband, Rev. Dr. Edward W. Hall, rector of the Protestant Episcopal Church of St. John the Evangelist, and the beautiful choir singer, Mrs. James Mills, it was learned today.

This probe is being made by Felix Denattine, a private detective and body guard at the Hall home.

Mrs. Hall, whose demand to appear before the Somerset county grand jury this week probably will be refused, told family friends that, while she was not making vengeance, she wanted the mystery solved and her own name cleared.

All witnesses in the case, except Mrs. Hall, are to be called before the jury the latter part of the week, according to an official in the county attorney's office. According to this same official Mrs. Hall's personal counsel to be heard will not be granted.

Mrs. Jane Gibson, self-styled "eye witness" to the murder, will on the day witness for the state. It is on her testimony, according to a reliable source, that an indictment will be returned. She is to be found. Although there are several missing links in the chain of evidence against the slayers of the Hall and Mills victims it is said that Mrs. Gibson's "corroborated" story of what she will bring about a speedy indictment.

after he had placed her in the asylum.

"My wife and I often wondered why she never came home for vacations. Little did we know that she was in the insane asylum.

"William gave orders at the asylum forbidding me and my wife from seeing the girl. We called the asylum on the telephone on day and asked if we could come over. We were told that William had given orders forbidding it.

"Personally, I do not think that Dorothy was ever insane before she went to the asylum. I would not be surprised now if she is insane, for being cooped up in such a place is enough to make anyone insane.

"If she is not insane she should be given her freedom. If she is insane she should be taken out of there and given proper care."

GIRL ALWAYS NORMAL.

Mrs. Jardine backed her husband up in all his statements.

"I have loved Dorothy as I have my own children," said Mrs. Jardine. "It is a shame that she should be kept in the asylum when she is cut off from all her relatives and friends.

"The last time I saw Dorothy she was just the same as ever and was a normal, healthy girl. If she became insane it must have been a sudden change.

"I cannot understand what William Jardine means when he says that Dorothy is insane."

Dorothy was left an orphan child and by father took William and raised him with her own family," he said. "He was never legally adopted, but was always known as William Ryan. Her father applied to the courts and legally gives the name of Jardine. He has always been good to my brother, and is now caring for him in a home at Winchester."

While the latter head fight to save Dorothy's sanity for her part at the National Asylum day in and day out sewing.

"Sewing is a particular object in the sewing of Dorothy. She is simply sews and sews and sews."

The pretty dresses she makes will never be worn by her girl friends, for many years—but she hopes at her release from the asylum. And, according to a close friend who visited her at the asylum, the girl is eating her heart out as the weeks and months pass. Instead of being a happy, carefree girl she is said to be pale and wrinkled down with sad

CAGED BIRD.

"Dorothy," said her friend, "is like a beautiful bird in a gilded cage. She has a charming room at the asylum. The room is luxuriously furnished. Provision is made for the needed a Victrola album her with rooms. Flags that are a delight to the eye around her room. The furniture is of the best.

"She has excellent care and good food. But she is like a lovely bird who longs for the freedom of the great outdoors. Longs to sing and fly away to a quiet nook of its own choosing. The surroundings and the attention of trained doctors are not what she wants. She longs for freedom.

"During the Summer months Dorothy played some tennis on the courts of the asylum," said her friend. "But even this recreation failed to lift her from the rut of unhappiness, for there were ever present attendants within sight; the ever-present knowledge that gates barred her from her friends.

CHAFES AT MONOTONY.

"Just to give you an example of how the girl feels," said her friend, "let me tell you of this incident. I was sitting in Dorothy's room chatting with her as I would chat with any girl friend. She had her sewing in her lap, as usual. Suddenly she laid it down and sat there with folded hands. An attendant came in.

"'Why don't you sew, Dorothy?', asked the attendant.

"'Oh! You can't sew ALL THE TIME. One must do something else besides sew SOMETIMES,' exclaimed Dorothy. The attendant looked at her for a moment. With a deep sigh that came straight from the heart, Dorothy picked up her sewing and took up her work where she had left off."

John D. Gardiner, of Baldwin, Long Island, uncle of Dorothy, who is waging the fight to oust William C. Jardine, of Winchester, as her guardian, declares that he will show that the girl was not insane when she was sent to the asylum.

CHUMS TO TESTIFY.

He has a group of intimate girl friends of Dorothy who are prepared to come forward and tell of Dorothy's condition just six days before she was taken to the asylum, where she has been confined since March of 1921. These girls say that they do not think Dorothy was insane at that time.

son would be regarded as an offense against the Moslem religion.

Tens of thousands swarmed in the streets near the Yildiz Palace, where the Sultan is ensconced, and many hurled vile epithets at the tottering ruler hidden behind the walls of the imposing building.

Armed allied soldiers formed a human screen around the palace to prevent the surging masses from getting too close to the place where the Sultan resides.

U. S. SAILORS WARNED.

After taking over control of Constantinople, the Nationalists demanded withdrawal of the allied troops from the city and served notice that allied or American sailors would not be permitted to land from their warships at Kemalist ports except by special permission of the Angora government.

A telegram from Angora says the Grand National Assembly has instructed Ismet Pasha, delegate to the Lausanne Peace Conference, to obtain realization of the following points:

First, the frontiers of Turkey to be in accordance with the national pact; second, Greece to pay an indemnity; third, suppression of the capitulations, or extra territorial rights for foreigners; fourth, modification of the frontiers of Irak (Mesopotamia), and, fifth, complete independence for Turkey, financially, economically and politically.

DEMAND RAILROADS.

Along with the demand for the departure of allied troops, the Turkish Nationalist government, in an additional note handed to the allied commissioners by Hamid Bey asked that the Turkish railways in Europe and Asia, which are under temporary allied control, be handed over to the Angora government immediately.

Over the week-end the Nationalists hurled up against the allies, not only through written notes, but with a show of physical power as well. "With a seeming disregard for the agreements in the Mudania convention that recently brought an end to armed hostilities in the Near East, Turkish gendarmes have now moved into areas known as neutral.

They are advancing into the Chanak area, where only a few weeks ago the British dug themselves in to prevent violation of the neutrality of that district.

Lausanne Conference Postponed Two Weeks

London, Nov. 6.—(By the Associated Press)—As a result of the new situation created in Constantinople by the demand of Rafet Pasha that the Allied military occupation of the city should cease, the peace conference called to be held at Lausanne, November 13, has been postponed, possibly for a fortnight, it was announced here today.

It is stated in authoritative circles that in no circumstances will the British point of view regarding the presence of allied troops in Constantinople be changed. The British intend to uphold the Mudania armistice agreement and remain in the neutral zone with their troops.

If the Angora government, however, desires to send civil administrative officers to Chanak, Gallipoli and Constantinople, there will be no objection, it is declared.

Kemal Pasha Quoted as Declaring for Socialism

London, Nov. 6 (International News Service, by Radio)—New Turkey, which is being created by the Nationalists at Angora, will be conducted along Socialistic lines, according to an interview with Mustapha Kemal Pasha, printed today by the Daily Herald, official organ of the British Labor Party. The Telegram received from Constantinople quoted Kemal as saying:

"The new Turkish state will be governed by a system not far removed from Socialism. But I am not a Communist."

IT'S VICTORY OR DEFEAT, SAYS DE VALERA

The principles which the Republicans are defending, De Valera says, are by nature irreducible and not open to compromise. Victory for the "republic" or utter defeat and extermination are now, he declares, the only alternatives.

MAYOR CURLEY IS RIGHT!

"The War on Disease Germs Was as Important as the War on the Germans."

CITY OF BOSTON
OFFICE OF THE MAYOR

JAMES M. CURLEY
Mayor

November 2, 1922.

G. F. Willis, President,
Zonite Products Company,
342 Madison Avenue,
New York, N. Y.

Dear Sir:

As Mayor of Boston I want to thank you for selecting Boston as the first city in the country to which you bring the message of the Carrel-Dakin form of antiseptic and its value in the homes of the people.

I recall quite well that during the World War the medical staffs of the allied armies realized that the war on disease germs was as important as the war on the Germans; since diseases generated by the germs were more destructive than the missiles of the enemy. From a humanitarian, medical and military point of view the wonderful discovery of those two famous scientists, Carrel and Dakin, was the most important event in the war and by its saving of life and restoration of military morale, a tremendous element in the war's successful outcome. I am convinced that medicine has its heroes and benefactors as well as war and peace and that the names of Carrel and Dakin will go down to posterity alongside of those of Pasteur, Lister and the other men of science to whom humanity owes so much.

You are to be congratulated for putting this magic fluid on the market in a stabilized form and I am sure the name Zonite is already a household word.

Very truly yours,

James M. Curley

Mayor.

Some Zonite Reasons WHY Mayor Curley Is Right

ZONITE is a stabilized and concentrated form of the Carrel-Dakin Solution, the celebrated antiseptic discovered by two eminent scientists of the Rockefeller Institute, which accomplished such phenomenal results in the hospitals of the allied armies during the world war and saved the lives of hundreds of thousands of desperately wounded men.

IT IS UNIVERSALLY conceded that its discovery represents the most important advance made by medical science since the discovery of anaesthetics.

ZONITE, by standard laboratory tests, is more than twice as powerful as pure carbolic acid. It is more than forty times as powerful as any solution of carbolic acid, bichloride of mercury or iodine that can be freely used with safety on the human body.

ZONITE is forty times as powerful as peroxide of hydrogen (USP-3%) and has from forty to one hundred times the germicidal power of many of the mild, pleasant-tasting, or foaming antiseptics heretofore in general use.

ZONITE is non-poisonous, perfectly safe to use, and will rid the home of deadly poisons which have cost the world tens of thousands of useful lives.

ZONITE is non-caustic and non-irritating and will not injure the most delicate skin, flesh or membrane. Zonite promotes tissue growth and is probably the most efficient healing agent known to materia medica.

WHEN APPLIED to a fresh cut or wound, Zonite will destroy the germs which cause blood poisoning and other forms of infection. It heals with astonishing rapidity.

ON ACCOUNT of its great germicidal power and non-poisonous character, this is the one form of antiseptic which can be safely taken into the mouth in sufficient strength to destroy the germs which cause Pyorrhea.

PYORRHEA in its early stages has been checked in a few days by the use of Zonite. If the disease is so far advanced that the germs have worked down to the roots of the teeth beyond the reach of the antiseptic, dental treatment is absolutely necessary, after which Zonite will aid in preventing the return of the disease.

TEN drops of Zonite added to a glass of water will destroy water borne disease germs without rendering the water unfit to drink. It will therefore be of incalculable value during typhoid or other epidemics.

DAILY USES FOR ZONITE

- Antiseptic Dressing for Cuts and Wounds
- Mouth Wash in the Treatment and Prevention of Pyorrhea
- Personal Hygiene for Women
- Nasal and Throat Spray for the Treatment and Prevention of Respiratory Diseases
- Gargle for Throat Affections
- Old Suppurating Sores
- Wet Dressing for Rash and Skin Eruptions
- Boils, Pimples and Carbuncles
- Deodorant and Toilet Requisite
- To Sterilize and Disinfect Sick-room Utensils
- Prevention of Contagious Diseases
- In the Care of Infants and Children in the Nursery

ZONITE properly diluted can be sprayed into the mouth or throat of a child in sufficient strength to destroy the germs which cause many respiratory diseases. It will be especially valuable during the epidemics of childhood diseases.

ZONITE is invaluable for treating old sores, running sores and slow-healing wounds. It dissolves dead tissue, removes proud flesh, reduces inflammation and stops the discharge of pus, rendering the sore clean and healthy.

ZONITE is the ideal antiseptic for the sick room. It is a powerful disinfectant and deodorant. It destroys disease germs with which it comes in contact and will disinfect fever thermometers, bed linen, dishes, drinking glasses and other sick room utensils.

THE ACTION of Zonite on air is to destroy foul odors and liberate nascent oxygen. It imparts a distinct buoyancy and freshness and renders it decidedly more healthy instead of merely adding a distinct odor of its own.

THE UNUSUAL deodorant properties of Zonite make it desirable for controlling body odors because of its prompt effectiveness and because it leaves no permanent odor of its own. Many so-called deodorants merely supply another odor which masks the objectionable odor.

ZONITE is the ideal antiseptic for domestic animals and house pets. It has distinct advantages over poisonous antiseptics because of the natural instinct of animals to lick their wounds. Zonite is helpful in eradicating many kinds of vermin from pet animals without pain or injury to their coats.

ONE FOURTEEN-OUNCE bottle of Zonite makes five gallons of a powerful deodorizing agent for refrigerators, drains, sinks, toilets, bath tubs, garbage cans, etc., and at the same time possesses excellent disinfecting qualities.

OPPOSITION OF LABOR SPELLS DEFEAT FOR FILM CENSOR

60 STATE ORGANIZATIONS DENOUNCE REFERENDUM

The Massachusetts Federation of Labor is solidly opposed to the moving picture censorship amendment. Over sixty labor organizations throughout the State have passed formal resolutions denouncing censorship, and the entire membership of the Federation has been asked to vote "No" on Referendum Number 3.

With the scale casting its weight into the fight, the doom of the censorship bill is practically certain.

John Van Vaerenwyck, Vice-President of the State Federation, outlines Labor's objection to the bill as follows:

"These very simple people, who are so concerned with the welfare of our children, would end have, in the past, opposed all legislative measures that would protect women and children in industry. Do we find these people advocating the increasing of the working age for children in industry or to lessen the hours of labor for women and children in industry. No, absolutely not!

"Why besmirch the name of Justice with moral hypocrisy? And why create a new political department?"

Tomorrow is the day! The arguments against censorship have been presented, in detail. The question of censorship now rests with the voters and that answer is going to be "No" with a bang that will echo all over the country.

The final letters in the Boston American censorship are herewith printed. The winners will be announced within a few days. Watch for them.

FROM MIDDLE AGES.

Editor Boston American:

"The gloom cast over civilization by the black stretch of the Middle Ages has not yet been completely dispelled. It finds expression in such things as a 'movie censor' and the Ku Klux Klan.

"People with a mania for wanting to regulate the lives of others; unoccupied people with weakened brains functioning painfully under a burden of prejudice and abhorrent ignorance, willingly foster and finance such movements. They are chiefly responsible for many idiotic and imbecilic attacks upon wholesome and educational national institutions.

"Camouflaged as moralists and uplifters, they now seek to establish a one-man movie censor in Massachusetts. Only one inference can be drawn from the fact that they fly in the face of laws and regulations which already exist and which adequately protect the public from so-called 'immoral' motion pictures—somebody is trying to graft another plum on the political tree.

"Aside from the much-quoted fact that it violates constitutional rights, etc., is there a man with such a marvelous gift of artistic appreciation, with such a thorough grasp of sociology as to be able unfailingly to point out what is good and what is bad?

"The yokels, sedentary spinsters, fossils and other residue of human worth that constitute the backers of the 'movie' censor, whose breaths contaminate the unalloyed atmosphere of human endeavor, should be segregated and armed with picks, shovels or other useful implements. Perhaps they could then contribute something of real value to humanity.

CHARLES LOMBARDI.

Room 408 Paddock Building, Tremont Street, Boston.

Editor Boston American:

"A movie censor would have the effect of increasing the cost of the pictures to the public. The war tax has boosted the cost; a censor would boost it more and place the movies beyond the reach of some, eventually causing a loss to the promoters and a hardship to the poor.

"We have a coal commission—it costs us more for coal; we have a food commissions—it costs more for food. A movie censor is simply another kind of a commission.

"A censor would receive a salary; the cost must obviously be borne by the picture-loving public. The result, therefore is only to increase the cost.

"Those who see wrong in the movies as shown today are those long-faced creatures whose minds are cramped and warped and who can see only bad in that which is good."

"The effect of a censor would be to provide a political plum for some sanctimonious, psalm-singing, soul saving hypocrite who would be unable to earn a living at some useful occupation.

"A. F. RICE.

"No. 30 Farrington street, Wollaston."

Censorship Menaces Freedom, Curley Warns

Mayor James M. Curley is opposed to State censorship of motion pictures.

In a statement the Mayor says that the "proposition for a State censorship is but another step in the mad march for the transformation of 'government of, by and for the people,' to the character of government responsible for the World War, namely bureaucratic government." The Mayor said:

"Thoughtful men and women view with alarm every new assault upon their liberties and the demand for a State censorship is but the echo of a request for the issuance of an injunction or the Attorney-General of the United States to restrain American workers from organizing and acting in behalf of their personal well-being.

Will Hays Calls for Defeat of State Film Censor

"IT is very important indeed that we distinguish between BETTER PICTURES and POLITICAL CENSORSHIP OF PICTURES.

"The people of the country have the absolute right to require that motion pictures shall be clean. This fact is realized and accepted by the industry. It was the sensing of this duty that brought about the organization of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, Inc. The industry sought and obtained the co-operation of some eighty nationally organized welfare movements, brought together into an association for mutual helpfulness.

WILL H. HAYS.

"Producers have taken definite steps to make the fullest possible use of the motion picture as an instrument of international good will.

"WE WILL SELL AMERICA TO THE WORLD WITH MOTION PICTURES.

"Be assured that what you are doing against Referendum No. 3 is a distinct contribution to a constructive program toward the only ultimate successful solution to the whole situation." to a constructive program toward the only ultimate successful solution of the whole situation."

Statement of Will H. Hays, president of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, Inc., in a letter to General Charles H. Cole.

CENSORSHIP BILL DEFEAT PREDICTED

The defeat of the censorship bill tomorrow is predicted freely by the working people of the State. For the past month they have registered their protests against this measure, and in each and every case they have presented able arguments. Not only are they actively against it personally, but they are working among their friends to defeat it. And their word will be heard at the polls.

Here is what some more have to say:

Joseph Walsh, No. 18 Hillside street, Roxbury:

"Even those in favor of censorship do not like to be connected with censorship. They show this by repeated statements that they only seek the inspection of films. In this case the 'inspection' is just a cloak under which these alleged reformers hide. I would have much more admiration for them if they would come out in the open and admit that they want real CENSORSHIP, not only of the movies but of the newspapers and everything else that comes as close to the people as the press and the screen."

Joseph Welsh

Miss Julia Sullivan, No. 17 Amandine street, Jamaica Plain:

"It is about time that some one put a stop to the practice of small groups of people causing so much trouble and expense to the government. The majority of people will have what they want and it is safe to depend on the judgment of the public in anything. Why should a small group of agitators be allowed to dictate to the rest of us what we shall see in the movies? If these men who are trying to push censorship across were really trying to be of benefit to the State, it would be bad enough. I am convinced that they are working for their own interests, first, and the public's interest next."

Julia Sullivan

Miss Ethel Rau, No. 2 Albert street, Roxbury:

"The voters tomorrow will show the reformers that Massachusetts is sick and tired of being reformed. Everywhere I go I hear people denouncing this bill. Personally I consider it as an insult to the people of the State. We are not so feeble minded that we need guardians at the State House. And everyone that goes to the movies doesn't want to see pictures fit for children.

Ethel Rau

John Hester, No. 978 Parker street, Roxbury:

"If these 'protectors of youth' would only dig up some coal to keep youth warm this Winter they would be doing some thing. But no, they are wasting their time trying to censor the movies, because, of course, that doesn't take much real hard work. Or perhaps they could locate a few houses so that youth might have a roof over its head in the cold Winter.

John Hester

"DRYS" RAID 5 PLACES IN CHELSEA

Prohibition agents raided five places in Chelsea today. Doors and windows were smashed before the officers got in. After the raid Chief of Police Finn said he believed the raiders did not have proper warrants and if this proved true he would ask for warrants to arrest the agents.

The places raided were A. Hershenson, No. 164 Maple street, a dealer in art squares and pewter vases; K. Freedman, No. 162 Maple street; Abraham Kravitz, No. 77 Elm street; Abraham Danbresky, No. 75 Elm street; Samuel Levitt, No. 83 Elm street, and Etta Hill, No. 79 Elm street.

The officers found nothing at any place except at the home of Samuel Levitt, where they discovered one quart of mixed liquors prescribed by a doctor for Mrs. Levitt.

WARNING

TO ALL BOSTON VOTERS

When you vote, tomorrow, do not confuse the great question of "Equal Pay for Equal Service" in the Boston Schools with the other questions on the ballot. This question stands all by itself, at the bottom of Column 3, next to Register of Deeds. It is for Boston, only. It reads as follows:

Shall the Representatives from this district be instructed to support the passage of an Act at the incoming term of the General Court ordering the School Committee of the City of Boston to make effective during the current year, the economic principle of "Equal Pay for Equal Service and no further discrimination of sex" in the matter of teachers' salaries in the schools of Boston? YES / NO

Vote "Yes" on this question. It is endorsed by all great educational bodies, labor bodies, and prominent men and women thinkers. It is fought by a little clique of men who do not believe in "Better Schools For Boston."

STAND BY THE BOYS AND GIRLS OF BOSTON. Vote for justice to the Boston teachers. It means nothing to the taxpayer. It means everything to the schools. You have read the unanimous opinion of the School Committee on the question. It is your right to express yourself.

Don't Fail to Vote "Yes"!

INSISTS SCHOOL BOARD EDICT IS UNFAIR

Editor Boston American:

The announcement of the Boston School Committee against the adoption of the principle of "Equal pay for equal service and no further discrimination because of sex," in the matter of teachers' salaries, is extremely unsatisfactory in the reasons given.

Where is there any attack on the principle of local self-government when the citizens of Boston are being asked for an expression of their opinion?

The Constitution of the State distinctly lays down the right of the voters to instruct their representatives and the manner adopted in this instance is the one expressly provided for by law.

The committee says that any effort on the part of teachers to secure rights or privileges for their own benefit, except by appeal to the School Committee, is subversive to discipline, etc. The School Committee was asked last Spring to adopt the principle and declined to do so. What are the teachers to do?

TWO MAIN ARGUMENTS.

There are just two arguments against "Equal Pay for Equal Service" that are worth considering. The first is that men ought to have higher salaries because they have families to support. But in practice salaries are paid to men absolutely without reference to whether they are married or not, or have, or have not dependents. An unmarried bank president, doctor, lawyer or school teacher receives the same salary as one married and having a family.

Imagine a woman writer, artist, sculptor, physician, scientist, being asked to accept less for her work simply because she is a woman!

The second argument is that "Equal Pay for Equal Service" means the elimination of men from teaching and the men's association has harped on this argument without ever having given the slightest evidence in support of it. The argument has no inherent probability in the first place, but it is unnecessary to speculate about it. Absolute experience disposes of it.

WHAT EQUAL PAY MEANS.

On the other hand, the application of the principle, "Equal Pay for Equal Service," means, as something helpful to the character of the women teachers themselves, a consciousness of recognized worth, no mean aid in the sustaining of character and as an incentive to zeal; the elimination of the sense of being discriminated against, something always baneful, except in rare cases of persons of extraordinary ruggedness of character; necessarily greater enthusiasm in co-operating with all of the teachers without regard to whether they are men or women, a unity of the teaching force having been established.

It means on the part of the men a removal of a purely artificial sense of superiority based solely on the very vulgar fact that they get more pay; a bringing of the men up against the same cold, hard fact that men have to face in dealing with one another, viz., that they have got to compete with all others in their profession on their individual merits.

And, finally, what is most important of all, it means teaching conditions which will redound to the advantage of the children. It means the elimination from the pupil's view of the spectacle of discrimination against women teachers on the score simply of their being women, a spectacle manifestly injurious to the child and necessarily impairing the value in results of the work of women teachers.

STAR WITNESS DIES FOR KIN

Lawrence, Nov. 6.—The death of 23-year-old Annie Romano in the triple shooting at the home of her father, Andrew, at No. 174 Garden street, has deprived the State of its star witness in the case of Vito Caruso, charged with the murder of his wife by stabbing Mrs. Caruso in her bed last July.

Annie Romano sacrificed her own life to save that of her sister, Mrs. Joseph Janni, by jumping in between when Vincenzo Janni, brother of Joseph, fired at the latter's wife.

Andrew Romano, father of the two young women, was shot in the forehead by Vincenzo, and is now in a serious condition in Lawrence General Hospital. The State has been relying upon his testimony also in its case against Vito Caruso. Mrs. Caruso was a sister of Andrew Romano and aunt of Annie, now dead.

If Romano dies the State will lose a second witness in the Caruso case.

Meanwhile Romano is under guard and charged with murder in shooting Vincenzo Janni in the gun battle. After killing Annie Romano and wounding her father, Vincenzo Janni staggered away, wounded by bullets from Romano's revolver, the police say. He was found dead ten minutes later in a nearby alley.

The shooting arose, the police understood, over Mrs. Joseph Janni's refusal to let Vincenzo Janni have his brother's revolver.

B. U. LAW SCHOOL PLANS CLASS DAY

The students of the senior class of the law school of Boston University believe in prompt preparedness, for at this very early date they have already chosen and elected their committee for class day exercises, which comes the middle of June.

The law school prospective graduates have an annual picnic, a dance, a special assembly at which the class history is read and the salutatory address is made. The students will continue the custom this year. Miss Rose Cohen of Boston is chairman of the class day arrangements. Although Miss Cohen will graduate this June, she will not be able to receive her degree until she is twenty-one. Miss Julia Hoffman of Chelsea has the honor of giving the class history.

DETECTIVE IN FILM FORMER BOSTON BOY

Sh-h-h! The Detective!

See him flash badge, fi. bullet holes, smell revolver, snoop, gum shoe, grill, clap the wristlets on the wrong man —ever notice how a chap of that type gets the spot and the limelight before real brains are used to ferret out a mystery? That's Frank Sheridan. The actor in the detective role in "One Exciting Night" at Tremont Temple is so clever in his wrong-headedness that audiences think he must be the crook. The "dumb bell" detective is a masterpiece. The creator of the character was born in Boston and began by carrying a spear in Shakespearean productions in the Old Boston Theatre.

Frank Sheridan

He was a clerk in a cutlery house here, then a soldier of fortune in Peru, then a repertoire actor and burlesque manager out West, and finally graduated into the legitimate where he has been playing strong parts the last thirty years. His finest bit of straight dramatic work was the blustery old sea Captain in "Paid in Full." The actor's last important engagement in this his home town came in the role of Detective Yeats in "Three Faces East," in January, 1920.

PICKED BY GRIFFITH.

Whenever a "strong arm" is wanted theatrically, somebody sends for Sheridan. He can do 'em stupid or smart as desired, for he has handled the technic and the artillery since boyhood. D. W. Griffith had witnessed many proofs of Sheridan's excellence as a "detekative," and he was the first one selected after Miss Carol Dempster for the "One Exciting Night" cast.

But—just to show the new generation that he isn't a dumb bell, Sheridan says that his next role in Boston is going to be that of a real crime detector.

GERMANS HOPE MORGAN WILL AID LOAN

Berlin, Nov. 6 (By the Associated Press).—The international loan of 500,000,000 gold marks which Germany has proposed to the Allied Reparations Commission represents the sum the German government believes is required to undertake German financial stabilization, it is set forth in the German memorandum to the commission, which stipulates that the loan be exclusively devoted to this purpose.

The memorandum also stipulates that the loan be placed under the supervision of a control committee comprising the leaders of the German government and the Reichsbank authorities. The latter institution is expected to co-operate by pledging its own gold reserve and other credits.

In suggestion the early convocation of the International Loan Committee the German government, it is indicated, hopes to stimulate the co-operation of J. P. Morgan and other American financial interests.

That Dingy Film

Under old brushing methods, as most people know, teeth still discolored, still decayed. Beautiful teeth were seen less often than today. Tooth troubles had so constantly increased that very few escaped them.

Now it is known that the chief reason lay in film. That is the cause of most tooth troubles. That is what makes teeth dingy.

No ordinary tooth paste could effectively combat film. So much film was left to dim the teeth and threaten serious damage.

The great tooth enemy

Film is that viscous coat you feel. It clings to teeth, gets between the teeth and stays. The film absorbs stains, then forms cloudy coats. Tartar is based on film.

Film also holds food substance which ferments and forms acids. It holds the acids in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. Brushing could not combat these troubles when it left that film intact.

Now ways to combat it

To meet this situation, dental science sought for film combatants. Two effective methods were discovered. One acts to curdle film, one to remove it, and without any harmful scouring.

Many careful tests proved these methods efficient. Authorities endorsed them, then leading dentists everywhere began to urge their use.

A new-type tooth paste was created, based on modern research. It brings five effects now considered essential. It avoids some old mistakes. Those two new film combatants are embodied in it. The name of that tooth paste is Pepsodent.

Old effects reversed

Pepsodent also multiplies the starch digestant in the saliva. That is there to digest starch deposits which may otherwise ferment and form acids.

It multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva. That is there to neutralize mouth acids which cause tooth decay. Every use gives manifold power to these great tooth-protecting agents in the mouth.

Old-type tooth pastes, based on soap and chalk, brought just opposite effects. They weakened Nature. That is why those principles were changed.

Pepsodent also polishes the teeth so film less easily adheres.

Then new beauty came to millions

Pepsodent came quickly into very wide use, largely by dental advice. Now careful people of some fifty nations employ it. To millions of people it has brought new beauty, new protection.

Note the glistening teeth you see on every side today. Note the smiles that show them. Those pearly teeth mean safer, cleaner teeth. All can easily see that a new era has come in this branch of dental hygiene.

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear.

The results will surprise and delight you. And they will lead you, we think, to gain the benefits which millions now enjoy. Cut out the coupon now.

Fessendens Back in Hub for Winter Season, Says Betty Alden

MISS ROSE FESSENDEN

By BETTY ALDEN.

BACK from a brief stay at Hot Springs are Mrs. Sewall H. Fessenden and two of her daughters, the Misses Louise and Rose Fessenden.

During their sojourn at the Virginia resort both Louise—it was she who played the heroine's part in the last Vincent Club show—and her sister, spent a good deal of their time on the tennis courts, as the accompanying "action" picture of Rose Fessenden clearly shows.

Rose Fessenden—or "Rosie," as she is known to her friends—has very light, fluffy hair and deep blue eyes. The last time I saw her was out Chestnut Hill way at a horse show, when she was with her fiance, Edward L. Bigelow, son of the Henry Forbes Bigelows of Chestnut street. The young people, whose engagement was announced in May, were to have been married last month, but owing to Miss Fessenden's ill health the wedding has been postponed until Spring. It was, of course, quite a bit of a disappointment to members of the fashionable contingent that this all-important ceremonial should be changed to a later date, for both Miss Fessenden and young Bigelow—he is of the Harvard '21 class—have a host of notable connections.

MR. AND MRS. B. H. BRISTOW DRAPER of Boston have been staying for a few days in New York at the Ritz-Carlton. The Drapers have a large country place at Hopedale, where they usually spend the Fall and Spring months.

I DON'T believe there's a single debutante of the season who isn't going to serve as an usher at the Boardwalk Theatre. The latter is going to be one of the main attractions at the Atlantic City Boardwalk Exposition, coming to Boston December 1.

Miss Virginia Tanner, who has coached so many of the shows put on by the smart set, is in charge of the program to be given by the Boardwalk Theatre. I understand that the Amateurs are to put on a play, and that Kadrina is to do some of her clever dances. There will also be a marionette show for the children.

Miss Rebekah Hobbs and her sister-in-law, Mrs. Marland C. Hobbs, are in charge of procuring the ushers for the occasion, and they have already marshaled together not only practically the entire bud contingent, but a number of older girls as well. Among the latter are Lena Turnbull, Isabel Boardman, Emily Barton, Dorothy King, Eleanor Musgrave, Lucy Harding and Mrs. Reed P. Anthony (Mary Hartwell).

MR. AND MRS. AMORY S. CARHART (Isadora Bliss) have returned from their country place at Tuxedo Park and are for the Winter at their New York home at No. 950 Park avenue.

ON Monday afternoon, November 20, will be held the first of a series of bridge parties to help swell the Frances Jewett Repertory Theatre fund. This will be held at Mrs. Walter C. Bayliss' home at No. 5 Commonwealth avenue.

The second of the series comes on December 4 and will be held at No. 142 Chestnut street, the home of Mrs. Henry Forbes Bigelow. Other matrons who are lending their homes for these occasions are Mesdames Ezra Thayer, Mrs. S. Parker Brewer and Mrs. Franklin W. Hobbs.

AMONG the debutante presentations of the week is the tea dance which Mrs. Edmund Kent Arnold is giving this afternoon at the Hotel Somerset to present her daughter, Miss Marie Arnold, one of the season's Junior League girls. She was graduated from Miss May's School in June.

'KNOW A MAN A YEAR,' SAYS MRS. FORD

A fervent denial that there was anything improper about the now-famous "developing parties" which she held in the bathroom of a Florida hotel with a man named McDonald, was made to reporters by Mrs. Frances Fay Ford, of Newton, who has just been given a divorce by the Portsmouth, N. H., courts from her husband, Charles L. Ford of that city.

During trial of the suit Ford introduced witnesses to testify about Mrs. Ford and McDonald going into the darkened bathroom together to develop pictures. It was his contention that these parties were improper for a married woman. The court rejected his claim, however, and decided for the wife.

"At no time whatever was I other than a loyal, faithful wife to my husband. Mr. McDonald was merely an acquaintance," she said.

"I was but twenty years old when I met Mr. Ford, loved him and married him, all within three or four months. Now I know how foolish a hasty marriage is.

"My advice to a girl is that she should know a man she loves at least a year before she consents to marry him."

EXPECT PARDON FOR POLITICAL PRISONERS

Washington, Nov. 6 (By International News Service).—Several more so-called political prisoners probably will be freed this month, including a number who are eligible to parole.

Department of Justice officials said that pardon attorneys are expediting this class of cases as fast as possible, especially those in which formal applications for clemency were filed. Several prisoners who have sought commutation of sentence and who have served the major part of their terms are expected to be released before Thanksgiving Day.

There still remain pending at the department fifty cases in which no requests have been made for executive clemency. These cases are being considered separately on their merits, together with about fifty others in which formal appeals were made for pardon.

BOY KILLED IN FALL WHILE HUNTING NEST

How Touchstone Told Time

When Touchstone met Jaques in the Forest of Arden, he drew forth a pocket sun-dial and moralized on Time. This dial must have looked like a napkin ring with a stem like that of a watch. He probably held it up edgewise toward the sun. A tiny hole was drilled in the upper part of the ring so that a sunbeam could fall upon the inner surface, on which the hours were marked.

The modern watch is the development of an idea that began long before Touchstone's day. Generation after generation of skilled artisans have studied and worked to bring about the perfection of the faithful little timekeeper that ticks away the hours for you.

A watch must be practical; therefore it must be accurate. A watch must be attractive; therefore it must have a beautiful case. Any watch that you may select from our display will fulfil these prime essentials.

During the week of November 6 we shall have a very complete display of Hamilton watches. They are among the very finest watches made, and we shall be very glad to show them to any one interested in accurate and beautiful timepieces.

KILLING COOLS REBELS' ARDOR IN MEXICO

Mexico City, Nov. 6 (By the Associated Press).—The fate of General Francisco Murguia, who was put to death last week after a summary court-martial, has cooled the ardor of other rebels in the republic, several of whom, according to today's newspapers, have made overtures to the central government, offering to surrender if amnesty is granted them.

General Roscio Hernandez, prominently mentioned with Murguia's revolutionary movement and who for weeks is said to have been active in Coa Huila, the newspapers say, "wishes to surrender and his emissaries are now in Mexico City negotiating with President Obregon. It is asserted that General Miguel Aleman, declared to have been one of Murguia's henchmen in Vera Cruz, also is of the same frame of mind as Hernandez. If these reports are true, two influential rebels will be eliminated if their terms are accepted.

The Federal forces again achieved success over the revolutionary forces yesterday when Generals Benjamin Garza and Benjamin Velasques, both operating in Coa Huila, were killed and their forces scattered.

POLICEMAN STONED TO DEATH BY BOYS

Providence, R. I., Nov. 6.—Patrolman Peter F. Pepin, forty-five years old, of East Providence, was killed while giving chase to three young strangers. His body was found at Lamont and Maple streets. The police say that Pepin was knocked senseless and died fifteen minutes later from being struck by a rock thrown by one of the fleeing youths. He leaves a wife and six children.

HERE'S CHANCE TO TAKE DIVA TO BIG GAME

Would you like to take a beautiful and celebrated grand opera prima donna to the Princeton game?

Rosa Ponselle wants to see the game and she can't get any tickets. So she says she'll go anyway, if she has to climb over the Soldiers Field fence, but she would prefer to go through the gate in company with the owner of two tickets.

Miss Ponselle, who is the leading dramatic soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Company, finds herself in Boston for the first time on the eve of a great football game. She will give a concert on Sunday evening at Symphony Hall, and will arrive in Boston Friday night in time for the game.

UNABLE TO GET TICKET.

Finding this coincidence a delightful one, Rosa planned to attend the game, but she has been unable to get a ticket in New York.

She wrote to the Harvard authorities, but was informed that only Harvard graduates were eligible for tickets. Miss Ponselle did not go to Harvard. She grew up in Meriden, Conn., went to no college and was singing in vaudeville when it was discovered that she had the greatest soprano voice in the world, and she was ushered into grand opera.

OFFERS TO EXCHANGE.

She was informed that if she bought tickets they would be refused at the gate. So Miss Ponselle, who is nothing if not resourceful, wrote an advertisement which she instructed her Boston manager to insert in the Boston American, which reads as follows:

"Will exchange two good seats for my concert in Symphony Hall, Sunday evening, November 12th, for one ticket to Princeton game, November 11. Will send my autographed photograph if seat is very good. Will accept escort to game if necessary to get ticket. Communicate with my manager at Symphony Hall, by letter.

"Rosa Ponselle."

Miss Ponselle was reached by long distance telephone in New York and asked whether the want ad. was a hoax or if she meant it.

GOING TO GAME.

"Certainly I mean it. I'm going to that Princeton game somehow," declared the diva.

"Would you accept the escort of an unknown man for the sake of going to the game?"

"He wouldn't be unknown long, because I'd ask him his name, and the fact that he had a ticket would prove that he was connected with Harvard University, either as a graduate or undergraduate, which would be reference enough. But I am not looking for an escort. All I want is a ticket. And I bet I get one."

Thereupon, Rosa laughed merrily and rang off.

ITALY PAYS HIGH HONOR TO HUB MAN

A silver medal, the highest honor that can be won by a private soldier of the Italian army, has been bestowed upon Antonio Latorella of No. 92 Endicott street, North End. Latorella was decorated by the Italian consul, Marchese Ferrante, at the annual dance of the Ex-Combattenti held in Paul Revere Hall.

The medal was presented for extraordinary heroism during the second battle of the Piave. Latorella had been cited seven times before this battle. An annuity of 250 francs will be paid him and to his descendants for seven generations.

THIEVES WHO ROBBED JUDGE ARE HUNTED

The Dorchester police are searching for burglars who ransacked the home of Judge Joseph R. Churchill, justice of the Dorchester District Court. The marauders were evidently frightened from the building before they were able to find the valuables. BOY RUNS AWAY FROM C. B. AND C. FOR SPAGHETTI

Corned beef and cabbage versus spaghetti.

That is the basis of the problem confronting the Chelsea police. John Burchall, a husky lad of fourteen, ran away from corned beef and cabbage at his home at No. 98 Benefit street, Pawtucket.

In Chelsea he made friends with Paul Giordano, thirteen, who led him to his father's barn, prepared a sleeping place for him and smuggled delicious spaghetti to him until Mr. Giordano discovered his presence.

Giordano, although he had a large family and expects an addition soon, was taken with the Irish boy's funny personality and brogue, and is willing to adopt him. The police had to act according to regulations, however, and took the boy until word is received from his people in Pawtucket.

In the meantime John feasts on spaghetti taken to the police station by little Giordano, who work in shifts. He hopes his folks will not bother to come for him, because he loves that spaghetti.

HOOK AND LADDER STRIKES CHELSEA BOY

Isidore Rosenthall, 6 years old of No. 101 Popular street, was struck by the hook and ladder truck of the Chelsea Fire Department as it was answering a call at No. 25 Everett avenue, where a blaze raged in Rosenfeldt's restaurant. He was taken to the Chelsea Memorial Hospital by Chief David Hudson, who followed close behind the ladder. The boy is being held at the hospital for X-ray and diagnosis to determine the extent of his injuries. The fire damage was $25.

The Boston American Awheel

ABOVE is the title of a booklet just issued by this newspaper. It will be interesting to the business public generally, as well as to owners of and dealers in automobiles. We will be glad to send a copy to any address.

THE BOOKLET relates that representatives of the Boston American Merchandising Service Department recently called upon 1,000 owners of automobiles in Greater Boston for the purpose of learning what local daily newspapers they read.

The list of car-owners was a duplicate of official files of the Massachusetts Automobile Registration Department at the State House, being 1,000 consecutive registrants on those files who reside within a radius of fifteen miles from Boston City Hall.

There was no discrimination as to make or date of cars—no choice as to location of owners' residences within the fifteen-mile circuit. The names were taken just as they appear on the registration files.

This Is What the American Canvass Shows:

First—Of the 1,000 automobile owners interviewed 457 are regular readers of the Boston American; the total of all other Boston daily newspapers owning automobiles is 543. In other words, the American is read by MORE THAN 45 PER CENT. OF ALL Boston owners of automobiles.

Second—In seven of the twenty-five cities and towns comprising Greater Boston the American is read by more automobile owners than ALL THE OTHER Boston daily papers combined. In many of the other eighteen cities and towns the American's total of car owners is almost as large as the combined totals of ALL the other Boston daily papers.

Third—Our representatives secured the names of the automobiles listed. It was found that of ten highest-grade models forty cars are owned by American readers, as against 89 such cars owned by readers of the other papers. This indicates the class of men and women who read the American—shows that they have money to spend for THE BEST OF OTHER THINGS as well as cars.

HER LOVE LIKE THE "AVARICE A LION FEELS WHEN HUNGRY"

DIVORCE FOR CUBAN CONSUL

Wife of Senor Bribat Presents Passionate Notes Written by His Wife to Her Lovers

Chicago, Nov. 6.—His wife's love for another was so great that she likened it to "the avarice a lion feels when hungry," Fernando Bribat, senior Cuban vice-consul, declared in his suit for divorce.

The man who won the love of his beautiful young wife, Senor Bribat said, is a tall, handsome student from Cuba, named Albert Vaurrell.

Fervid love missives, which she exchanged with the youth whom he had taken into his home, were introduced by the Cuban official.

Vaurrell appeared in the court and declared that he did not know Bribat and the handsome Esperanza Santana were married. He was not permitted to testify.

HER SUBLIME CARESSES.

The student, however, was not the beauty's only lover, according to an affidavit introduced by Bribat which read:

"This is to certify that I, Florencio R. Diaz, did love Esperanza Santana Bribat, and my caresses from her were the most sublime of my life."

Other letters of Senora Bribat to Vaurrell in which she bared her soul were introduced. One of them read:

"I lived for you, Albert, and never was unfaithful. In return I was miserably deceived and felt a ferocious wish for vengeance. I do not know how far I would have gone if my love for you had not prevented me from doing that which I would have regretted forever, although you would have been to blame."

Senor Bribat declared that during his absence in Cuba on official duty, Vaurrell had established himself firmly in his wife's affections.

In another letter to Vaurrell, Bribat's wife speaks of her affections for him in a moralizing vein.

KNOWS WHAT LOVE IS.

"You think me a woman that neither loves nor feels, but some day you will know differently. I know how to love more than any other woman, because I know what love is and what it takes from me; because I know that love turns the higher and brings up the lower instincts; because from love comes all good and evil. While it brings undreamed of happiness, it also brings horrible desperation.

"If your love for me is really dead, I beg you with tears in my eyes to go away so that I will not even know where you are or what you are doing.

"I haven't had a second's pleasure that could compare with the times I spent with you, Albert, and I would have you remember that I am a woman whose disillusionment has broken my heart.

"For three nights I have been waiting for the kiss from you that never comes.

"I dream of you, and when I awake my eyes are flooded with tears."

Bribat was awarded a divorce from his wife, who, he said, was not living in Havana.

7 GIRLS, 4 MEN, TAKEN IN BACK BAY RAIDS

Seven girls and four men were arrested in Back Bay house raids and five of the former and two of the men were arraigned in court today. One of the raids was at No. 41 Astor street, and the other at No. 107 Queensberry street.

The officers entered suite 3 of the Astor street house and arrested Earl Lilgreen of Lynn, Arthur J. Sharpe of No. 41 Astor street and Lillian and Marion Turell of the Astor street address, charged with statutory offences.

Margaret Bell, eighteen years old, of No. 41 Astor street, and Margaret Merrybell, eighteen, and Rose Colton, nineteen, last two giving their address as No. 405 Columbus avenue, were charged with disorderly conduct, but were released by Lieutenant Mulligan of Back Bay station after a stern warning.

The Collins and Merrybell girls both wept as they left the station. The other four pleaded not guilty before Judge Ahearn in Roxbury Court, and their cases were continued to November 13.

Those arrested in the Queensberry street raid gave the following names: Harry Thomas, George Hamilton, Ethel Haynes and Alice Foster. They failed to appear in court today.

CIGARMAKERS ELECT ABRAHAMS AGAIN

Henry Abrahams, of the Cigarmakers' Union No. 97, was re-elected president of the Boston Central Labor Union at the semi-annual election held in Wells Memorial Hall.

There was considerable excitement in several contests for the various offices. Chief of these was the contest for the third eligible place on the board of trustees. Miss Loretta Baker, financial secretary of the Boston Telephone Operatoreis' Union, and John Doran of the Leather Workers' Union, were tied for the position with 116 votes each. A recount gave each 111 votes. Then Miss Baker withdrew in favor of Doran.

PRES. LOWELL URGES JUSTICE FOR NEGRO

"It is our business now not to cast the colored man aside, but to come and fetch him out," said President Lowell of Harvard University in an address in the interest of Hampton Institute, at the Old South Church.

"We, both of the North and South, owe much to the colored man. We owe him justice, that he shall be governed by the law and protected from violence. Criminal justice is slow in this country, its rules pedantic, and its constant failure is a scandal, but there is no justification for violence taking place."

W. Cameron Forbes presided at the meeting, and Mrs. Henry L. Schmelz, chairman of the Women's Inter-racial Committee of Virginia, spoke.

SAYS SCHOOLS ARE BARE OF RELIGION

"The public schools are almost completely stripped of religious elements," declared Dr. Luther A. Weigle of the Yale Divinity School in an address today to students of the Boston University School of Religious Education and Social Service at the annual celebration of "Presidents' Day" in Temple Street Church. "Avowed secularists or infidels have had little or nothing to do with it, and the Jews almost nothing. Christians have done it, and they have done it in the interest each of his own particular brand of Christianity, and the breaks between Catholic and Protestant has had more to do with it than the quarrel of the Protestant denominations with one another. The practical exclusion of religion from the public schools of this country is fraught with danger."

'TWAS A FINE SCHEME WHEN IT WORKED OUT

Sam Feldman of Springfield was given an indefinite sentence at the State Farm today when he appeared in the Roxbury Court on a charge of vagrancy.

Sam's method was to stop women on the street, tell them a hard luck story and collapse on the sidewalk. He was working his game on Wayland street and Patrolman Keyes thinking that the man was ill sent in a call for the ambulance. When the ambulance arrived Sam suddenly came to life and put up a spirited battle with the officer.

Day's News in Jazz Time

By MORTON BIRGE

A wild baboon is loose and free upon
Long Island shore
And many Greater New York folks are worried more and more,
They fear to venture out by day or
'neath the silv'ry moon
Lest they should be mistaken for the absentee baboon.
From out the land o' Bobbie Burns
there comes a canny Scot,
Who seeks to show our Volstead act is something that does NOT.
He looks for evidence to prove we're only "dry" in name,
And many doubtless will be glad to help him in the same.
Tonight the final rallies, then tomorrow brings the day
When all the patient voters have a chance to say their say.
Results may fit your fancy or, perchance, they'll get your goat,
At least you've no kick coming if you don't get out and vote.

AMERICAN REPORTER IS STRICKEN

Arthur T. Browne, veteran newspaperman and Cambridge representative of the Boston American, collapsed with heart failure while officiating at a football game at Russell Field, North Cambridge, and died before arrival at Cambridge City Hospital.

"Brownie" is dead. That is the oft-repeated phrase today. For everyone in the Boston American office and almost everyone in Cambridge knew Mr. Browne by the affectionate nickname "Brownie."

Mr. Browne was thirty-eight years old. He is survived by his wife who lives at No. 25 Fairfield street, North Cambridge. Two years ago, Stewart Browne, thirteen years old, their only son, was killed by an automobile near his home.

Mr. Browne began his journalistic career as a boy on the Boston Globe. Later, and for almost twenty years, he had been American representative in the College city.

He was prominent as a minstrel man in amateur theatricals, and was an active member of Cambridge Lodge of Elks and of the Cambridge branch of the Y. M. C. A.

Patrick J. Noonan, in a friendly poker game in a shanty of the Boston Transit Commission in Maverick square, had sunk $25 in the game.

He drew four queens and a king, and stood pat.

Joseph Fitzpatrick drew a flush and stood pat.

It was the biggest pot in the game. They tossed money and tossed until there was $16 in the pot, everybody else drifting out but Pat and Joe. Pat was planning to toss until he didn't have a dime left. Joe was willing. It looked like a historic hand.

Then the cops came.

This was the tale of woe told today by Pat to Judge Barnes in the East Boston District Court. Instead of sympathizing with him, Judge Barnes fined him $5 for gaming on Sunday. Joe and all the others were similarly fined.

But Pat felt he had been singled out by Miss Fortune, who is no relation to Dame Fortune.

BIG GAIN IN POPULAR VOTE IS EXPECTED BY DEMOCRATS

LEADERS OF G. O. P. WORRIED

By WILLIAM HARD

Copyright, 1922, by Consolidated News Service.

New York, Nov. 6.—The broad situation in politics is that the Democrats are going to make a great gain in total popular vote, especially in the States from Connecticut to Ohio and in the States lying along the border between the North and the South.

They hope this gain will be heavy enough to sweep several States away from the Republicans, but they know only that it will be heavy enough to sweep a lot of parts of States away from them.

IN INDUSTRIAL CENTRES.

These parts are congressional districts Republicans as well as Democrats expect that the Democratic popular vote this year—as contrasted with that of two years ago, will show a great surge forward in the industrial sections of Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Delaware, Pennsylvania and Ohio and also in the border States of Maryland, West Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee, Missouri and Oklahoma.

In those States all put together, the Republicans now have one hundred and forty-four seats. They themselves admit that fifty-five of those seats are in danger. The Democrats claim that instead of fifty-five the number is seventy.

Assuming it to be sixty, and assuming that the Democrats won those sixty, the Republican majority in the House would be reduced by one hundred and twenty in consequence of the results in the Middle Eastern and border State territory alone.

DEMOCRATS AGGRESSIVE.

In any case it seems certain that it is in that territory that the big reduction is likely to happen. Scattered reductions will happen elsewhere.

A few weeks ago both sides were approaching the view that the total number of Republican seats lost would be about seventy-four. This would be reducing the Republican majority in the House of Representatives by 148 and would bring it down from its present high level of 170 to the low but sufficient level of twenty-two.

Since that time the Democrats have become more aggressive and the Republicans have become more resistent both in their labors and in their prophecies. Politicians can do more than other people to carry elections, but they lose just as much money as other people in betting on results.

Harding Candidate Has Big Fight in Ohio

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Nov. 6.—Senatorial campaigns in nine States of the Middle West and today as the issues in tomorrow's off-year election go to the people.

The wind-up finds six United States Senators from Central States seeking re-election. They are:

Republicans — Townsend (Michigan), Kellogg (Minnesota), LaFollette (Wisconsin).

Democrats—Hitchcock (Nebraska), Reed (Missouri), Pomerene (Ohio).

The primary defeats of Senator New in Indiana and McCumber in North Dakota left the Republican party in those States with new aspirants to the Senate. Former Senator Beveridge, a Progressive leader in the days of Bull Moose activities, is the standard bearer of Indiana Republicans in his campaign to go back to the upper branch of Congress.

Lynn J. Frazier, former non-partisan League Governor of North Dakota, bears the Republican label in that State for the McCumber seat.

REPUBLICAN REVOLT.

In Iowa, where Smith W. Brookhart is the Republican nominee for the Senatorial toga which former Senator Kenyon exchanged for the ermine of a Federal judge, the closing campaign found a more or less organized Republican revolt against the Brookhart candidacy. A somewhat similar condition prevails in North Dakota, where there is considerable Republican antipathy to Frazier.

In Missouri, a considerable shattering of party lines was apparent in the Senatorial campaign, with Senator James A. Reed drawing opposition from drys and Wilson Democrats, at the same time relying on many Republican vote to desert Reginald Brewster on the wet and dry issue.

The Harding administration is the big issue in Ohio, the President's home State, with prohibition also a question, as the State votes on a beer and wine referendum. Congressman Fess, champion of the Harding forces as the Republican nominee, is at the end of one of the most intense campaigns in the country on party issues in his contest with Senator Pomerene.

The Nebraska contest between Senator Hitchcock and R. B. Howell is largely one of party principles, with a certain amount of wet and dry sentiment figuring.

Two women from the Middle West, Mrs. Annie Dickie Olesen in Minnesota and Mrs. J. J. Hooper in Wisconsin, both Democrats, are among the senatorial aspirants.

CONGRESS BATTLES.

Senator La Follette, during the closing days of the campaign, left Wisconsin and went into Minnesota and North Dakota, where he took the stump for Henrick Shipstead, the Farmer-Labor candidate, against Senator Kellogg, and for Frazier.

Illinois, without a senatorial contest, has witnessed congressional campaign battles of considerable intensity in some districts, with Democrats hoping to recapture outposts lost in the Harding landslides of 1920, and making a strenuous effort to upset the G. O. P. in Republican strongholds.

Chief among the issues in Illinois is the legislative campaign with Governor Small and Mayor Thompson of Chicago as leaders of their faction of the Republican party, urging support of candidates, irrespective of party, who will go along with the Small Thompson program.

Smith Victory in New York Indicated

New York, Nov. 6.—Alfred E. Smith, Democrat, former Governor of New York, will be returned victorious over Nathan L. Miller, Republican incumbent, in the gubernatorial election tomorrow, according to unofficial summaries completed throughout the State.

A heavy slump in the Miller vote up-state is forecast.

The vote given Charles P. Steinmetz, Farmer-Labor candidate for State engineer, because of his unsurpassed record in engineering circles, may be amazing.

If Smith gets the big lead that is expected this would carry the entire ticket and probably both Houses of the Legislature.

The election may have a bearing on the next presidential campaign. If Miller should carry the State by a good majority, which seems improbable, some quarters believe he might head the 1924 Republican ticket. It is obvious that the G. O. P. will not consider as presidential timber a man who cannot carry New York State with its large electoral vote.

Charge Attempt to Buy Votes in Ohio

Columbus, Ohio, Nov. 6.—An election scandal in which one man has been arrested and four others are sought on warrants charging them with the attempted purchase of the absentee votes at Pike County realdents now living in Scioto and Ross counties today featured the eleventh hour of Ohio's strenuous political campaign.

Former Judge A. S. Blair is assisting a citizens' protective committee in Pike County with prosecutions.

Fourteen Congressional candidates have been classed as "wets" by the Anti-Saloon League, and twenty-eight have been classed as "drys."

Mrs. Virginia Darlington Greene of Cleveland is an independent candidate for United States Senator, and Common Pleas Judge Florence E. Allen of Cleveland is an independent candidate for judge of the State Supreme Court.

Strike Figures in New Hampshire Vote

Manchester, N. H., Nov. 6.—The prolonged textile strike, still in effect in the great Amoskeag Mills of this city and many of the smaller mills of the State as a protest against a 54-hour week, although the wage cut of last winter has been rescinded in most cases, will figure in the election tomorrow.

The Democratic platform pledges enactment of a law to limit to forty eight hours a week the working time in industries employing women and children. The Republicans oppose State legislation to this effect at present but favor a Federal eight-hour day law and investigation of the labor situation in New Hampshire by a fact-finding committee.

Hull Sees Democratic Win; G. O. P. Forecast Guarded

Washington, Nov. 6.—A widespread Democratic victory Tuesday was predicted by Cordell Hull, chairman of the Democratic National Committee. Mr. Hull says:

"A greater and more widespread Democratic victory will be registered on Tuesday than I at first predicted. The trend of public sentiment is steadily toward the Democratic party, as shown by reports from every section.

"Despite the Republican promises of 1920, the people are heavily burdened with the high cost of living and high taxes.

"No Republican promises have been kept except to the special interests which prey upon the people, and the multi-millionaire and profiteering classes who have had their taxes reduced."

Washington, Nov. 6.—On the eve of the congressional election John T. Adams, chairman of the Republican National Committee, sees reasons for confining himself to a modest anticipation of the results. In contrast to the usual extravagant claims, Mr. Adams is satisfied with prediction a Republican House by a margin registered in a "normal Republican year."

The statement bears evidence of preparation for the expected despatation of Republican House members in the face of the President's appeal for their election. Mr. Adams says:

"The Republican majority in the present Senate is twenty-four. This majority will be increased as a result of the election Tuesday.

"The Republican majority in the next House will be that of a normal Republican year. In 1918 the Republicans won a notable victory as the result of which they controlled the House by a majority of forty-one."

SELL CHALMERS CORP ASSETS IN DECEMBER

Detroit, Nov. 6.—Federal Judge Tuttle has set a date in December for a receiver's sale of Chalmers Motor Corporation assets. Maxwell Motor Corporation, because it holds more than 99 per cent. of Chalmers serial notes, with an aggregate face value of $2,800,000, and holding other claims against Chalmers aggregating about $4,000,000, appears to be in a favorable position to make a successful bid for the property.

The court has set an upset price at a figure slightly under $2,000,000. The receiver states he will employ the present Chalmers force and continue operating in the usual way until the date of sales.

HAVERHILL MAN DIES AT HIS WORKBENCH

Haverhill, Nov. 6.—Shepherd S. Ham, seventy years old, of Arlington street, dropped dead today at his workbench at the C. K. Fox Shoe Factory. He was a well-known Spiritualist. Death was due to heart failure. Ham, who was a picturesque figure, weighing over 240 pounds and standing over six feet, had been a shoe cutter twenty-five years.

DECLARES U. S. 'PERSECUTES' COMMUNISTS

Moscow, Nov. 6.—(By International News Service)—Count von Brockdorff Rantzau, who resigned from the German peace delegation at Paris rather than sign the treaty of Versailles, today was installed as German Ambassador, first accredited plenipotentiary from any European country to Russia.

Petrograd, Nov. 6 (By the Associated Press.)—The "persecution of Communists in the United States" was discussed today at the Third Internationale annual congress here.

Addressing delegates from all parts of the world, Zinoviieff, of the Soviet Central Committee, declared that in the United States the Bourgoisie did not hesitate to sentence Communists to prison from fifteen to twenty years for merely adhering to their cause.

The chief aim of the Communists in the future, said Zinoviieff, will be to fight all other Socialist parties. He said he considered them as the reactionary force of International Bourgeoisie.

Reviewing the year's progress, the Soviet leader said he considered a full victory for communism, was assured—eventually. Communism has become so strong, he contended, that it is no longer afraid of capitalistic attacks or of international reaction.

"We guarantee the proletariat of the world that sooner or later we shall bring them to the expected goal," he said. "Russian workers impatiently await to see the first spark of the uprising blaze in other countries."

ARREST VT. FARMER FOR SHOOTING BOYS

Cambridge, Vt., Nov. 6.—Abner Davis, farmer, was arrested today charged with assault with intent to kill four youths Hallowe'en night. The boys shot are Gerald McGeown, fifteen; James Moran, twenty four, Wort McDuffey and George Bartlett eighteen. They were members of a party of twelve who paraded the Davis house Hallowe'en night. They had no intention of molesting the farmer, they said, and without warning Davis began to fire from the yard. Two of the boys Davis shot—McGeown and Moran—are in the Fanny Allen Hospital.

THROWS JUG OUT OF WINDOW; ARRESTED

Casting a jug of synthetic brew out of a window as the police arrived did not save Catherina John son of East Weymouth from being arrested charged with violation of the liquor laws. Five men found on the premises also were arrested charged with drunkenness.

WOMAN STRUCK AND ROBBED NEAR SCHOOL

St. Johnsbury, Vt., Nov. 6.—While returning home from a visit with friends Mrs. Thomas Davidson, passing through the school common, was struck from behind and robbed by an unknown man. Her assailant leaped from behind some bushes grasped her by the arms and struck her on the back of the head. The thief took Mrs. Davidson's wrist watch. She was discovered in a semi-hysterical condition by Dr. C. A. Crampton, who took her home as he is in a dangerous condition. No trace of the thug has been found.

WOMAN AND ESCORT BATTLE OVER RAZOR

Mrs. Rita Fatalo of St. Botolph street, Back Bay, and Harry Pollock of No. 8 Bowdoin street, West End, were arraigned today, charged with assault and battery upon each other. They were arrested following a fight in which a razor was used. Pollack, according to the police had driven Mrs. Fatalo to her home at No. 177 St. Botolph street, and witnessed a desire to come in. "You can't come in, my husband will kill you," Mrs. Fatalo is said to have replied. Pollack is said to have held her in the auto. Then the razor came into play.

Bangor, Me., Nov. 6.—Burglars wrecked the safe in the office of the Eastern Steamship Lines, Inc., here and took about $200 in cash. A watchman discovered the break. It is thought the burglars escaped in a boat.

Burglars also entered the office of the Graphic Theatre and made an unsuccessful attempt to blow the safe.

YOU MUST DO ALL YOUR OWN CLIMBING

Industry, Self-Denial, Enthusiasm, Courage, Patience, Sobriety, Hope, Health, and Honesty Make for Success, Wealth and Happiness.

ARTHUR BRISBANE
Whose daily editorials reach more than 5,000,000 homes.

THIS IS THE COUNTRY of "chances;" we hear endless talk about it. Talk varies from simple advice concerning Lincoln, who had only a few books, to show chimneys, but made the best use of them, all the way up to complicated recipes for succeeding, given out by gentlemen of get-rich-quick schemes.

To tell a young man that he needs certain qualities is wasting your time—except so you may direct attention to the possibility of developing in himself the essentials of success.

The late Collis P. Huntington, asked to advise a young man, said: "Take ten thousand dollars and go into the business of raising rubber trees." The young man said: "I have not got ten thousand dollars." Mr. Huntington said: "Well, go and get it before you come to me for advice."

The great railroad man's attitude is much like that of the ordinary adviser of the young. He says: "Be honest, be industrious, be self-denying, be courageous, patient, sober"—but he does not tell him how he can be these things.

To make a real success you must have, first of all, industry—the faculty for hard work. That quality is greater than all others put together. And you can cultivate that quality in yourself.

Self-denial is a matter of self-education.

Instead of putting your mind on the question, "How can I amuse myself or dress myself?" say to yourself, "What can I do without?"

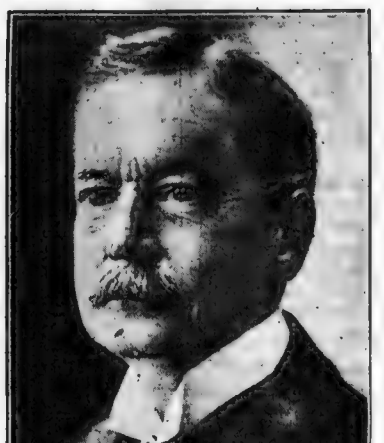
Enthusiasm is one great factor in success. It is important especially because it helps a man to get a start.

Unfortunately, enthusiasm is a quality most difficult to cultivate. It is a part of a man's own self, like his dark hair or regular features, or wide shoulders. Yet even enthusiasm can be cultivated, and it should be cultivated.

Enthusiasm is largely a matter of vitality, health and strength. Get up in the morning after eight hours' good sleep, and you will be enthusiastic—ready to attack any proposition. Get up with five hours' sleep after a night foolishly spent, and you will have no strength for enthusiasm. Cultivate your strength, save it, and train yourself to look enthusiastically and hopefully at the world, scorning its difficulties.

Honesty has been talked of ever since the writing of the Ten Commandments, and long before. Be sure that real success comes only to the honest man, to the man who thinks and works and treats other men honestly.

To the Women of Massachusetts



A FEW WORDS ABOUT WILLIAM A. GASTON FROM HIS WIFE

It is with reluctance that I am addressing this statement to the women of my State. I have never been active in politics. But the women's committee, working for my husband's election, ask me to help and I feel that if I can draw a picture of him, such as his family have always seen, it might influence some women who are in doubt.

My husband's real reason for wishing to enter the Senate is far different from what many people seem to think. It is because he feels that he can be of real service to the people of his State and his nation.

He has never failed to answer the call of public service. In spite of the law interests and trusteeships that he has always been obliged to look after, he has done as much public service as any private citizen in Massachusetts. Much of his charitable work has always been a sealed book and must remain so. He gives his time freely to matters of public concern which many men hesitate about giving. I have never known my husband to refuse assistance if he felt that he could be of aid to a good cause.

He can handle more work than any man I have ever seen. He never loses his patience. He never appears to get tired. I'll admit that I have seen him, especially during those dark days of the war, as the fate of Paris hung in the balance, when he seemed to be discouraged, but I never heard him admit it. Maybe it was because our two sons were "over there" that he always spoke with such fine optimism.

He disagrees with his opponent on matters of great public welfare. Strange as it may sound, and I say it with the utmost frankness, he has always been right and the Senior Senator from our State has often been wrong.

The duties of Senator are not intricate, at least, not intricate to a man of vision and keen business sense, such as my husband has shown himself to be. He will enter the Senate as well equipped to do the constructive work of the Senate as any man we have ever sent to Washington.

His work during the Liberty Loan Drives helped to make this State one of the banner districts of the country. Among his many charitable works, he is Treasurer of the Red Cross.

I wish I could make the women of Massachusetts see him as his family see him, to know his value as a broad-minded man of courage and determination to do what is right. Then he would receive the vote of every thoughtful woman in the Commonwealth.

I hope that this statement may help him in his campaign. It seems to be the only way I can help. That is why I write it, and I know that every woman in Massachusetts will appreciate my motive.

Cordially and Sincerely Yours,

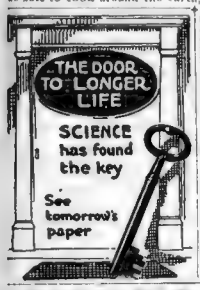
TESLA INVENTS MACHINE TO LOOK RIGHT THROUGH THE EARTH

BOSTONIAN WOULD BE ABLE TO SEE MAN IN CHINA

By WALTER VOGDES.

Copyright, 1922, by Cosmopolitan News Service.

New York, Nov. 6.—Look right through the earth! Dr. Nicola Tesla, eminent scientist, narrowed his gray eyes and asserted man will soon be able to do that very thing. He will also be able to look around the earth, he said.



Mr. Boston will be able to sit in his office and talk to his business associates in Australia or China, the doctor explained. As he talks he will observe the gestures, the facial play of the man at the other end of a wireless phone.

"I have invented a machine," said Dr. Tesla, "fashioned after the human eye, which will perceive objects in their true shape, irrespective of distance and intervening obstacles."

On the sixteenth floor of the St. Regis, Dr. Tesla has his workrooms, also his home. In those workrooms are fantastic machines. None is stranger than the eye machine behind its creation lie thirty years of observation and study. It is built after the fashion of the delicate human eye. It becomes dynamic under electric pressure, and will send light, Dr. Tesla said, through any substance and to any distance on this earth.

Television is the word used to describe the new science of unlimited vision. It bears no relation to the transmitting of photographic impressions by wire or radio.

"The problem is very difficult to solve," said Dr. Tesla, because the apparatus must be one of great complexity. It amounts to producing something akin to the eye which can perceive objects in their true shape irrespective of distance and intervening obstacles.

"I have accomplished two of the necessary steps and one more task remains to be performed. I am confident the practical stage will be reached soon and that all limitations as to vision on this globe will be removed."

Dr. Tesla also told of an invention which, he asserts, will make it possible to create lakes and rivers in waste places and so irrigate the deserts of the earth. He declares that the soundness of the underlying principle of his rain-producing machine had been demonstrated and installation of the apparatus will assure the opening of millions of unused acres to agriculture.

"It will be in our power to draw from the oceans as much water as desired and create big lakes and mighty rivers. All the work will be done by the sun without the slightest effort on our part and a comparatively infinitesimal amount of energy will be sufficient to control this life-sustaining process."

Color Line Victim

GEORGE CHANDLER.

SOUTHERN TEAM BARS NEGRO AT PEABODY FEED

Peabody, Nov. 6.—A sudden flare-up of race prejudice deprived 19-year-old George Chandler, colored football player on the Peabody High School team, of his right to sit with his mates at the banquet which the citizens' committee gave the local athletes and the Charleston, S. C., High School team.

This banquet, which came after the intersectional football game the two teams played here, had as guests of honor the members of both squads and the visiting spectators from Charleston.

DEPRIVED OF TICKET.

And it went off without a hitch—except that the southerners, when they sat down to dine, informed the committee they would walk out if Chandler were allowed to sit at the table.

So Chandler, when he presented himself at City Hall, where the banquet was being held, was deprived of his ticket and told to go home as he was not wanted.

Chandler is a letter man, and plays in the line, although he did not get into the game against Charleston. He is a sophomore at the high school.

He left the hall, crying bitterly from disappointment.

Decision to bar him from the dining hall was made by the Citizen's Committee, after the seventy-eight members of the South Carolina delegation voiced their protest.

DE GOGORZA AND MISS BRASLAU IN RECITAL

The combination of Miss Sophie Braslau and Emilio De Gogorza in recital yesterday afternoon at Symphony Hall brought out an audience that filled the hall.

The program was practically doubled in length by the encores that were added by both the contralto and the baritone.

The most splendid accompaniments were played for Miss Braslau by Mrs. Edith Cave-Cole, who has an unusual perception of the value at the piano in reference to the voice of a singer. Miss Helen Winslow accompanied for Mr. Gogorza.

The audience seemed divided as to its enjoyment of the singers, giving Miss Braslau and Mr. De Gogorza about an even share of the heartiest applause.

One was once more reminded of the charm of personality which has made Emilio De Gogorza one of the most popular baritones before the American public today. Equally true is this of Miss Braslau—if anything, her voice seemed bigger and broader and more lovely in its velvety tones than last season.

Two of the most enjoyed encores that Miss Braslau gave were "Mon Lil Bateau" and "My Lindy eLou," both by Strickland. This type of things the contralto does delightfully.

ANASTASIA ADDS TO GREEK REFUGEE FUND

Athens, Nov. 6.—The gift by Princess Anastasia, the former Mrs. William B. Leeds, of 500,000 drachma to the Greek refugee fund, and of 2,000,000 drachma by Sir Basil Zaharoff, the international banker, for the same purpose, was announced today.

DRUG ADDICT PROMINENT AT WELLESLEY

Chicago, Nov. 6.—Four years ago Mrs. Doris Clemente Wilson was graduated from Wellesley College, where she was prominent as a student. Today she is under arrest as a shoplifter and is a confirmed drug addict, according to her own story. Since her college days Mrs. Wilson has been confined in a Kansas City Hospital, where she acquired a craving for morphine. She, inherited $40,000 and has been arrested twice. She was taken into custody several months ago on a charge of forging checks. She pleaded guilty and told the judge that her craving for drugs had driven her to break the law.

HAVERHILL FIREMAN OVERCOME BY GAS

Haverhill, Nov. 6.—Andrew Carambatses of No. 1 Broadway, a fireman of the Venus Confectionery Company on Winter street, was overcome by coal gas while building a fire in the basement of the factory early today.

Carambatses escaped from the furnace room, staggering to the front of the building. He collapsed just outside the office. He was taken to the Gale Hospital, where he remains unconscious, but is pronounced out of danger.

CITIZENS SEIZE FUEL IN COAL TOWN RAID

Scranton, Pa., Nov. 6.—Ten school buildings in the borough of Olyphant, closed for two weeks because of coal shortage, although in the heart of the anthracite region, were able to open their doors to the 2,500 pupils today, for a throng of citizens, led by Burgess P. B. Dennesey, yesterday marched on the Delaware & Hudson Railroad and confiscated 120 tons of coal from its cars.

The borough's nine churches also were provided with fuel as a result of the raid which followed refusal of coal companies to sell their product in the borough.

Any developments today were expected to come from the Delaware & Hudson Company, although there was talk of other raids to confiscate fuel for use in stores, business places and private homes if the coal companies continue to refuse to sell.

The people of Olyphant contend that they exercised the legitimate police power of the community in making the raid. For weeks they had endeavored in vain to buy the coal.

PONZI APPEALS TO FRIENDS FOR CASH

SEEKS AID TO CARRY ON TRIAL

Ex-Money Wizard Says He Needs Funds to Pay Witnesses for His Defence

Charles Ponzi, who a few months ago had millions of dollars paid in by investors in his 50 per cent. in ninety days scheme, today sent out a hurry call for financial help.

In the Superior Court, where Ponzi is on trial, he handed reporters the following:

"Please send S. O. S. through all papers to friends that I need funds to pay for my witnesses. Contributions will be welcome and will be amply rewarded as soon as circumstances warrant."

The S. O. S. message was given after the testimony of Charles F. Rittenhouse, a certified public accountant, had testified concerning the rapid growth of the Ponzi business.

$32,000 BUSINESS.

From fifteen investors who had put up $870 in December, 1919, the business grew in eight months to a total investment of $9,582,691, Rittenhouse testified. When the business went into receivers' hands in August, he said, there were $14,756 in Ponzi notes issued against the investments by subscribers.

In December, 1919, the business as started by fifteen investors who put up $870. They received notes at 40 per cent. interest which at maturity called for the payment of $1,218.

In January three more investors put up $900, for which they were given notes calling for the payment of $1,260, with interest at 40 per cent. Ponzi began to pay 50 per cent. interest the following month and maintained that rate of interest thereafter until the business was closed, Rittenhouse said.

In February 37 investors paid $5,200 into the Ponzi coffers, for which they got coupons promising them $7,935. From that time on the business began to go up by leaps and bounds. In March there were 110 investors. They handed Ponzi agents $28,724 and got back notes calling for $43,117. The following month 471 persons invested $141,671 for notes calling for payment of $212,506. In May there was a grand rush of folk—1,525 of them gave up money. Into the Ponzi offices during the merry month of May there was poured a golden stream which totaled $442,515, for which notes for $663,772 were issued.

JUNE RECORD MONTH.

In June the business struck a pace that exceeded the wildest expectations of Ponzi. There were 7,848 men and women who gave Ponzi $7,546,944 in cash. In return he gave them lithographed certificates promising to pay back $3,820,407.

July was the high peak before the crash—the banner month. They poured payments into the offices at the rate of almost a thousand a day. In all, 20,130 persons invested the huge sum of $6,415,675, and received notes calling for $9,624,538.

When the business closed Mr. Ponzi had issued notes for $14,374,755 as promised payment for investments of $8,582,691.

Money paid in by investors and notes given out by Ponzi represents the only business of which there was a record, Rittenhouse testified.

Mr. Rittenhouse testified that examinations of the Ponzi books showed that from December, 1919 until the business was closed in August, 1920, Ponzi was insolvent. He said the books did not show that Ponzi was solvent at any time.

DOW REVEL WARRANTS SOUGHT

Mrs. Raab's Lawyers to Have Another Conference With Saltonstall Tomorrow

By BERT FORD

Criminal action, it was announced today, will undoubtedly result from the sharp dispute between the guests of the Saturday night revel held at the home of Carl P. Dow on Rowe street, Melrose.

Counsel for Mrs. Mary O'Leary Raab, who claims that she was attacked at the party on October 21, and that she overheard secrets concerning the murder of Fairelman James Arthur Preston of Wakefield in April, 1921, will hold a second conference with District Attorney Saltonstall tomorrow or wednesday.

WARRANTS HINTED.

It was hinted today that warrants may be applied for against five or six guests at the Dow party, charging them with assault on Mrs. Raab, the twenty-year-ou complainant.

Mrs. Raab's three attorneys claim that she has furnished sufficient new evidence to warrant a re-opening of the Preston case. They are marking time pending a decision by District Attorney Saltonstall.

Counter charges made by Mr. and Mrs. John A. McIntyre, of No. 268 Highland avenue, Somerville, and Mrs. Raab have brought matters to a head. Both sides are eager to go before the Grand Jury and tell their stories.

WOMAN DENIES CHARGE.

Mrs. McIntyre has called Mrs. Raab an liqnostor. She charged that Mrs. Raab was so intoxicated at the party that she became obnoxious and had to be ejected from the Dow home. She denies that any mention was made of the Preston murder that Saturday night. She claims that when she told Mrs. Raab "that she knew too much" that she did not refer to the Preston murder, but merely meant that Mrs. Raab "was too fresh."

Mrs. Raab replies that she expected such a general denial. She said today that she was camouflage to conceal the true facts in the case. She accused Mrs. McIntire of falsehood as Mrs. McIntire had accused her.

"When Mrs. McIntire said that I tore my own clothing she forgets that I could not kick myself in the back or be likely to injure my own knee or shoulder," said Mrs Raab. "Mr. Saltonstall's young woman secretary saw the bruises on my body when I visited his office with my attorneys last week."

OTHER COUPLE FOUND.

Identification of Mr. and Mrs. John A. McIntire of Somerville as the mysterious "Mary and John," was quickly followed by identification of the second Somerville couple who attended the Dow party with the McIntires. They are Mr. and Mrs. George H. Robinson of Narcosia Chambers, No. 109 Highland avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Robinson informed a Boston American reporter that no mention of the Preston murder was made at any time during the night of the Dow party and that Mrs. Raab was not attacked and that her story was a "complete fabrication."

Writes His Will on Daughter's Photo and Kills Self

New York, Nov. 6.—After writing his will on the back of a photograph of his daughter, Jacob Kaskel, 69 years old, who lived in a furnished room at No. 3 Third avenue, turned on the gas and two hours later was found dead.

His daughter, Mrs. Dubarry, lives at No. 313 Haven avenue. Kaskel begged her forgiveness and said she had been his inspiration since the death of his wife.

SHOWN IN TIGHTS, SEEKS $100,000

Chicago, Nov. 6.—Shocked when she found herself pictured wearing tights in a magazine advertisement Marian O'Reilly, beautiful artists' model, brought suit for $100,000 against a corporation selling a system of physical culture.

Miss O'Reilly, who is declared to be the "most beautiful model in the world," said that she was shocked to find herself pictured in tights.

"I never wear tights; in fact, I never posed for the illustrations," she announced.

"The photograph was obtained without my knowledge or consent."

FORCED TO LEAVE WAKEFIELD, HE SAYS

Edward Holmes, claiming to be a detective from the South, who said he knew James Preston, the murdered Wakefield police officer when serving with the American forces in France, charges he was ordered out of Wakefield, by Chief of Police James Follard.

Holmes asserts he was looking up some clues at Beebe lane, the scene of the murder, when he was accosted by an officer and a plain clothes man. They asked him his name and told him that the chief wanted to see him. They took him to the station where he was questioned by the chief, who told the two officers to escort him to the car and see that he left town. The chief would say nothing on the matter.

ELOPERS WED AND PART IN MYSTERY

The elopement of Ernest G. A. Isenbeck, son of a Boston real estate operator, and Miss Josephine A. Antel, Cleveland debutante, has just become known with registry of both young people at New York hotels.

But they are separated and considerable mystery is attached to their romance. Upon arrival in New York they were married at the Little Church Around the Corner on Friday morning.

Today they are separated and no reason can be learned. The bride is with her parents at Hotel Biltmore, while the groom is in lonely bachelor quarters at the Commodore.

Isenbeck admitted the marriage, but refused to talk further. The parents of the bride denied themselves to interviewers and kept their twenty-year-old daughter closely guarded.

The groom's father, with whom the groom resides at Peabody, Mass denied all knowledge of the affair. The records disclose that the wedding took place at the Little Church secretly with the Rev. Dwight F. Cameron officiating.

FRANK E. WEBSTER DIES IN HYDE PARK

Frank E. Webster, taxidermist of No. 16 Reddy avenue, Hyde Park died today at his home following a long illness. He was 73 years old and is survived by a wife and son. The funeral services will be held Thursday. Mr. Webster was a member of the Hyde Park Board of Trade, the Hyde Park Lodge Knights of Pythias and he was president of the Hazelwood Improvement association.

'ADAM AND EVE' ROW WITH MAN ON STREET CAR

Women screamed and some twenty-five passengers became wildly excited when Mr. and Mrs. Carl Sutter, famed as the "Adam and Eve" of the Maine woods, engaged in a verbal and fistic altercation with a man on a Huntington avenue street car.

When police arrived the third person to the dispute had escaped. According to "Adam," a man called George Rose, whom he knows slightly, insulted Mrs. Sutter and himself. He refused to tell the police the nature of the insult.

Sutter then demonstrated as did Mrs. Sutter and Rose, alleged [illegible] on the face. Sutter returned to show and then [illegible] Then the police appeared because of the [illegible] of the Sutters. The other refused to grant a warrant, but told [illegible] while that they might make complaint to the court later.

300 ABSENT FROM HUB TO CAST VOTES

The election commissioners are counting on having at least 300 absentee voters' ballots to count tomorrow night. It is believed that these ballots will come from all parts of the country. One application has been sent to San Diego, two to Los Angeles and one to San Francisco. It is said that more than 100 absentee ballots have already been received.

Woman of Budapest Offers to Trade a Baby for Goose

By Associated Press.

Budapest, Nov. 6.—A woman was arrested today in the poultry market here while trying to sell her six-months-old baby. Evidently in deepest despair, she offered the child for the price of a goose. She said:

"Surely someone will pay the price in poultry for a good, healthy child."

A man was making an offer to the woman when the police interfered.

PINNED TO POST BY LOCOMOTIVE

Martin Leonard, fifty years old, foreman of the firetenders at the Southampton street roundhouse of the New Haven Railroad, sustained a crushed chest today. He is at the City Hospital. His condition is serious.

Leonard had finished cleaning a firebox in an engine. He was stepping from the engine when it started up, crushing him between the side of the locomotive and a steel post in the roundhouse.

SOMERVILLE BOY KILLED BY AUTO

Six-year-old Eugene B. Croy, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis T. Croy, of No. 24 Thorpe street, Somerville, was struck and fatally injured by an automobile on Banks street, Somerville, while returning home from St. Joseph's Church where he had attended the service of blessing of the children in conjunction with the closing of the four week mission conducted in the church by the Jesuit Fathers.

The boy was crossing the street when the automobile, going up Hamlet street, operated by John McLaughlin, of 30 Hill street, Quincy, struck and knocked him down.

SUPPRESSED BY JAPANESE GOVERNMENT

This startling and intensely interesting story of the Cherry Blossom Kingdom, telling what the Japanese think of women, was suppressed by the Japanese government. The expose has stunned Europe and opened the eyes of the world to what has really been going on. John Paris, the author, was an English diplomat there for years.

CHAPTER I.

An Anglo-Japanese Marriage.

Shibukaro ka — Whether the fruit be bitter
Shiranedo kaki no — Or whether it be sweet,
Hatsu-chigiri. — The first bite tells.

THE marriage of Captain the Honourable Geoffrey Barrington and Miss Asako Fujinami was an outstanding event in the season of 1913. It was bizarre, it was picturesque, it was charming, it was socially and politically important, it was everything that could appeal to the taste of London society, which, as the season advances, is apt to become jaded by the monotonous process of Hymen in High Life and by the continued demand for costly wedding presents.

Once again Society paid for its seat at St. George's and for its glass of champagne and crumb of cake with gifts of gold and silver and precious stones enough to smother the tiny bride; but for once in a way it paid with a good heart, not merely in obedience to convention, but for the sake of participating in a unique and delightful scene, a touching ceremony, the plighting of East and West.

Would the Japanese heiress be married in a kimono with flowers and fans fixed in an elaborate coiffure? Thus the ladies were wondering as they craned their necks to catch a glimpse of the bride's procession up the aisle; but, although some even stood on hassocks and pew seats, few were able to distinguish for certain. She was so very tiny. At any rate, her six tall bridesmaids were arrayed in Japanese dress, lovely white creations embroidered with birds and foliage.

It is hard to distinguish anything in the perennial twilight of St. George's; a twilight symbolic of the new lives which emerge from its Corinthian portico into that married world about which so much has been guessed and so little is known.

One thing, however, was visible to all as the pair moved together up to the altar rails, and that was the size of the bridegroom as contrasted with the smallness of his bride. He looked like a great rough bear and she like a silver fairy. There was something intensely pathetic in the curve of his broad shoulders as he bent over the little hand to place in its proud position the diminutive golden circlet which was to unite their two lives.

As they left the church the organ was playing "K'miga-ya," the Japanese national hymn. Nobody recognized it, except the few Japanese who were present, but Lady Everington, with that exaggeration of the suitable which is so typical of her, had insisted on its choice as a voluntary. Those who had heard the tune before and half remembered it decided that it must come from the "Mikado"; and one stern dowager went so far as to protest to the rector for permitting such a tune to desecrate the sacred edifice.

Outside the church stood the bridegroom's brother officers. Through the gleaming passage of swordblades, smiling and happy, the strangely assorted couple entered upon the way of wedlock, as Mr. and Mrs. Geoffrey Barrington—the shoot of the Fujinami grafted on to one of the oldest of our noble families.

"Are her parents here?" one lady was asking her neighbor.

"Oh, no; they are both dead, I believe."

"What kind of people are they, do you know? Do Japs have an aristocracy and society and all that kind of thing?"

"I'm sure I don't know. I shouldn't think so. They don't look real enough."

"She is very rich, anyhow," a third lady intervened. "I've heard they are big landowners in Tokyo, and cousins of Admiral Togo's."

The opportunity for closer inspection of this curiosity was afforded by the reception given at Lady Everington's mansion in Carlton House Terrace. Of course, everybody was there. The great ballroom was draped with hangings of red and white, the national colors of Japan. Favors of the same bright hues were distributed among the guests. Trophies of Union Jacks and Rising Suns were grouped in corners and festooned above windows and doorways.

Lady Everington was bent upon giving an international importance to her protege's marriage. Her original plan had been to invite the whole Japanese community in London, and so to promote the popularity of the Anglo-Japanese Alliance by making the most of this opportunity for social fraternizing. But where was the Japanese community in London? Nobody knew. Perhaps there was none. There was the Embassy, of course, which arrived smiling, fluent, and almost too well-mannered. But Lady Everington had been unable to push very far her program for international amenities. There were strange little yellow men from the city, who had charge of ships and banking interests; there were strange little yellow men from beyond the West End, who studied the Fine Arts, and lived, it appeared, on nothing. But the hostess could find no ladies at all, except Countess Saita and the Embassy dames.

Monsieur and Madame Murata from Paris, the bride's

SHADE AND PERRY BATTLE FOR BOUT WITH MICKEY WALKER

CRACK AT NEW WELTER CHAMP AIM OF RIVALS

By JACK CONWAY.

Dave Shade will be back in our midst tonight. He battles Jack Perry in a ten-round bout at the Arena A. C.'s show.

It should be a hard, tough fight. Anybody Perry faces has to step lively or collide with a haymaker. The Pittsburgh welterweight isn't the fanciest boxer in the world. But he can hit, which makes him dangerous.

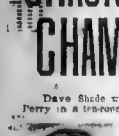
Perry has two decisions to his credit over Eddie Shevlin. He was also recently credited with a newspaper decision over Shade at Milwaukee.

As a verdict will be rendered tonight each man will battle hard for victory.

Eddie Shevlin has signed with the Arena Club to-mor. the winner of the Shade-Perry conflict. This is another reason why the milling is sure to be fast and spirited this p. m.

It will be Shade's first Boston appearance since his sensational battle with Eddie Shevlin.

Shade almost knocked Shevlin out in the eighth round of that tussle. Shevlin rallied and won a hairline decision.



Willie Gradwell

Britton Refused to Risk His Title With Shade

When Britton and Shade met a year ago, the verdict was a draw. Britton was then a much better fighter than he is today, while Shade has improved greatly since that time.

Britton ignored Shade's persistent challenges. It was pointed out that Britton and Shade would draw more than $100,000 in New York at prices of $2 to $15.

Britton finally signed to box at Madison Square Garden on November 1. Dan Morgan, Britton's manager, was given the privilege of naming the champion's opponent.

"We won't fight Shade," said Morgan. "He's too fast and tough."

"How about Eddie Shevlin?" Morgan was asked.

"He's just got a decision over Shade," replied Morgan. "That let's him out."

Morgan was asked if he would accept Paul Doyle.

"Doyle's crafty and can hit," was the reply.

"Take Walker," opened Bulger. "He's not as fast as Britton nor can he box as well. He's a rough, tough fellow and you know Britton always looks best against this type."

Morgan swallowed the bait. He took Walker. And Walker, one of the hardest hitting welterweights in the history of the ring, took away Britton's title.

Walker Must Clean With Worthy Contenders.

He is now up to Walker to clean with worthy contenders for the championship. He says he will meet all comers, and there is a ring of sincerity in his voice.

This means that Shade, Shevlin, Perry, Doyle or any other welterweight who proves he possesses class will have an opportunity to try for the welterweight title.

Twice A. C. intends to determine which welterweight is best fitted to quarrel with Walker.

Shade and Walker will have their innings tonight. The winner will meet Shevlin, Paul Doyle and George Ward will then have a chance to show.

In this way, Walker's next opponent will be determined.

Who will be the fortunate young men?

Some say Shade.

Others Shevlin.

Then there are some who like Perry, Doyle or Ward.

Who's your choice?

Pickles Martin to Show In the Semi-Final

Pickles Martin, lightweight champion of the Pacific Coast, will have Willie Gradwell of Somerville as an opponent in the semi-final of eight rounds. This looms forth as a regular bout. Martin is a classy performer and will be showing in fistic bouts in Boston once he is introduced. This writer saw Pickles in action in New York and he's the goods as a fighter. Gradwell has beaten virtually all of our New England boys and will give Pickles a regular quarrel.

There will also be a couple of 8-round preliims.

Concord Battles Natick

The Concord High will play Natick High, in Natick, on Saturday.

YOUNG TANSEY IN GO WITH PARKER

Young Tansey, Roxbury's candidate for fame and glory in the light weight division, will meet some tough opposition when he opposes Charley Parker of the South End in the final bout of ten rounds at the Armory A. A.'s show at the Grand Opera House tomorrow night.

Young Tansey

Tansey has hopped right out front in the pugilistic parade. His dazzling left jab, speed and general boxing ability has enabled him to dispose of most of the opposition.

The Roxbury youngster will meet a rugged opponent in Parker. The latter is former lightweight champion of New England and has made a startling come-back. He has won his last six starts and bids fair to smash his way out front once more. He will try to-night.

Another ten-round number will find Willie Corbett of Harvard tossing punches in the general direction of Joe Curry of New Haven. Corbett is a skillful boxer, but will have plenty of trouble with Curry, a stiff walloper, in the other corner.

There will also be two eight-rounders. Henry Best of South Boston will clash with Ted Coolidge of Manchester, N. H., while Jimmy Manning of South Boston will have Henry Ford of the North End as an opponent.

WEISMULLER HAS ANOTHER MARK

It seems as though every swimmer of note can plunge into the water and come out with a couple of new records. Johnny Weismuller of the Illinois A. C. broke a new world's record in the back stroke when he swam 100 yards in 1 m. 3 3-5 s. Besides that Weismuller tied the world's record of 1m. 12 3-5 s. in the 100-meter back-stroke in the Milwaukee A. C.'s 75-foot tank.

John Weismuller

ST. WILLIAMS IN NO SCORE WITH MOHAWKS

The St. William's Catholic Club of Dorchester and the Mohawk A. C., also of Dorchester, battled to a scoreless tie at the Savin Hill Playground.

The saints, minus four of their first string men, put up a remarkably defensive game. At no time was its goal line in danger.

FALL RIVER HOLDS ABBOT WORSTED TIE

Fall River, Nov. 6.—Fall River F. C. and Abbott Worsted battled to a 3-3 tie here this afternoon at Marks Stadium. The locals led 3 to 1, but a spurt on the part of the woolen workers in the second stanza tied the score.

REVERE ELKS BEAT LAWRENCE BUFFALOS

The Revere Elks defeated the Lawrence Buffalos 24 to 6, at Curtis Park. The Revere team scored four touchdowns.

Jack Conway Picks Dave Shade to Beat Perry

W	L

There's no rest for the dopester any more than there is for the young man who would be successful in dodging the tireless bill collector. So Jack Conway takes his reputation to his trusty typewriter once more and flashes forth "the information that Dave Shade will win over Jack Perry at the Arena tonight.

"Shade's a great welterweight, a real rival for Mickey Walker," says Jack. "He's got all the qualifications that go to make a champion. We figure he will prove a little bit too fast for Perry. This Perry person, though, has a wallop and is liable to kick over the dope any time. Twice he fooled us when we picked him to lose to Eddie Shevlin. Maybe he'll hand us another wallop tonight."

ABEL KIVIAT TO BE AMATEUR AGAIN

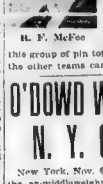
New York, Nov. 6.—Abel R. Kiviat, old Irish-American A. C. middle-distance runner, who at one time held the American and Canadian ensemble titles, will be restored to good standing as an amateur athlete at the annual convention of the Amateur Athletic Union here November 19-21 if favorable action is taken upon the recommendation of the Metropolitan A. A. U. registration committee.

Abel Kiviat

Kiviat, who has been in the A. A. U. ineligible list for the past seven years, has applied for reinstatement as an amateur, and the application has been approved by the local registration committee.

HOVEY'S BOWLERS ROLLING BIG

C. F. Hovey Company, although they got away to a late start in the Boston Retail Store Bowling League, are expected by their followers to give there a ready up front plenty of action on the local alleys.



R. F. McFee

Captain R. F. McFee has had the following rollers practicing whenever possible: W. F. Tarbet, C. A. Lindberg, C. A. Whitney and C. Mularkey. With this group of pin topplers going good the other teams can look for trouble.

O'DOWD WILL BOX N. Y. CHAMP

New York, Nov. 6.—Mike O'Dowd, the ex-middleweight champion, and Dave Rosenberg recognised in this State as the title holder, will meet in a fifteen round decision bout for the title at the Rink Sporting Club, in Brooklyn on Thanksgiving Day afternoon. The two were originally booked for Ebbets Field last Summer and Rosenberg was suspended for failure to go through with his bout. When he promised to meet O'Dowd, the board lifted the ban.

CAMBRIDGE LEGION BEATS MILLSTREAMS

The Cambridge Legion defeated the Millstreams of Dorchester at Russell Field, 13 to 0. The Legionaires scored in the first two minutes of play when they recovered a fumble and Hines made the touchdown. In the third period, Muirey blocked a Chelsea punt and Smith went over for the second touchdown.

No Place Like Home for Fans This Week

By RINGSIDE.

Said the man with the diamond horseshoe as he finished talking about Saturday's football scores:

"I ain't goin' to keep paying rent for a room I don't use any more. What a sucker I've been, passing out perfectly good money for one of those eight by six rest spots just because a guy is supposed to have some place to receive his mail.

"Boston's busy promoters have knocked my landlady loose from as good a credit boarder as ever pulled a stall on a dame who's trying to keep her pick may rested by running one of those lodging house places.

"Tonight I'll whirl to the Arena to see Shade and Perry, tomorrow night I'll be at the Armory Club's fistic show at the Grand, Wednesday you'll find me at the amateur show at the Arena, Thursday up at the Grand looking over Caiza, while Friday will find me at Mechanics giving Lewis the once over.

"If you want me Saturday evening, once more at one of the downtown stations. You know we former college heroes occasionally like to celebrate after the dear old alma mater has tossed the enemy for a loss."

"Where will you sleep the other nights?" we ventured.

"What are one arm joints for, anyhow?" came back the answer as our friend passed out in quest of one of those places that used to be.

ALL-STAR CARD AT MAT SHOW ON FRIDAY

The call for new faces by the wrestling fans appears to be well answered by Promoter Tuohey, as one looks at the all star card arranged by him for Friday night in Mechanics Building.

All told there are three men on the program who have never been seen her, yet who are highly rated wherever they have appeared in the West.

"Toots" Mondt, instructor at the Colorado Agricultural College, is the better known of the group and he has been selected to meet "Strangler" Ed Lewis in the main event, best two out of three falls.

Another is Allan Eustice, the remarkable Kansan, who checked "Stan" Zbyszko a short time ago, and he will meet another Western star in the person of "Yakima" Joe Turner, a heavyweight of more than average skill.

In the third event Frank Judson is carded to appear and in order to round out the program, Promoter Tuohey is in hopes of getting still another man new to Boston, all in the hope that he may keep up his record of having shown future titleholders to his patrons for the first time in this city.

CATCHER MILLER GIVEN THE GATE

New York, Nov. 6.—Otto Miller, a pitcher with the Brooklyn National League Club, since 1910, has been given his unconditional release by President Ebbets.

PERE MARQUETTES BEAT ST. ALPHONSUS

The Pere Marquette eleven defeated the St Alphonsus A. A. 19 to 0. The Knights of Columbus eleven scored three touchdowns. A crowd estimated at over 14,000 saw the battle. It was St. Alphonsus' first game in three years. The South Boston eleven was too strong for the Mission Hill team.

Grammar League Closes

The Lexington Grammar School Football League series will close this afternoon. The Adams School eleven of East Lexington will take on the Hancock School team of Lexington Centre.

BOSTON BOXERS WILL BATTLE NEW YORKERS

One of the best collection of ring stars to represent Boston in any amateur tournament has been selected to uphold the colors of the Hub in the annual Intercity tournament with New York, which will be staged at the Arena Wednesday.

The Boston team which will meet New York is:

Louis Parker and Louis Zagarra in the 126-pound class; Terry McManus, South End A. A., and Mike Landers, North End, in the 135-pound class; Harry ("Red") O'Grady U. S. R. Florida, and Martin Corbett, Lynn, in the 145-pound class, and Frank Williams, Charlestown, and Thomas Kirby, Roxbury, in the 160-pound class.

The team that will represent New York is:

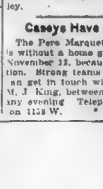
Phil Brick, Bronxdale A. C. and Hugo Sarno, Pastime A. C., in the 126-pound class; Martin J. Smith, Congress K. of C., and Nick Clausen, New York Y. M. C. A., in the 135-pound class; "Doc" Townsend, Bronxdale A. C., and Otto Weinel Paulist A. C., in the 147-pound class; John Kehr, Bronxdale A. C., and Andy Zambs, Commonwealth A. C., in the 160-pound class.

Villa Runs Afoul of Auto Cop and Loses Decision

New York, Nov. 6.—Pancho Villa, flyweight champion, was out driving alone in his manager's automobile when he collided with an automobile operated by Martin Erickson of Brooklyn, at Fifth avenue and Ninety-fourth street. Patrolman Ruddy who witnessed the accident, found that Villa had no license to drive a car and took him to the station.

CALZA IS OUT TO GET BIG MAT BOUTS

You must hand it to George Calza, Italian heavyweight wrestling champion, when it comes to keeping busy on the mat.



Stanislaus Zbyszko

It is less than a week since Calza arrived in this country from Italy. And yet he has scored with one victory, disposing of Mort Henderson, the Masked Marvel.

Calza will strive to continue his winning sugar when he meets Jack McGrath of Worcester in a finish bout at the Grand Opera House Thursday night under the direction of the Old How ard management.

McGrath is the New England heavyweight champion. He is a big, strong fellow and has the distinction of having grappled for more than two hours with Strangler Lewis.

If Calza wins over McGrath, he says he will be prepared to take on either of the Zbyszkos or Cliff Blackjoy.

Caseys Have Open Date

The Pere Marquette football team is without a home game for Sunday, November 13, because of a cancellation. Strong teams desiring a game can get in touch with the manager, M. J. King, between 6 and 8 o'clock any evening. Telephone South Boston 1123 W.

NO MORE DAYS OF REST FOR HARVARD SQUAD

The Harvard football team will have no more "vacation days" this season. With Princeton, Brown and Yale coming on the next three Saturdays in the order named, the Crimson coaching mentors will push the training of the squad to the limit.

Princeton during the pre-season talk was on the lowest rung of the gridiron ladder. It was not counted on to do its stuff at all well this year because of the handicap of losing both its last year's stars and the would-be stars declared ineligible.

However, credit is due to the yeoman work done by Coach Roper for the formidable eleven he has built up out of practically nothing is now the wonder of the East. Baker, Snively, Cleaves and Treat formed the nucleus on which the Tiger hopes were based. They, with the exception of Herb Treat, are of the eleven that snowed Harvard under in the Palmer Stadium last November.

No, no other rest periods for the Crimson warriors. On form Harvard should win the game. It may be another story when the whistle blows. On paper it looked as if Chicago would smother the Tiger.

Spectators Will Not Look for Any Star

When the two great Eastern teams are each other Saturday the spectator may not expect to see the outstanding play of any one gladiator. There will be no Don Lourie in the array. It will be the two finely spirited teams brought up on different diets. One is charged with fisher food, the other with Roper victuals.

The spectator might say that Harvard has another rest period similar to the Florida encounter when it will meet Brown the Saturday following the Princeton game. Something missed fire in the Yale-Brown game.

Harvard will have a tough battle with Brown. Not since the days of Pollard has the Providence aggregation had such an opportunity to cover the Crimson banner.

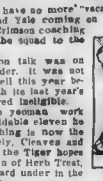
It Will Be Drive Until After Yale Game

It will be drive, drive, drive, from now until the final whistle of the Yale game in the Blue Bowl three weeks away for the Fishermen.

With not a Harvard man on the injured list it looks as though Harvard will put on its Sunday best for the reception of the Tigers.

The ends will be Jenkins and Hartley; tackles, Eastman and Dunker; guards, Hubbard and Drew; quarter, Buell; left halfback, Gehrke; right halfback, Chapin; fullback, Owen. If Roscoe Fitts wins his fight back to the regular ranks he will take either Jenkins' or Chapin's berth, or Gehrke will move into right half and Fitts will take the left half.

JOHNSON SIGNS TO BOX BRENNAN



Bill Brennan

New York, Nov. 6.—Floyd Johnson, San Francisco heavyweight, and Bill Brennan, of Chicago, have been matched for a 15-round contest here December 6, the Republic Athletic Club announced today.

NO SCORE IN GAME ON VOLKMAN FIELD

The St. Peter and Paul A. C., of South Boston and the Essex A. C., of Cambridge played to a scoreless tie at Volkman Field, Allston. Both teams had chances to score. The Saints were on their opponents' five yard line three times, but lost the ball every time on fumbles.

JEFFERIES DEFEAT HOLY NAME STARS

The Jefferies of East Boston defeated the Holy Name All-Stars of Cambridge, 19 to 0, at Jeffries Park, Cambridge. McMahon made the only touchdown. He received a forward pass on the 40-yard line and ran across the goal line. Petitne kicked a field goal from the 30-yard line.

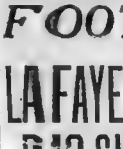
FOOTBALL DOPESTERS GIVEN RUDE JOLT BY GRID UPSETS

LAFAYETTE DOWNFALL BIG SURPRISE OF DAY

By CHARLES E. PARKER.



Vladimer Toret, that unprincipled villain of the football season, still pursues Miss Fay Vorlte, who, in her own sweet way, i endeavoring to play the role of heroine.

He tripped that gentle Jane four separate and distinct times on Saturday afternoon, and rudely yanked her henna locks on several other occasions.

It was at the Polo Grounds and at Franklin Field that Vladimar acted his ugliest.

Switching a 13 to 0 Lafayette lead into a 14 to 13 Washington and Jefferson victory was his prize stunt, yet that resulted in no greater shock that when Alabama outplayed and outscored the Navy-conquering University of Pennsylvania team.

Added to that brace of unexpected outcomes the Holy Cross triumph over Georgetown, and the Syracuse victory over Nebraska, while the slaughtering of Columbia by Cornell, and the small margin of Dartmouth's victory over Boston University, were other happenings the boys didn't bank upon.

Without question the most thrilling contest of the day was the Lafayette-Washington and Jefferson clash, on which may hang the strongest claim for the Eastern championship. For the first half of that game Lafayette looked like the sure winner and wagers of 50 to 1 on the Eastonians between the halves found no takers. Then the reversal.

Never Has a Team Battled More Brilliantly

Never has a team battled with more brilliancy and spirit than did "Greasy" Neale's Presidents. Inspired by "South" West, its great colored fullback, the W. & J. array fought like demons. They knew the Eastonians, after their series of tough early season encounters, did not boast the excellent condition of the Neale eleven, which had rested for two weeks in preparation for Saturday's great battle, and they worked this physical edge for all it was worth, and it proved to be worth very much

The scoring of the winning point after W. & J.'s second touchdown well illustrated the generalship of Herbert Kopf, the wingman who fits the signals for Neale's team.

The first point following touchdown had been scored by West on a place kick, and when it came time for scoring the point following touchdown Kopf called for the same dropkick formation was assumed.

opf Fooled Lafayette id Ordered a Pass

But Kopf ordered a forward pass on the play, and while the Lafayette forwards came in to block the expected kick, the ball was tossed over their heads one to Kopf, and by that time came the winning points.

That play, by the way, marked the first time, in an important game, when any play but a dropkick or placement kick has been employed to score the point following touchdown.

The defeat of Pennsylvania by Alabama can be charged directly to overconfidence and an inability to get back to earth again once that overconfidence got in it's dirty work

Heisman's Outfit Took the Game as a Resting Spell

Heisman's outfit, through their thrilling defeat of the Navy, and the unbroken string of victories that had marked its season until Saturday, took the Atlanta game as a resting spell before the Pittsburgh, Penn State and Cornell contests. They rested all right, but will be bothered by the nightmare they experienced for the remainder of the season, and there is doubt that they will win another game this year.

The week-end marked the initial defeats of several teams. On Friday, Penn State was defeated for the first time in three years, and on Saturday Lafayette suffered similarly, while Penn, Nebraska and several other teams met their first defeats of this season.

Nebraska May Be Able to Do So But There's Doubt

The much-discussed Nebraska claim that it could whip Harvard, Yale and Centre on successive days, may still hold good, but if the guy that made that crack had substituted Syracuse for one of those three teams, he would have been the butt of many a joke today, for the great scoring machine from the Middle West could score only through a Syracuse fumble on Saturday and was outplayed in every department of the game.

The Syracuse outcome, together with Princeton's defeat of Chicago, makes the East a bit perkier when it discusses the comparative strength of Eastern and Middle Western football.

Holy Cross' victory over Georgetown placed the purple in a tie with B. C. at the top of the "Iron Big Four," with one victory and no defeats. Georgetown is in second place with one victory and one defeat, and Fordham is that place with two defeats and no victories.

Victory Over Brown Gave Yale Little to Crow Over

The Yale victory over Brown, although marked by a much larger score than was anticipated, gave Yale little over which to crow. It was a personal victory for Newell Nedlinger rather than a victory for the Yale team, for in first downs and ground gained Brown proved the superior team. End Coach Charley Comerford had the Yale wingmen primed for their best game of the season, and their covering of Ted Wight's beautiful punts, and general defensive play, marked the one big improvement in the play of the Eli team.

At Hanover, N. H., Coach Jackson Cannell of Dartmouth attempted to do as Princeton did in its Swarthmore game, and as Harvard did in its Florida contest, employ an entire substitute team. But Boston University, although it has yet to win a game, is not the team on which to attempt that sort of thing.

B. U. Revealed that by Tossing Forward Passes

B. U. promptly revealed that fact by tossing forward passes to a touchdown, whereby forcing Cannell to shoot the bulk of his regulars into the fray in order to come out with a whole skin. Even then Dartmouth barely outscored the Brown eleven although it had fully 40 points in the making in the course of the last three periods.

After viewing Penn State in its first defeat on Friday, we looked at the Princeton substitutes in their game with Swarthmore, and let us say that if the Princeton regulars are better than the Princeton substitutes, Harvard has quite a task on its hands this week in the opening battle of the "Big Three" series.

Against a fairly strong Swarthmore team Princeton started all second and third-string players, but as the game progressed sent "Fink" Baker in at tackle to strengthen the line and used Newby in the backfield for a considerable time.

Fumbling Big Fault of Tiger Sub Backs

Fumbling was the big fault of the Tiger substitute backs and two such miscues, recovered in each case by Swarthmore players, started the "Little Quakers" on their way to both Swarthmore touchdowns.

Immediately after the first recovered fumble Swarthmore uncorked an off-tackle sweep around Tilson that carried 35 yards to Princeton's 24-yard line and then, after being held for two downs, shot a beautiful forward pass for the score.

The second Princeton fumble was picked up by Korn, a Swarthmore end, who ran it 44 yards to Princeton's 1-yard line, where Asplundh, the 205-pound Swarthmore fullback, whacked the Tiger line three times before he scored the touchdown.

Except for Slipups on Top All the Time

Except for those slipups the Tiger subs were on top all the time. Never again did Swarthmore's strong offtackle sweep net any real yardage, while Swarthmore subsequent attempts at forward passing either were intercepted or made incomplete.

GREEN COACHES TO WORK ON OFFENCE

Hanover, N. H., Nov. 6—Dartmouth's showing against Boston University has thrown great fear into the hearts of the big Green student body as to what will happen when Dartmouth meets Cornell this Saturday in the Polo grounds in New York.

The absolute lack of punch in the Green offense, shown time and again this season, was the impressive feature of the B. U. contest when Dartmouth backs threw away four easy touchdowns.

Nor did the Green show anything new in the line of offense. The same plays, that were so easily stopped by Harvard, were used and gained ground only through the weak line of the visitors, who apparently could not stop anything like a line buck.

The showing of the forward line was very satisfactory although the coaches were loath to use first string men, Lynch, Bjorckman, Neidlinger, Moore, Aschenbach and Taylor, against their will. The subs who started the game proved powerless and allowed a B. U. score within five minutes of the opening whistle. Cannell was successful in saving his backs, however, as he held Burke, Harris and Leavitt on the side lines during the whole game. He was forced to send Mills into the game, for without the diminutive quarter the Green offence was never able to get started.

BUNKER HILL BEARS DEFEATS DORCHESTER

In a hard-fought game the Bunker Hill Bears defeated the Dorchester Town Club eleven on Columbian Square Playground, 6 to 0. The Bears outweighed the Dorchester boys, but did not outplay them.

Just before the first half ended a short forward pass, Minnehan to Savage, on which Savage ran 35 yards through both teams, netted the only score of the game.

Abears, centre for Dorchester, played a fine game and with Desmond and Berry stopped the majority of the Bears' rushes although the weather was threatening a crowd of 5,000 was present.

N. E. A. A. U. HAS CROSS-COUNTRY

The eighth annual New England cross-country run (individual and team championships) will be held on Saturday at 3 p. m. over the Franklin Park course.

The distance will be about six miles. Individuals who win prizes will be awarded the New England championship medals, while the club will be given a Placque.

A club, college or school can enter eight men on a team of whom only five will count. The event is open only to registered amateur athletes. Entries will close tomorrow with Richard M. Walsh, No. 1 Beacon street, Boston.

CINCINNATI AGAIN AFTER RUBE BENTON

Cincinnati, Nov. 6.—John C. ("Rube") Benton, star southpaw of the St. Paul American Association champions, may return to the Cincinnati National League team. President August Herrmann has opened correspondence with Manager Mike Kelly, of the Saints, with a view of closing a deal for the big lefthander

Arlington Plays Lexington

Arlington and Lexington high school elevens will play Saturday afternoon, at Lexington.

GLOUCESTER HIGH QUITS NORTH SHORE LEAGUE

By FRED C. LANE.

Gloucester High is no longer a member of the North Shore League, Principal Wilfred H. Roger, acting on the recommendation of Coach Jack Burke, has decided to withdraw from that circuit because of the numerous injuries sustained by the players.

Lack of enough players on the squad compelled this action. At the opening of the season only 20 players reported.

Injuries and lack of interest on the part of several players reduced the number to a point where Gloucester had trouble to put an eleven on the gridiron.

Although Gloucester has withdrawn from the league it will not disband the eleven. It is planned to play as many out-of-league teams as possible. The eleven lost three games in the North Shore circuit.

With the exception of Chelsea High, which has by far a larger enrollment, Gloucester is the smallest school in the league

Game With Lynn English Brought About the Action

The recent game with the heavy Lynn English team, in which Captain John Kelley, Joe McLaughlin and Gregg Hemmer, all first string players, were so badly injured that they are out of further competition this season, brought about such action of the school authorities.

There is little prospect for a heavier team next season. The freshmen and sophomores are underrated. Coach Burke has decided to play out the season with teams of its own standard. Games have been scheduled with Danvers High on November 11 and Ipswich High on November 18. November 25 is an open date which the coach would like to fill.

Weymouth High Disbands Because of Poor Support

Lack of interest in their work and poor support from the people has brought about the disbandonment of Weymouth High's football eleven. Coach Whipple, who has tried to whip the team into shape, has requested all players to turn in their football material.

Numerous warnings failed to make an impression on the players and the coach, with the sanction of Headmaster Hilton, decided that further competition would be useless. Games with Norfolk Aggies scheduled for November 11 and Belmont High on November 17 have been cancelled.

This year's Suburban League fight is a torrid affair. With all plans and preparations made to welcome home the victors, Lynn English High, considered the best in this circuit, suffered defeat from the revamped Everett High eleven

Medford High Is Now in First Place

Medford High, as a result of the defeat, moved into first place for the first time in years. Somerville High with a firm grip on second place previous to their game with Medford on the week end, moves further down the ladder as a result of defeat.

Not in years has the battle for first place been of such hectic nature. Newton High, considered sure winner, has sunk to a low place in the standing. The season is on the turn. Saturday's game will have much toward deciding the winner of this season's flag.

Norwood High, which has not lost a game in two years, faces the stiffest assignment of the season on Saturday, playing Framingham High. Framingham is the strongest eleven that Coach Benny Murrey has scheduled this season. They won eight games and made 208 points to see for their opponents.

EXETER HAS AN EASY GAME SATURDAY

Exeter, N. H., Nov. 6.—Exeter is getting ready for the annual game with Andover.

Coach Hicks has given big charges some hard scrimmage workouts, but the weekend game, the only remaining one on the preliminary schedule, with the Marines from the Portsmouth Navy Yard will be easy, as nearly a second eleven will be played to save the regulars for the big clash with Andover.

Robert MacPhail, fullback, a Somerville boy, and Richard Wortham of Lynn, T. guard, the two injured players, are coming back fast

EAGLE CONFIDENT OF DEFEATING BAYLOR

A defeat is always a toute—for the team that wins. Coach Cavanaugh is one man who believes that the homepathic treatment is the only one for a football eleven that aspires to a place on top

After two successive defeats, therefore, the Eagle's victory over Villanova is regarded as the best preparation for the difficult contest with the Baylor "Bears," who will arrive in Boston from Texas Thursday or Friday for a return game with Boston College at Braves Field

The Eagle s showing against Villanova caused a sharp rise in the hopes of B. C. followers, who are now more confident that the Maroon and Gold team will finish the season without another defeat

The score of Saturday's game does not reveal the real superiority of the Heights' team, nor does it show the marked improvement in defensive and offensive strength. Villanova's line had not been pierced for a first down until the Eagle backfield was let loose against it.

Ward and Cronin, who did the bulk of the ball carrying, repeatedly plunged through Villanova's tackles and guards. The visitors line was unable to stop them, and the only reason that B. C. did not pile up a higher score was that Cavanaugh was satisfied to win regardless of the number of points, as he wished to save his regulars for the Baylor game.

When Darling Punted Eagle Had Advantage

With Darling punting, Boston College held a distinct advantage over its rivals. Anywhere in front of his own 30-yard line, when Darling chose to kick rather than use up the backs in plunging against the line, the ball would be allowed by the opposing backs to roll over the goal line. Or, if a run was attempted, the Eagle ends were invariably down under the punt, and waited to down the man who caught the ball.

The B. C. forwards gave better assistance to the backs in the matter of interference. Usually they opened up a hole for the man carrying the ball, and did not interfere with the runner as they did so disastrously in the Lafayette game

Ends and Tackles Showed Big Improvement

The Eagle ends and tackles showed a big improvement in breaking through the line and disorganizing the opposing backfield. Their ability to break through the Baylor line next Saturday will mean a great deal, as the Texans have a bag of trick plays that have a good chance of being completed successfully if the Eagle line can be held until the plays are under way

Saturday's game was the first in which Cavanaugh used subs to any great extent. The employment of subs in the second half brought out the fact that there is a lot of good material in the B. C. squad

Harrison and Duffey, who displaced O'Connell and Comerford on the wings, proved themselves fast and efficient. Duffey has several times shown that he is first team material. He has never disappointed the coach by his work, and is the most dependable of the reserve wing candidates

Intensive Training Will Begin This Afternoon

Intensive training will begin this afternoon for the lives on of the Baylor "Bears" next Saturday. The Baylor team is the strongest that has ever represented the Southwest since football was introduced in that corner of the country.

The eleven men who will start for Baylor have all played against Boston College. All have had from two to four years of football under the gridiron. If the Eagle is to win, it must be prepared for the hardest kind of a battle.

Five members of the Baylor team were chosen for the All-Southwestern eleven last Fall. Captain Wesley Bradshaw, one of the five, was mentioned by Walter Camp in his selection of All America quarterbacks.

The others are Tanner, fullback; Ballock, tackle; Weathers, guard, and Kirk, centre. Tanner is rated as the best line plunger in the South.

And Now It's Knickers That Give Joy to the Knockers

By Les Conklin

"I SEE that the natives down in the Philippines are refusing to wear trousers," said Silas Shrimp.

"That's nothing," said Solomon Shadd, "so are the natives in the United States. Everybody that I see is wearing these here knickers."

"Short men are wearing them because they aren't tall enough to wear long trousers and tall men are wearing them because they don't cost much."

"I'd wear them myself if my legs weren't so thin," admitted Silas. "I would be arrested for having no visible means of support."

"City men wear them because they are stylish," continued Solomon, "and the commuters wear them so they can ride in for half fare."

"What do you think of women wearing knickers?"

"I am generally too busy looking to do much thinking," said Solomon. "But, seriously speaking, I think they are a menace to pedestrians."

"It used to be bad enough to see a flapper step on a street car, but when you can see a woman in short pants on every street corner, it's no wonder that so many people get run over by automobiles."

"It's terrible," agreed Silas. "A girl in knickers causes more traffic congestion than a cripple in a wheel chair."

"Why don't you wear them, Mr. Shrimp?"

"I don't mind the knickers," says Silas, "but the woolen stockings make my legs itch."

ETIQUETTE AT THE PLAY

NEVER go to the theater on a Saturday night, the seats aren't any softer, but they cost more.

If you take your wife, get seats in the second balcony so that she can see what kind of clothes all the other women are not wearing.

Do not sit in the front row at a burlesque show, because the glare of the footlights may hurt your eyes.

You will make a hit with the audience by arriving late. All the people in your row will have to stand up to let you pass and will realise how important you are.

It is the height of ill breeding to ask a lady in front of you to remove her hat. She may be losing her hair and will be embarrassed dreadfully.

Always read the dramatic reviews and learn in advance whether the play is a comedy or a melodrama. It is absolutely necessary to do this, as a so-called comedy is often tragic in its humor and a tragedy may turn out to be foolish enough to make you laugh.

It is not necessary to pay for programs. You can get one free by slipping the usher a quarter.

It is bad form to leave your girl alone between acts. Some other guy may pick her up while you are enjoying a smoke.

An excellent way to amuse yourself during the intermission is to eat peanuts and throw the shells at bald headed men in the front row.

Do not applaud the actors at the end of the performance. They are as anxious to get home as you are and repeated salvos of applause may cause them to miss the last train to the suburbs.

Do not take your girl home in a taxicab, as most of them bounce you up and down so much that she will get a headache.

IN THE VILLAGE
By La Monte Waldron

HE hired a studio
Steeped in saffron, shot with crimson.
His pockets lined with green.
His head with overconfidence.
"I'll paint a little, sculp a bit, write a few songs," he yawned.
Paints he got and
Brushes made of the hair, of camels—
Camels gaunt and mysterious
That silhouette against the desert twilight,
That tread the eternal sands
With a majestic beauty that is more than art.
He daubed some colors upon a canvas,
His friends "admired" it
But did not dare ask what it signified.
His complacency grew.
He thrust his hands into the pockets of his smock
And teetered on his heels;
Then he sent out for a chisel
And a slab of marble.
Art, O, Art! Thou art it!

Bobbie and His Pa

WE never know wen we are well off, sed Ma last nite. Misaus Jutegrass, the widder, was telling me yesterday, sed Ma, that her husband left her only twenty thousand dollars a yeer on wich to live on, sed Ma. We never know wen we are well off.

We never know wen we are well off our base, sed Pa. What a fool yure frend Misaus Jutegrass must be, sed Pa.

No, I wuddent call her that, sed Ma, she is brite enuff, but I think she has no idee of the valew of munny. Lots of wimmen is like that, sed Ma, but I thank the stars, sed Ma, I always knew the valew of munny, Ma sed.

Wen I grow up, I sed, it will be O. K. with me if I can marry a widder with twenty thousand dollars a yeer, I sed.

Bobbie, sed Ma, you must never think of munny wen you are thinking of love & marridge, sed Ma.

Lots of folks do, tho, I sed. I know beekaus I herd you tell Pa lots of times that you oud have married rich men, I sed.

But I dident, sed Ma, I thought moar of yure deer father than I did of munny, sed Ma. I chose him in spite of his lack of means, sed Ma.

Oh, I dount know about lack of means, sed Pa. I have always had quite a bank roll ever since you knowed me, havent I? sed Pa.

But you cuddent die & leeve me twenty thousand dollars a yeer, sed Ma. Not that I want you to die, deerest luv, sed Ma kind of quick, I dident meen that.

Let us hope & trust you didnt meen that, sed Pa. I think it is a mistaik for a gent to pile up too much Doe in this life, Pa sed. It is well to leeve our deer ones kind of snug, sed Pa, but nothing spoils a chile, sed Pa, moar than leeving him many thousans of dollars that he dident do anything to earn, Pa sed. I want Bobbie to ern his own jack, sed Pa.

His own what?" sed Ma.

His own jack, his own kale, sed Pa. His munny, I meen, sed Pa.

Poor littel Bobbie, sed Ma, how happy he is in his childerish innosens, Ma sed. He will live & lern, Ma sed.

I certingly hope I will live & if I live I will lern, that is a cinch, I will climb them Alps of Noildze beekaus you cant keep a squirl on the ground.

Specifying.

The miserable office boy made an effective retort one day. "I'd like to go to a funeral this afternoon, sir," he said.

"Well, you won't. Understand that!" was his employer's reply.

"I know sir. But I'd like to."

The employer glanced at him with a touch of pity in his heart. "To whose funeral would you like to go?" he asked.

"Yours, sir," was the reply.

Peppygrams.

A henpecked husband may be only a worm, but a plump young chicken will make even a worm turn.

Growing Fast.

"Taters is good this morning, ma'am," said the greengrocer, making his usual weekly call.

"Yes, and that reminds me," said the customer. "How is it that those you sold me last week were so much smaller at the bottom of the basket than at the top?"

"Well," answered the old man, "taters are growing so fast now that by the time the farmer has dug a basketfull up the last ones are about twice the size of the first!"

The Test of Tests.

To Lloyd George the master minds of Europe have been but innocent babes. But the supreme test awaits him. He has yet to meet the New York reporter!

DO YOU MEASURE A MAN WITH A GOLD YARDSTICK?

Too many persons make their estimate of a man from the standpoint of his income.

The man with the small income is looked upon as a failure, and the man of considerable income is considered a huge success.

You never ask a man with money just how he accumulated it—you do not care.

The fact that he seems to have a sufficiency is all that you pay attention to; he buys and pays and travels and looks money and you accept him.

But the man of sterling worth, not an extensive money maker, has to eat and chooses and economize. Some way he does not interest you.

Is money any test of purity of character?

Is money a test of soul cleanliness?

Do you prefer a relentless, unscrupulous, semi-respectable money maker to an honest though plain soul?

The Honest Johns don't stand much show in this world unless they have something besides to commend them.

All wealthy men are not dishonest, but do we give as much credit to the clean, worthy fellow who deserves your respect and courteous treatment as to the rich man?

THEY'LL WEDDING BELLS RING OUT

THE average girl, when she breaks [illegible] always wants a bigger and handsomer ring especially from a married one.

THIS is very often on the part of the girl as she may have promised to marry some other dame.

ONE guy had the right idea. He used to buy his sweetheart an engagement ring, and then wear it himself.

BUT this same fellow lost a diamond ring once. It was [illegible] he was engaged to somebody [illegible] up the pawnshop.

THE installment house took it back, and he was out all the money she had paid on it.

THE darkest girl [illegible] is the kind who don't have to buy their engagement [illegible] then change their [illegible] treat on the side.

HE couldn't show up at the church on their wedding day because he was busy in court suing her for back interest.

THE average fellow is so skeptical nowadays that he won't let his sweetheart have the necessary but once in a while [illegible] take the receipt to show to his friends that he has bought her a ring.

RINGS are relics of barbarism, and no man wants his girl to think he's a savage.

AFTER a guy gives his sweetheart a solitaire he usually calls on her every night. It's not love—he just wants to see that she still has the ring.

ONE dame was very haughty because her beau only gave her a fifty dollar diamond. It was all right for her to be cold, but there was no reason for her being stone cold.

IT'S better to have a man give you a ring that costs fifty bucks than to have him promise you one that will cost [illegible] hundred.

ALWAYS remember girls, you can't [illegible].

SOME [illegible] are not [illegible].

Though they promise their girls rings that will cost as much as two thousand dollars if they bought them.

ONE girl sold her sweetheart was too much of a spendthrift. He promised her more expensive things than any man she had ever gone with.

THERE was no end to his reckonings. He promised her something new every time he kissed her.

NOTHING was good enough for her. That's why she never got anything.

SO remember fellows, instead of buying your girl an engagement ring just get her one. She'll be just as well satisfied, and it won't cost you half as much.

Medbury Says Average Guy Buys Engagement Ring and Wears it Himself

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

SAID Hiram Hicks "It's mighty plain that wonders grow and and aeroplane, they talk by radio, grow; men have the 'phone They've tunnelled through the mountain sides and bridged the widest streams, they go beneath the sea for rides, they plow with gas for teams. They've ample grounds to boast and brag of things they do, forsooth and yet the y've struck one awful snag, they can't bring back lost youth Oh, here's where scientists fall down and never rise again, they lose their prestige and renown and monkeys die in vain." It seems old Hiram Hicks was right, for, much as men have sought, youth fades like mists before the light, a thing no gold has bought. Yet though old age [illegible] all bribes to [illegible] and youth can never be restored to Ponce de Leon learned. When life has passed our best days, float and tides go flowing by, he no said and [illegible] strength head [illegible] dreamed it used to flow And then the bud or once a rose no touch or craft of art nor spell that ever man knows can hide its glowing heart. They pass, the roses and the spring, the butterflies and flowers and golden youth is on the wing, as swift as golden hair And that is why we build it sweet and crown it with our songs because the days of youth are fleet and time is grim and long. But if we held it at our will youth could not be so dear, the glamour would be gone, the thrill and sweetness disappear. Let scientists pool dully on in scientific ways, they'll never hold the flush of dawn nor lengthen youthful days.

Safe-ty First.

Brooklyn burglars are becoming real home bodies these days When a cracksman has a little job on hand, he quietly drops around for the safe, carts it home and leisurely "busts" it in the calm and peace of the domestic fireside. This, too, might be called a matter of safety first.

PRE-MURDER LOVE NOTES

By N. N. D.

I HAVE read to me the first of our love letters in cold type. Soon I may [illegible] be colder than the average New York flat in January. My sweetheart and I have decided to have our love letters published before we are murdered by either of our highly or ill-mated spouses, are highly enthused over the wonderful reception we have received from the public and the police.

Already sixty-nine wives from all sections of the country have offered to correspond with me and one hundred and thirty-two married men have telegraphed and written letters exhorting my loved one to leave me in the name of decency and—go to Him! Both of us have refused all offers to date.

The second batch of sterling love letters that have passed between us follows. Read 'em and weep!

"Dear B. (For gods get past caution of this newspaper).

"It is three o'clock in the morning. This is a statement, Beauty, and not the name of a song. I have been up all night thinking of you. I cannot sleep on account of a severe toothache. Hereafter at the little secret parties we have we'll have to dispense with the pies you bake with your own dear hands. I'd rather place my trust and teeth in the care of the baker.

"What a joyous thing a love [illegible] Caesar died for it—or was it Mark Antony? I do seem to forget one an[illegible] things so easily. Even the fact that I am married escapes me and when a man gets into that condition he has reached the zenith of joy!

You looked so adorable in the moonlight last night. And your molten kisses—what a volcano of love! And what an eruption there would be if anybody discovered us! Martha, however, is safe.

"The only one I really fear, love of loves, bliss of blisses, is your husband. He's a night watchman and might catch us. But then I haven't we the right once in a while to be out—out of luck, I mean? Then the murder would be that much nearer and how I revel in the day when it will come! ...

"My heart is full, darling. My head is even fuller—of that punk home brew your husband made for himself. But never worry—it will all end some day.

"I must cease writing now. My pen has run out of ink and Martha sleeps with the bottle of ink under her pillow in order to prevent me using it at night. I can't wait to get your dear [illegible] reply. Please rush it collect by messenger.

"Yours, OATS."

The reply to this passionate epistle follows in full. Although I was only joking about the collect business, Beauty took me seriously. She's so demure, so—simple. ...

"Dearest Oaty:

"Your son awoke me from a blissful slumber to get your dear note. It was splendid of you to stay awake on my account and if my pies can do that to you just think, oats, what a [illegible] cookies ought to do.

"I [illegible] adore the ground you walk on. You are so stalwart, so [illegible] so manly, and I've often wondered why you don't try to reduce.

"I enjoy the sensation of reading our love letters in print. It gives it a kind of exclusiveness denied couples who are murdered before their literary achievements win instant recognition.

"I can't wait until morning to meet you. I've got a dressmaker's bill I want you to pay.

"Everlastingly and soulfully yours, "B."

(Note—Thus far we have escaped being murdered by either injured party in the case. We have a sneaking suspicion, however, that the readers of these letters may do the dirty trick, so we are engaging private detectives to follow us to our [illegible].

Should They Not?

We intend no disrespect for the law, but should not these dry agents have sufficient decency to wear evening clothes when raiding these exclusive night clubs?

WHEN KNIGHTHOOD WAS IN FLOWER

See This Romance of Princess Mary Tudor Starring Marion Davies in Super Motion Pictures Which Are Now Showing at the Park Theatre

World-Famous Story of the All-Conquering Power of Love Over the Heart of the Wilful and Beautiful Sister of the Autocratic King Henry VIII.

By Charles Major

Princess Mary swears in the king's hearing that she will never marry King Louis

I BEGAN to soften at the sight of Mary's grief, and concluded, with Brandon, that, after all, her beauty could well cover a multitude of sins, perhaps even this, her great transgression against him.

The princess was trying to check her weeping and in a moment took up the thread of her unfinished sentence. "And Master Brandon, too, left without saying one word to me. Not a line nor a syllable. He did not come near me, but went off as if I did not care—or he did not. Of course he did not care, or he would not have behaved so, knowing I was in so much trouble. I did not see him at all after—one afternoon in the king's—about a week before that awful night in London, except that night, when I was so frightened I could not speak one word of all the things I wished to say."

This sounded strangely enough, and I began more than ever to suspect something wrong. However, kept as firm a grasp as possible upon the book of indignation I had brought with me.

"How did you expect to see or hear from him," asked I, "when he was lying in a loathsome dungeon without one ray of light, condemned to be hanged, drawn and quartered, because of your selfish neglect to save him who, at the cost of half his blood, and almost his life, had saved so much for you?"

Her eyes grew big and the tears were checked by genuine surprise

I continued: "Lady Mary, no one could have made me believe that you would stand back and let the man, to whom you owed so great a debt, lie so long in such misery and be condemned to such a death for the act that saved you. I could never have believed it!"

"Imp of hell!" screamed Mary "what tale is this you bring to torture me? Have I not enough already? Tell me it is a lie, or I will have your miserable little tongue torn out by the root."

It is no lie, princess, but an awful truth, and a frightful shame to you"

I was determined to tell her all and let her see herself as she was

She gave a hysterical laugh and throwing up her hands, with her accustomed little gesture, fell upon the bed in utter abandonment shaking as with a spasm. She did not weep; she could not; she was past that now. Jane went over to the bed and tried to soothe her.

In a moment Mary sprang to her feet, exclaiming, "Master Brandon condemned to death and you and I here talking and moaning and weeping. Come, come, we will go to the King at once. We will start to walk, Edwin—I must be doing something—and Jane can follow with the horses and overtake us. No, I will not dress; just as I am; this will do. Bring me a hat, Jane, any one, any one." While putting on hat and gloves she continued: "I will see the King at once and tell him all! all! I will do anything; I will marry that old King of France, or forty kings, or forty devils; it is all one to me, anything! anything to save him. Oh! to think that he has been in that dungeon all this time" And the tears came unheeded in a deluge.

She was under such headway, and spoke and moved so rapidly, that I could not stop her until she was nearly ready to go. Then I held her by the arm while I said:

"It is not necessary now; you are too late."

A look of horror came into her face, and I continued slowly: "I procured Brandon's release nearly a week ago; I did what you should have done, and he is now at our rooms in Greenwich."

Mary looked at me a moment, and, turning pale, pressed her hands to her heart and leaned against the door frame

After a short silence she said "Edwin Caskoden—fool! Why could you not have told me that at first? I thought my brain would burn and my heart burst"

"I should have told you had you given me time. As to the past it gave you time—this was the last charge of my large magazine of indignation—"I care very little about that. You deserve it. I do not know what explanation you have to offer, but nothing can excuse you. An explanation, however good, would have been little comfort to you had Brandon failed you at Billingsgate that night"

She had fallen into a chair by this time and sat in reverie, staring at nothing. Then the tears came again, but more softly.

"You are right; nothing can excuse me. I am the most selfish, ungrateful, guilty creature ever born. A whole month in that dungeon" And she covered her drooping face with her hands.

"Go away for awhile, Edwin, and then return; we shall want to see you again," said Jane

Upon my return Mary was more composed. Jane had dressed her hair, and she was sitting on the bed in her riding habit, hat in hand. Her fingers were nervously toying at the ribbons and her eyes cast down.

"You are surely right, Sir Edwin. I have no excuse. I can have none; but I will tell you how it was. You remember the day you left me in the waiting room of the king's council?—when they were discussing my marriage without one thought of me, as if I were but a slave or a dumb brute that could not feel." She began to weep a little, but soon recovered herself. "While waiting for you to return, the Duke of Buckingham came in. I knew Henry was trying to sell me to the French king, and my heart was full of trouble—from more causes than you can know. All the council, especially that butcher's son, Wove urging him on, and Henry himself was anxious that the marriage should be brought about. He thought it would strengthen him for the imperial crown. He wants everything, and is ambitious to be emperor. Emperor! He would cut a pretty figure! I hoped, though, I should be able to induce him not to sacrifice me to his selfish interests, as I have done before, but I knew only too well it would tax my powers to the utmost this time. I knew that if I did anything to anger or to antagonize him, it would be all at an end with me. You know he is so exacting with other peoples' comfort, for one who is so careless of his own—so virtuous by proxy. You remember how cruelly he disgraced and crushed poor Lady Chesterfield, who was in such trouble about her husband, and who went to Grouche's only to learn if he were true to her. Henry seems to be particularly sensitive in that direction.

A SPLENDID SEPARATE WAIST AND SKIRT STYLE

4009-4173. For the waist one could have crepe, flannel or linen. The skirt could be of twill woolen novelty mixtures, plaid suiting, serge or prunella.

The skirt pattern is cut in six sizes, 25, 27, 29, 31, 33 and 35 inches waist measure. It will require 2¾ yards of 40-inch material for a 29-inch size. The waist pattern is cut in seven sizes, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measure. A 38-inch size requires 2¼ yards of 32-inch material.

A POPULAR SERVICEABLE UNDERGARMENT

4191 A slip is a very essential garment. The model here shown is easy to develop. It has good lines, and comfortable fulness. It may be made of long cloth, batiste, crepe, silk or satin. As here shown batiste and filet lace are combined.

The pattern is cut in four sizes, small, 34-36; medium, 38-40; large, 42-44; extra large, 46-48 inches bust measure. A medium size requires three yards of 36-inch material.

A PRETTY FROCK FOR SLENDER FIGURES

4124. Youthful lines and becoming plait fulness are pleasing features of this style. It is nice for all crepe weaves as well as for voile, gingham and tub silk. Serge and kasha cloth also would be suitable

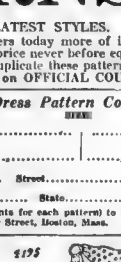
The pattern is cut in three sizes, 16, 18 and 20 years. An 18-year size requires 5¼ yards of 36-inch material. The width of the skirt at the foot is 2¼ yards, of 32-inch material.

A SET OF BIBS FOR BABY

4194. These accessories are very serviceable, as all mothers know. No. 1 is illustrated in rubberized gingham, with basket stitching for a finish. A binding of tape is also suitable

No. 2 may be of rubber drill, terry cloth, linen or gingham. The pocket may be omitted

The pattern is cut in one size. To make either style will require ⅝ yard of 36-inch material. This affords making the bibs in 3 ply.



SET OF SERVICEABLE BAGS

4195. Denim, cretonne, drill, unbleached muslin, sanitas and rubberized cloth may be used for these models. No. 1 is a very simple design. No. 2 is a very useful bag with a number of pockets not only for shoes and slippers, but for other small articles. The ring at the top forms a convenient hanger. No. 3 is attractive as a child's shoe bag.

The pattern is cut in one size, medium. No. 1 will require ⅝ yard, No. 2 requires 1¼ yards, No. 3 requires ⅝ yard.

A POPULAR STYLE FOR A GROWING GIRL

4188. The cap shoulder and smart bell sleeve are good features of this pretty model. This is a good style for combining materials, or for remodeling.

The pattern is cut in four sizes, 8, 10, 12 and 14 years. A 12-year size requires four yards of 32-inch material. To make the waist portions and a sash of contrasting material as illustrated, will require 1⅞ yards 40 inches wide.

A SET OF TOY ANIMALS

2967. These toys will please the "little tots." They may be made of toweling, flannel, felt, plush, velvet and other pile fabrics. For stuffing cork could be used if one wants a toy that will stand wetting; or one could use sawdust, bran or cotton.

The pattern is cut in one size. The cow requires ⅝ yard of 27-inch material and the Horse ⅞ yard of 36-inch material.

A SMART "OVER THE SKIRT" BLOUSE

4168. One of the newest models is here portrayed. The closing is at the shoulder edges The lines are youthful and especially adapted to slender figures. Crepe, silk or crepe de chine could be used for this style.

The pattern is cut in six sizes, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure.

One day I was riding on a street car with my sister. It was quite a windy day.

We were laughing and talking together, when all of a sudden my hat blew off in the street. The car stopped and I had to run after my hat. Imagine how I felt when I came back. They were all laughing at me.

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a Harmless Substitute

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. These little olive-colored tablets are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel

The pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth or cause nausea or griping. They take hold of the trouble and quickly relieve it. They cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel. Let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

Headaches, "dullness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "logy" and "heavy." They "clear" clouded brain and "perk up" the spirits. 10c and 30c.

To Keep Hair Wavy, Lustrous, Beautiful

The Plain Liquid Silmerine

The use of the hot curling-iron cannot be too strongly condemned. It means death to the hair eventually. Moreover it is entirely unnecessary. Long or bobbed hair can be kept beautifully wavy and curly to any extent and in any form desired, by using the simple and harmless Silmerine method. Liquid Silmerine should be applied to the hair before doing it up, using a clean tooth brush. In about three hours you will find that a very pretty "natural" wave and curliness has resulted, and the effect will last quite a considerable time

Liquid Silmerine (put up by Parker-Belmont Co., Chicago), is really beneficial and is not sticky nor greasy. Neither does it streak the hair nor stain the scalp. You need get only a few ounces from your druggist. The best way is to divide the front and back hair into from four to six strands and to moisten each strand separately from root to tip.

PINEX for Coughs

You've probably heard of this home-made cough syrup. But have you ever used it? Thousands of families feel that they could hardly keep house without it. It's simple and cheap, but the way it takes hold of a cough will soon earn it a permanent place in your home

Into a pint bottle, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add plain granulated sugar syrup to fill up the pint. Or, if clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup, is tastes good, never spoils, and gives you a full pint of better cough remedy than you could buy ready-made for three times its cost.

It is really wonderful how quickly this home-made remedy conquers a cough—usually in 24 hours or less. It seems to penetrate through every air passage, loosens a dry, hoarse or tight cough, lifts the phlegm, heals the membrance, and gives almost immediate relief. Splendid for whooping cough, bronchitis and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, and has been used for generations for throat and chest ailments.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else that is claimed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Great Exposure of How Japanese Treat Their Women

SUPPRESSED BY JAPANESE GOVERNMENT

This startling and intensely interesting story of the Cherry Blossom Kingdom, telling what the Japanese think of women, was suppressed by the Japanese government. The expose has stunned Europe and opened the eyes of the world to what has really been going on. John Paris, the author, was an English diplomat there for years.

guardians, were also present. But the Orient was submerged beneath the flood of rank and fashion, which, as one lady put it, had to take care how it stepped for fear of crushing the little creatures.

"Why did you let him do it?" said Mrs. Markham to her sister.

"It was a mistake, my dear," whispered Lady Everington. "I meant her for somebody quite different."

"And you're sorry now?"

"No, I have no time to be sorry over" replied that eternally graceful and youthful Egeria, who is one of London's most powerful social influences. "It will be interesting to see what becomes of them."

Lady Everington has been criticised for story-heartedness, for opportunism, and for selfish abuse of her husband's vast wealth. She has been likened to an experimental chemist, who mixes discordant elements together in order to watch the results, chilling them in ice or heating them over the fire, until the lives burst in fragments or the color slowly fades out of them. She has been called an artist in mesalliances, a mismatchmaker of dangerous cunning, a dangler of picturesque boggarmaids before romantic-eyed Cophetuas, a daring promoter of incongruous American girls and a champion of musical comedy peeresses. Her house has been likened to the Junior Bachelors Club. The charming young men who seem to be bound to its hospitable board by invisible chains are the material for her dashing improvisations and the dramatic personae of the scenes of little domestic comedies which she likes to keep floating around her in different stages of development.

Geoffrey Barrington had been the secretary of this club, and a favorite with the divinity who presided over it. We had all supposed that he would remain a bachelor; and the advent of Asako Fujinami into London society gave us at first no reason to change our opinion. But she was certainly attractive

She ought to have been married in a kimono. There was no doubt about it now, when there was more liberty to inspect her, as she stood there shaking hands with hundreds of guests and murmuring her "Thank you very much" to the reiterated congratulations.

The white satin was perfectly cut and of a shade to give its full value to her complexion, a waxen complexion like old ivory or even a magnolia petal, in which the Mongolian yellow was even so faintly discernible. It was a sweet little face, oval and smooth; but it might have been called expressionless if it had not been for a dimple which peeped and vanished around a corner of the small compressed mouth, and for the dark, deep brown eyes, like the eyes of deer or like pools of forest water eyes full of mystery and fascination. This was the feature which struck most of us as we took the opportunity to orate her. That a woman with the glamour of her kimono stripped from her. They were the eyes of the Oriental or, a creature closer to the animal than we are, lit by instinct more often than by reason, and hiding a soul in its infancy, a repressed, timorous, uncertain thing" shamodestly violent and habitually secretive and aloof.

Sir Ralph Cairns, the famous diplomat, was talking on this subject to Professor Ironside.

"The Japanese are extraordinarily quick," he was saying, "the most adaptable people since the ancient Greeks, whom they resemble in some ways. But they are more superficial. The intellect races on ahead, but the heart lingers in the Dark Ages."

"Perhaps intermarriage is the solution of the great racial problem," suggested the professor.

"Never," said the old administrator. "Keep the breed pure be it white, black or yellow. Bastard races cannot flourish. They are waste of nature."

The professor glanced towards the bridal pair.

"And these also?" he asked.

"Perhaps," said Sir Ralph, "but in her case her education has been so entirely European.

Hereupon Lady Everington approaching, Sir Ralph turned to her and said:

"Dear lady, let me congratulate you: this is your masterpiece."

"Sir Ralph," said the hostess, already looking to see which of her guests she would next pounce upon, "you know the East so well. Give me one little piece of advice to hand over to the children before they start on their honey moon."

Sir Ralph smiled benignly.

"Where are they going?" he asked.

"Everywhere," replied Lady Everington, "they are going to travel."

"Then let them travel all over the world," he answered, "only not to Japan. That is their Blueheard's chamber. I told Ito that they must not look."

There was more discussion of bridegroom shaking hands with hundreds of guests and murmuring her "Thank you very much" to the reiterated congratulations.

"Where women sat in cages like animals in a zoo" moment previous to your wedding, when they know you neither too little nor too much. By long experience I have learnt to fix it to a day. But I am not going to compete with this undistinguished harshness. I give you my pictures to stand in your drawing-room as an artist puts his signature to a completed masterpiece, so that when you look around upon the furniture, the silver, the cut glass, the clocks, the ungarnered tablets, and the tantalus stands, the offerings of the rich whose names you have long ago forgotten then you will confess to yourself in a burst of thankfulness to your fairy godmother that all this would never have been yours if it had not been for her"

In a corner of the room and apart from the more ostentatious homage, stood on a small table a large market-basket, in which was lying a huge red fish, a roguish, rollicking mullet with a roving eye, all made out of a soft, crinkly silk. In the basket beneath it were rolls and rolls of plain silk, red and white. This was an offering from the Japanese community in London, the conventional wedding present of every Japanese home from the richest to the poorest, varying only in size and splendor. On another small table lay a bundle of brown objects like prehistoric axe heads, bound round with red and white string, and vaguely odorous of bloater-paste. Those were dried flesh of the fish called katsuobushi by the Japanese, whose absence would have brought misfortune to the newly married. Behind them, on a little tray, stood a miniature landscape representing an aged pine-tree by the sea shore and a little cottage with a couple of old, old people standing at its door, two exquisite little dolls dressed in rough, poor kimonos, brown and white. The old man holds a rake, and the old woman holds a broom. They have very kindly faces and white silken hair. Any Japanese would recognize them at once as the Old People of Takasago, the personification of the Perfect Marriage. They are staring with wonder and alarm at the Brandan sapphires, a monumental parure designed for the massive state of some Early-Victorian Lady Brandan.

Asako Fujinami had spent days rejoicing over the arrival of her presents, little interested in the identity of the givers but fascinated by the things themselves. She had taken hours to arrange them in harmonious groups. Then a new gift would arrive which would upset the balance, and she would have to begin all over again.

Besides this treasury in the dining room, there were all her clothes, packed now for the honeymoon, a whole wardrobe of fairy-like disguises, wonderful gowns of all colors and shapes and materials. These, it is true, she had bought herself. She had always been surrounded by money; but it was only since she had lived with Lady Everington that she had begun to learn something about the thousand different ways of spending it, and all the lovely things for which it can be exchanged. So all her new things, whatever their source, seemed to her like presents, like unexpected enrichments. She had basked among her new acquisitions, silent as was her wont when she was happy, sunning herself in the warmth of her prosperity. Best of all, she never need wear kimonos again in public. Her fiance had acceded to this, her most immediate wish. She could dress now like the girls around her. She would no longer be stared at like a curio in a shop window. Inquisitive fingers would no longer clutch at the long sleeves of crinkled silk, or try to probe the secret of the huge butterfly bow on her back. She could step out fearlessly now like English women. She could give up the mincing walk and the timid manner which she felt was somehow unspeakably that of a native Japanese.

When she told her protectress that Geoffrey had consented to its abandonment, Lady Everington had heaved a sigh .

"Poor Kimono!" she said, "it has served you well. But I suppose a soldier is glad to put his uniform away when the fighting is over. Only, never forget the mysterious power of the uniform over the other sex."

Another day when her Ladyship had been in a bad mood, she had snapped—

"Put those things away, child, and keep to your kimono. It is your natural plumage. In those borrowed plumes you look undistinguished and undefied."

The Japanese Ambassador to the Court of St. James proposed the health of the bride and bridegroom. Count Saito was a small, wise man, whom long sojourn in European countries had to some extent de-orientalised. His hair was grizzled, his face was seamed, and he had a peering way of gazing through his gold-rimmed spectacles with head thrust forward like a man half blind, which he certainly was not.

"Ladies and gentlemen," he said, "it is a great pleasure for me to be present on this occasion, for I think this wedding is a personal compliment to myself and to my work in this splendid country. Mr. and Mrs. Geoffrey Barrington are the living symbols of the Anglo-Japanese Alliance; and I hope they will always remember the responsibility resting on their shoulders. The bride and bridegroom of today must feel that the relations of Great Britain and Japan depend upon the perfect harmony of their married life. Ladies and gentlemen, let us drink long life and happiness to Mr. and Mrs. Geoffrey Barrington, to the Union Jack and to the Rising Sun!"

The toast was drunk and three cheers were given, with an extra cheer for Mrs. Geoffrey. The band, who was no hand at speech-making, replied—and his good-natured voice was quite thick with emotion—that is was awfully good of them all to give his wife and himself such a ripping send-off, and awfully good of Count Saito and Lady Everington especially, and awfully good of Count Saito and that he was the happiest man in the world and the luckiest, and that his wife had told him to tell them all that she was the happiest woman, though he really did not see why she should be. Anyhow he would do his best to give her a jolly good time. He thanked his friends for their good wishes and for their beautiful presents. They had had jolly good times together, and, in return for all their kindness, he and his wife wanted to wish them all a jolly good time.

So spoke Geoffrey Barrington; and at that moment many people present must have felt a pang of regret that this fine specimen of England's young manhood should marry an Oriental. He was over six feet high. His broad shoulders seemed to stoop a little with the lazy strength of a good-tempered carnivore, of Una's lion, and his face, which was almost round, was set off by a mane of the real lion color. He wore his moustache rather longer than was the fashion. It was a face which seemed ready to laugh at any moment—or else to yawn. For there was about the man's character and appearance something indolent and half-awakened and much of the schoolboy. Yet he was over thirty. But there is always a tendency for Army life to be merely a continuation of public-school existence. Eton merges into Sandhurst, and Sandhurst merges into the regiment. One's companions are all the time men of the same class and of the same ideas. The discipline is the same, the conventionality and the presiding fetish of Good and Bad Form. So many generals are perennial school boys. They lose their freshness, that is all.

But Geoffrey Barrington had not lost his freshness. This was his great charm, for he certainly was not quick or witty. Lady Everington said that she kept him as a disinfectant to purify the atmosphere.

"This house," she declared, "sometimes gets over-scented with tuberoses. Then I open the window and let Geoffrey Barrington in!"

He was the only son of Lord Brandan and heir to that ancient but impoverished title. He had been brought up to the idea that he must marry a rich wife. He neither jibbed foolishly at the proposal, nor did he surrender lightly to any of the willing heiresses who threw themselves at his head. He accepted his destiny with the fatalism which every soldier must carry in his knapsack, and took up his post as Mars in attendance in Lady Everington's drawing-room, recognising that there lay the strategic point for achieving his purpose. His wife was not without hope, too, that besides obtaining the money-bags he might be as fortunate as to fall in love with the possessor of them.

Asako Fujinami, whom he had first met at dinner at Lady Everington's, had crossed his mind just like an exquisite bar of melody. He made no comments at the time, but he could not forget her. The haunting tune came back to him again and again. By the time that she had floated in his arms through three or four dances, the spell had worked. La Belle dame sans merci, the enchantress who lurks in every woman, had him in thrall. Her simplest observations seemed to him to be pearls of wisdom, her every movement a triumph of grace.

"Reggie," he said to his friend Forsyth, "what do you think of that little Japanese girl?"

Reggie, who was a diplomat by profession and a musician by the grace of God, and whose intuition was almost feminine, especially where Geoffrey was concerned, answered:

"Why, Geoffrey, are you thinking of marrying her?"

"By Jove!" exclaimed his friend, starting as if he thought as at a discovery; "but I don't think she'd have me. I'm not her sort."

"You never can tell," suggested Reggie mischievously. "She is quite unspoilt, and she has twenty thousand a year. She is unique. You could not possibly get her confused with somebody else's wife, as so many people seem to do when they get married. Why not try?"

Reggie thought that such a mating was impossible, but it amused him to play with the idea. As for Lady Everington, who knew everybody else so well, and who thought that she knew them perfectly, she never guessed.

"I think, Geoffrey, that you like to be seen with Asako," she said, "just to point the contrast."

Her confession was lost upon Mrs. Markham, was the truth. She had made a mistake; she had destined Asako for somebody quite different. It was the girl herself who had been the first to enlighten her. She came to her hostess's boudoir one evening before the labors of the night began.

"Lady Georgie," she had said—Lady Everington is Lady Georgie to all who know her even a little. "Il faut que je vous dise quelque chose." The girl's face glanced downward and sideways, as her habit was when embarrassed.

When Asako spoke in French it meant that something grave was afoot. She was afraid that her unsteady English might muddle what she intended to say. Lady Everington knew that it must be another proposal; she had already dealt with three.

"Eh bien, cette fois qui est-il?" she asked.

"Le capitaine Geoffrol," answered Asako. Then her friend knew it was serious.

"What did you say to him?" she demanded.

"I tell him he must ask you."

"But why drag me into it? It's your own affair."

"In France and in Japan," said Asako, "a girl dq not say Yes and No herself. It is her father and her mother who decide. I have no father or mother; so I think he must ask you."

"And what do you want me to say?"

For answer Asako gently squeezed the elder woman's hand, but Lady Georgie was in no mood to return the pressure. The girl at once felt the absence of the response, and said,—

"What, you do not like the capitaine Geoffrol?"

But her fairy godmother answered bitterly,—

"On the contrary, I have a considerable affection for Geoffrey."

"Then," cried Asako, starting up, "you think I am not good enough for him. It's because I'm not—not English."

She began to cry. In spite of her superficial hardness, Lady Everington has a very tender heart. She took the girl in her arms.

"Dearest child," she said, raising the little, moist face to hers, "don't cry. In England we answer this great question ourselves. Our fathers and mothers and fairy godmothers have to accept. If Geoffrey Barrington has asked you to marry him, it is because he loves you. He does not scatter proposals like visiting cards, as some young men do. In fact, I have never heard of him proposing to anyone before. He does not want you to say, 'No,' of course. But are you quite ready to say 'Yes'? Very well, wait for a fortnight, and don't see more of him than you can help in the meantime. Now let them send for my maid-servant. It is nothing so exhausting to the aged as the motions of young people."

That evening, when Lady Everington met Geoffrey at the theatre, she took him severely to task for treachery, secrecy and decadence. He was very humble and admitted all his faults except the last, pleading as his excuse that he could not get Asako out of his head.

"Yes, that is a symptom," said her Ladyship; "you are clearly stricken. So I fear I am too late to effect a rescue. All I can do is to congratulate you both. But, remember, a wife is not nearly so fugitive as a melody, unless she is the wife of a Mikado."

It was a wrench for the little lady to part with the oldest of her friendships, and to give up her Geoffrey to the care of a fascinating stranger whose qualities were unknown and undeveloped. But who knew but the answer would be at the end of the fortnight. So she steeled her nerves to laugh at her friends' commiserations and to receive the congratulations of her god-children one of the season's successes. It would certainly be an interesting addition to her museum of dramas.

There was one person whom Lady Everington was determined to pump for information on that wedding-day, and that was Asako, into the not of her invitations for this very purpose. It was Count Saito, the Japanese ambassador.

She cornered him as he was admiring the presents, and whisked him away to the silence and twilight of her husband's study.

"I am so glad you were able to come, Count Saito," she began. "I suppose you know the Fujinamis, Asako's relations in Tokyo?"

"No, I do not know them," His Excellency answered, but his tone conveyed to the lady's instinct that he personally would not wish to know them.

"But you know the name, do you not?"

"Yes, I have heard the name; there are many families called Fujinami in Japan."

"And very rich?"

"Yes, I believe there are some who are very rich," said the little diplomat, who clearly was ill at ease.

"Where does their money come from?" his inquisitor went on remorselessly. "Is it anything something from me, Count Saito, Please be frank, if there is any mystery."

"Oh no, Lady Everington, there is no mystery, I am sure. There is one family of Fujinami who have many lands and lands in Tokyo and other towns. I will be quite open with you. They are rather what you in England would call nouveaux riches."

When a Girl Marries—By Ann Lisle

RALPH LACY had contributed nothing to this badinage.

"I'M COUNTING ON MY DARTH TO MAKE YOU FORGET THE PRELIMINARIES, TOO, MR. LACY.

He merely smiled with what I fancied was shyness and a bit of uncertainty concerning the proper way to treat this gracious and charming woman, who was at once his hostess and a stranger. Evidently Virginia also felt this, for she turned to Ralph Lacy, and said:

"I'm counting on my sister to make you forget the preliminaries, too, Mr. Lacy. And I don't think anyone ever counted in vain on Anne Harrigon. So you're going to be one of us by tea time. Now to business, mes enfants! You look capable of handling fairly important affairs in your conference. No one shall disturb you here. Or would you prefer the Summer house, Anne?"

"Business here, thank you, Virginia," I replied. "And no one shall disturb you and Pat in the Summer house."

"You are clever," she laughed, and the touch of crimson in her cheeks was a pleasant confession that Virginia isn't too grande dame to be very much "blushing bride" where her love for Pat is concerned.

Flinging a good-by over her shoulder, Virginia hurried away, leaving us to our "conference."

"She's peach of the peaches!" cried Park, blasting his hand in the general direction in which Virginia had departed.

"The most charming woman I've met seem to belong to the Harrison group," Mr. Lacy laughed experimentally.

For a moment I wondered if Virginia had introduced a false note by her marked friendliness. It seems possible that even so fine a man as I've always been sure Mr. Lacy is might yield to his masculine vanity and place himself a bit overmuch on the information that I'd spoken of him in friendly terms and in unusual terms. But my unworthy doubts were laid once and forever when Mr. Lacy went on seriously and humbly:

"I wonder if you can guess what this means to me? When a boy has slept in packing boxes and had to plug along twenty-four hours out of twenty-four to climb up in the world over them—he hasn't had much spare time to study real gentle folk.

"And he hasn't had much chance to get close enough to do any studying at that. So being welcomed on this taken-for-granted basis, being treated as a friend and not as a mere—'tradesman' is enough to raise the temperature of a Medicine Hat Lizzard to Palm Beach sunshine."

I couldn't find words for a moment. I was deeply touched and completely ashamed for having misjudged this modest and appreciative soul. But Park handled the situation with promptness and dispatch. He marched over and flung his arm about Ralph Lacy's broad shoulders and gave him a funny little pat on the cheek as he said in a seriocomic voice:

"Good boy, Lake. Now make a nice bow to teacher, and then we will tell her all about the nice surprise party she's going to help us spring on Aunt May tomorrow night."

"Now guess where we've come from?" demanded Park, turning his attention from Ralph Lacy to me, as he pulled out one of the big Dresswell wing chairs with a flourish and made me at home in the living room, of which Virginia had appointed me hostess pro tem.

"Where do you come from, baby, dear, out of the nowhere into the here?" he declaimed, with what seemed just a flourish of his irrepressible boyishness. No one made the lightest attempt to answer or interrupt. And he rambled on happily.

I had an idea that he was feeling very tender toward Ralph Lacy that he wanted to give his friends and that he wanted to get a grip on himself and reality again. No doubt Park understood his friend with a fineness of perception that nothing in his big, seemingly commonplace and very obvious good looks presaged his possessing.

He conveyed his purpose to me clearly.

USE SULPHUR TO HEAL YOUR SKIN

Broken Out Skin and Eczema Helped Over Night by Mentho-Sulphur

For unsightly skin eruptions, rash or blotches on face, neck, arms or body, you do not have to wait for relief from torture or embarrassment, declares a noted skin specialist. Apply a little Mentho-Sulphur and improvement shows next day.

Because of its germ-destroying properties, nothing has ever been found to take the place of this sulphur preparation. The moment you apply it healing begins. Only those who have had unsightly skin troubles can know the delight this Mentho-Sulphur brings. Even fiery, itching eczema is dried right up.

Get a small jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur from any good druggist and use it like cold cream.

Loosen Up That Cold With Musterole

Have Musterole handy when a cold starts. It has all of the advantages of grandmother's mustard plaster WITHOUT the blister. You just apply it with the fingers. First you feel a warm tingle as the healing ointment penetrates the pores, then comes a soothing, cooling sensation and quick relief.

Made of pure oil of mustard and other simple ingredients, Musterole is recommended by many nurses and doctors. Try Musterole for bronchitis, sore throat, stiff neck, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, croup, asthma, neuralgia, congestion, pains and aches of the back or joints, sore muscles, sprains, bruises chilblains, frosted feet, colds of the chest. It may prevent pneumonia and "flu." 35c and 65c, jars and tubes.

Better than a mustard plaster

MUSTEROLE

IT WILL NOT BLISTER

HOW TO GET BACK THE "JOY OF LIFE"

LIFE isn't worth living if you're so weak and run down you can hardly drag yourself around.

If the rich red blood, full of health and vigor, were pumping through your veins, the joy of life would come back soon enough! Gude's Pepto-Mangan has worked this magic for thousands—it will do the same for you. Take it for a short time and see how your health and strength improve. Your druggist has it—liquid or tablets, as you prefer.

FORBES' VIEWS ON FINANCE

By B. C. Forbes

Hopping from one town to another covering one-night stands, making speeches every day, trying to interview everybody and see everything, and writing articles in-between every day—all this isn't exactly conducive to calm, mature, clear thinking concerning the broader aspects of the business outlook.

The one thought uppermost in my mind at this moment is this:

Business men should very deliberately and determinedly make up their minds not to be stampeded unduly, not to become excited, no matter whether things develop more favorably or less favorably than they had calculated.

Let me hasten to say that I have found that the recovery has been quite marked almost everywhere I have lately gone in such States as Illinois, Michigan, Indiana and Ohio. At no point is there unemployment; rather complaints are quite numerous that enough workers cannot be obtained and retained.

Most plants are either running full time or approaching full volume production. One hears numerous instances of plants working a great deal of overtime.

All this has brought about a pronounced optimism among the majority of business men, which, also are talking very cheerfully.

This, of course, is gratifying. It certainly is some satisfaction to have transformed a three-million over-supply of labor into a scarcity of labor within eighteen months. It certainly is some achievement to have transformed the pessimism of last fall into the optimism of this fall. It is certainly some achievement to have transformed the record ink figures of 1921 into the black ink figures of 1922.

Well, I cannot but feel that it were well to temper optimism with a deep rooted determination not to become upset should one or two cogs slip, and also not to become unrestrainedly exuberant should a few boom indications make their appearance.

* * *

In one or two very important banking circles, where serious thinking is indulged in and where coming events sometimes cast their shadows beforehand, I detected a distinctly cautious note. To be more explicit, I was told that already there are discernible slight eddies and currents, just sufficient to them to cause those having their fingers on financial and business pulses and their hands on the purse strings—to act a trifle conservatively.

Mind you, I think it is well that the business and financial community as a whole is in a buoyant feeling optimistic and acting optimistically. The developments of the current year have warranted this notable revival of confidence and faith.

But let us all try to refrain from flying to extremes alike in our expectations and in our actions.

Personally, I regard the talk I have heard fairly often of a coming boom as unthinkly, unwise, even dangerous. There are basic reasons why any boom whooped-up in the near future could not endure and why it would bring on grave complications and disaster.

On the other hand, if the business world keeps its feet firmly on the ground and does not permit its head to rise too far into the air, we might to enjoy a continuance of moderate, rational improvement in a majority of directions.

Price-boosting, it should everywhere be emphasized, is one supreme danger every responsible individual and concern should set their face against.

On this point, may I say that within the last few days I have heard complaints that the woolen trust and certain other interests have not been slow to take advantage of the Chilean coal wreck by way of bankers under the coaching and wire-pulling of what the American public have learned to dub "special interests."

Average quotations for both stocks and bonds on the New York Stock Exchange are several points below the peak of the year.

Bankers, also, are looking for somewhat higher money rates. This would logically mean slightly lower bond prices, but may not bring lower stock prices in view of the betterment in earnings now being reported by many standard companies.

TEX-LA-HOMA OIL CO. FALL CAUSES CRASH

Bankruptcy petition of R. R. Smith, Kansas City, Mo., oil broker, listing liabilities at $1,750,000 and $88.32 cash as assets, shows liabilities included $1,293,293 as result of failure of Tex-La-Homa Oil Co., of which Smith was a director. Eight other directors have listed the same amount in their bankruptcy statements. A large part of the balance was contracted on notes of the Globe Co. and other stocks said to have been worthless.

Smith, for a number of years was a section hand for the Burlington at Kansas, Mo. Later he was elected county treasurer, and after other minor successes, dabbled in oil.

MEXICAN SEABOARD GETS 11,000 BARRELS

Production in Tuteco oil pool in 24 hours ended 7 a. m., November 4, was 83,000 barrels. Gulf Oil obtained 31,000 barrels, Mexican Petroleum 23,000 and Mexican Seaboard 11,000.

Fresh Tops for 1922 Set as Chain Stores Lead Rally in Irregular Market

WOOLWORTH IS UP 16 TO NEW YEAR'S HIGH

Fresh tops for 1922 were set when the chain and department stores group led a rally in the New York stock market after an unsettled opening. Money renewed at 5 per cent.

Woolworth leaped 16 to a new year's high and May Department Stores was also at a high, up more than 4. Kresge added 9. Chile Copper was up more than a point to another 1922 high.

United Fruit added 3 and Otis Elevator took on 6.

DOME IN SLUMP.

Dome Mines, after setting its year's high, slumped on word that directors had decided steps should be taken whereby capital of the company will consist of shares of no par value so that each stockholder may exchange his holdings for new shares at rate of 4 new shares for one share of present capitalization. Stock now pays $2 a year.

The afternoon market presented numerous features of strength among the ordinarily inactive stocks, with the high-priced issues continuing prominent. Du Pont jumped 6¾, Atlas Powder 3 and Bush Terminal preferred 1½, the latter at a new high figure.

BEARS TIMID.

Increased buying of Texas Gulf Sulphur, Piggly Wiggly Stores, Eastman Kodak, Pacific Gas and Electric and American Agricultural preferred, lifted them 1¾ to 2 points. U. S. Steel and Studebaker crept steadily to about where they left off Saturday and large blocks of General Motors and Chile Copper were bought, after the latter broke into new high ground.

Business continued on a restricted scale. The bears seemed disinclined to rush in.

Stewart Speedometer set a year's high.

In late trading Erie and the first preferred slumped more than three points.

Near East Situation Hits Foreign Bonds

In New York bond dealings most of the foreign bonds were reactionary, apparently in response to the increasing seriousness of the Turkish situation. But the decline was orderly and generally within fractional limits.

Among the first to lose ground were Belgian 7½s and 8s, Seine-Inferieure 8s, Bordeaux 6s, Denmark 8s, Japanese first 4s, Argentina 7s and Mexican 5s. Dominion of Canada 5s, however, moved up nearly ½ point.

In the rail list Frisco income 6s dropped more than a point. In this industrial list Julius Kayser 7s advanced a point. Cooper 7s advanced 1¼, then reacted. Magma Copper 7s lost 1¼.

Liberty issues held steady.

Wall St. Gossip

ADAMS EXPRESS dividend action is confidently expected to be favorable at December meeting.

PANHANDLE PRODUCING and Refining Company shows earnings slump to $207,867 in quarter ended September 30, against $242,849 in preceding quarter.

COTTON MARKET is generally agreed to be on the way higher, despite having lately touched highest mark in months.

NEW YORK Standard Oil stockholders were over 97 per cent. represented at meeting which approved stock increase and change in par.

PACIFIC OIL has continued disappointingly reactionary during recent market days.

CARBON STEEL COMPANY, for year ended September 30, reports deficit of $545,025 after all charges, against $1,057,553 previous year.

PUBLIC SERVICE of New Jersey is talked of as about to make its common dividend 4 per cent.

MANHATTAN SHIRT buying is held in distrust by some traders.

NATIONAL BISCUIT is reported about to raise dividends to a basis equal to $17.50 a year, against $7, at present, when capital readjustment is over.

MAY DEPARTMENT Stores will act Wednesday on readjusting its common capitalization. Cash dividends to be paid on new stock, it is expected, will work out better than $12 a share annual basis on present $100 common.

DOME MINES, LTD., October gold production was valued at $382,712, against $403,953 in September and $352,774 in August.

A. A. HOUSMAN & CO.—We doubt general sustained upward movement is imminent in the coppers.

GOODBODY & CO.—News from business world continues good. Would only buy on weak spots.

ARTHUR LIPPER—I continue to advise on sharp bulges a reduction of speculative commitments.

BLOCK, MALONEY & CO.—Subject to moderate setbacks the trend of stocks is upward.

F. B. KEECH & CO.—We look for further market recovery.

LIMA LOCO BOOKED 8 MONTHS AHEAD

Lima Locomotive Works has unfilled orders of about $14,000,000, equivalent to eight months' capacity operations. Since some of its present commitments, totaling 43 locomotives, ordered recently by Illinois Central, is for delivery next July and August, it has some open capacity for next spring.

While St. Paul's inquiry for 100 locomotives is the only large one in the market at present, there are reports of orders under contemplation by several railroads.

REPUBLIC STEEL TO CURTAIL OPERATIONS

Republic Iron & Steel this week will reduce operations at Niles sheet plant to 50 per cent because of accumulation of shipments. Rail connection is being built to tap Baltimore & Ohio, which will relieve the congested situation at this property.

Virtually all independents are now accepting sheet tonnage at Steel Corporation's level.

NATIONAL SHAWMUT SHOWS FIRE SCENES

An interesting exhibition of pictures of scenes from the great Boston Fire of 1872 has been arranged on the main floor of the National Shawmut Bank, Nov. 9 will mark the fiftieth anniversary of this great conflagration, which blotted out the business section of Boston.

FORE RIVER TO FIX NEW HAVEN ENGINES

Fore River plant of the Bethlehem Steel Shipbuilding Corporation for first time has taken contracts to recondition four locomotives of the New Haven Railroad.

TRAVEL BRIEFS
NATIONAL AND INTERNATIONAL

After having made 425 round trips to the Pacific Coast, Joseph Willett, who for many years ran a personally-conducted tourist car from Boston to California via the Burlington Route, has again started for the Coast. On this trip, however, he went as an ordinary private citizen.

Thousands of New Englanders have visited the Pacific Coast region and taken in the sights en route under Willett's direction. Recently he retired and has been living at St. Albans, Vt. When the thermometer began flirting with the freezing mark, the lure of balmy Californian skies proved too strong to withstand.

The total distance traversed by Mr. Willett in his 425 transcontinental journeys is estimated at about 255,000 miles or further than the distance from the earth to the moon.

L. & N. AGENTS HERE.

Ira F. Schwegel and Parker R. Lewis, respectively Eastern passenger agent and traveling passenger agent of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad, with headquarters in New York, were guests at the Fall Round-Up of the Railroad and Steamship Agents' Association last Friday evening.

AGENTS TO SEE FLORIDA AS GUESTS OF RAILROAD

The American Association of Railroad Ticket Agents will hold its annual meeting in Savannah, Georgia, on November 13-14. The Seaboard Air Line Railway has invited the agents attending to make the trip over its route in a special train from Washington.

The trip will include a stop for a day or two at Pinehurst, N. C., as guests of the Carolina Hotel. After the meeting in Savannah, the Seaboard will provide another special train to take the visiting agents down the west coast of Florida, where they will be entertained by the Chambers of Commerce and other organizations at Ocala, Tampa, Clearwater, St. Petersburg and Bradentown.

After visiting the west coast another special train will convey the visitors to the east coast, from whence a journey will be made to Havana, via a boat of the P. & O. Steamship Company. From Havana the party will return to Jacksonville and disband.

F. A. Blaser, New England passenger agent of the Seaboard Air Line, will leave for Washington on November 11, with a party of New England ticket agents making the trip.

C. M. & ST. P. AGENT HERE.

A. P. Chapman, assistant general passenger agent of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad, visited the local office of the railroad during the week. Mr. Chapman, whose headquarters are in Seattle, Wash., returned from a three months' trip to China and the Orient in the interest of his company. He reports conditions in China as not being particularly good from the American standpoint.

200,000 VISIT ROCKY MOUNTAIN NATIONAL PARK.

According to an analysis of travel for the season of 1922, received by John Barnes, general passenger agent of the C. B. & Q. R. R. during his visit to this city during the week, tourist traffic to the Rocky Mountain National Park, Colorado, during the 1922 season was a heavy as during any preceding year, despite the strike and various other unfavorable influences.

The bulletin quotes Roger W. Toll, superintendent of the park, as stating that checkers stationed at each of the three entrances for the 12-day period (July 1 to September 10) counted 108,472 visitors—more than 500 per day. The total estimated travel during the year just passed, owing to out-of-season traffic, is estimated at 219,164 persons.

July was the record month, 31,114 people having entered during 31 days, an average of 1,648 per day. The total through traffic over the Fall River road, making the great circle trip over the Continental Divide through Grand Lake, assumed astonishing proportions, considering the new road of the past year demonstrates the readiness of the average tourist to visit nearby opened regions of spectacular beauty. Residents of 45 of the 48 states were registered, and auto licenses of 40 states were noted in the park.

KENNY TELLS BEAR STORY

John H. Kenny, the genial traveling passenger agent of the Great Northern Railway, with offices in the Old South Building, is credited with a raconteur of exceptional ability—especially about dogs. He is now telling a new one. This time, however, it is about a bear.

This bear, according to Kenny, came down out of the Rocky Mountain Glacier National Park on Sunday, October 22, and demonstrated to the National Park's Bureau that there is more truth than poetry in the old adage, "Better to divide your honey with a bear than to provoke his anger." This huge marauding grizzly, tired of a long diet mer of herbaceous diet and bent upon a "honey spree," broke into the mammoth Many Glacier Hotel which had been closed for the season, and during the height of his spree created a scene of violent, indiscriminate destruction which the movie producers would have paid a large sum to film.

Breaking off the main door from its heavy hinges in approved Western fashion, the bear made straight for the kitchen; took hams and bacons from the ice chests, jams and other dainties from the pantry shelves, and threw them out the window. Bags of sugar were broken into and generally devoured. Windows and sashes were smashed, doors broken down and other damage done, totalling over $2,000. Satisfied with his first night's work, the bear made off at daybreak.

The following day the raid was discovered. Next night a watch was set. Mr. Bear returned for more plunder, and was met at the threshold of the kitchen with a rifle bullet which ploughed through his neck. In his dying fall the huge beast struck an ice box, which collapsed under his tremendous blow.

The intruder was a giant silver-tipped grizzly and measured seven feet nine inches from tip to tip. J. R. Eakin of the Glacier Park—which is located on the line of the Great Northern—took possession of the pelt and will send it to the Smithsonian Institute at Washington.

REAL ESTATE HAPPENINGS

The building lot of 6,000 square feet on Stedman street, next to the corner of Harvard street, Brookline, has been sold by W. Dudley Cotton et al., trustees of the estate of George H. Dexter, to Norman D. Deanfrean, who intends building on the lot at once. The assessed valuation is $2,600. The sale was negotiated through the office of Edward B. Miles of No. 37 State street, Boston.

FLOWER EXCHANGE CONTRACT

The contract for the construction of a mercantile building at Nos. 537-541 Tremont street, Boston, for the Boston Flower Exchange, Inc., has been awarded to L. P. Soule & Son Co. of Boston, according to Brown's Letters, Inc., real estate reporting sheet. The building will be of brick, two stories, 200 by 135 feet. Henry Bailey Alden of Boston is the architect.

"RIVERDALE" AT GROTON SOLD

George B. Kimball of the Hudson Motor Co. has purchased from Frank L. Horne and Mrs. Geraldine Bean estate, known as "Riverdale," at Groton, Mass.

This property, which is in close proximity to the Groton School, is considered one of the finest country estates in Massachusetts. It comprises a splendid example of the Colonial residences of the 1800 period, a superintendent's house, conservatories, sunken gardens, stables and barns. The land comprises 150 acres and extends a mile in depth to the Nashua River. There are about five miles of excellent bridle paths on the estate. Over a quarter of a million dollars has been expended within recent years in the development of the property.

Included in the purchase were the entire furnishings, consisting of rare Oriental rugs, period furniture, old paintings and all the household and farm equipment. From a walled terrace opening off the living room beautiful views can be had of Mount Wachusett and Mount Monadnock.

Mr. Kimball purchased for immediate occupancy. The purchase price and terms are withheld. The office of D. Bradlee Rich & Co. negotiated the sale.

HOPKINTON FARM SOLD

F. F. Baldwin has conveyed to H. G. Wheatley of Bedford the former's farm of 300 acres, with Colonial mansion and farm buildings at Hopkinton. Included in the sale is another smaller farm adjoining which was owned and operated in connection with the larger property. The new owner plans to occupy and carry on the extensive farming operations. The office of Walter Channing negotiated the sale.

CROWD AT HINGHAM

The winding up of the various operations at the naval camp at Hingham, which has been ordered completed by the end of November, by December 15, brought out a large crowd Sunday. The firm of L. Grossman, Sons of Quincy, which has in charge of the operations, had an extra number of guides to show prospective buyers the vast quantities of material to be disposed of. Thousands of these extra guides will be maintained at the camp until the final sale at far discontinuance of sales, as it is expected that many people who have been delaying their visit to the camp will take advantage of the opportunities presented there.

ROXBURY AUCTION SALE

The three-story brick building at Nos. 854-858 A st., 5978 Dawnton avenue and 60-68 Lenox street, Roxbury, containing seven stores and six apartments, will be sold at auction by C. J. Lane & Co. Wednesday afternoon, November 8, at 2:30 o'clock.

Danger of Censorship

English Parliamentary Investigation in 1909 Showed It Had Stunted the Drama

A revolt against English censorship was led by all the distinguished writers of England in 1909. An investigation by a Parliamentary committee into the whole subject showed that censorship of the English stage had stunted English drama and deprived it of its highest attribute—the power to stir the public mind in matters of public importance. The work of the censor has been highly political. He has prevented plays which had political significance, particularly if the politics of the play differed from the politics of the censor. When Disraeli, in 1845, brought out his novel "Coningsby," the censor refused to permit it to be staged because it exhibited a "sort of contrast between the manufacturers and lower classes."

That distinguished contemporary writer, Mr. Bernard Shaw, wrote a political play which passed the censor. This play ridiculed certain Liberal statesmen. Encouraged by his success, Mr. Shaw prepared another play which ridiculed the Conservative statesmen. The play was condemned by the censor. In his indignation Mr. Shaw said:

The objection is clearly to my politics and not to my personalities. The fact is, that I have to ascertain what the censor's politics are before I know whether the play will pass.

The result of Parliamentary investigation was to establish the following facts:

(1) Prepublicity censorship "tends to hinder the growth of a great and serious drama" by discouraging distinguished authors, whose time is valuable, from jeopardizing their time by writing plays which might be destroyed by the whimsical opinion of a censor.

(2) It fails to prevent the production of immoral plays.

(3) It atrophies the exercise of the local police power over local production of immoral plays, because they have been licensed by the national censorship authority.

(4) The censorship authority falls under the influence of the large theatre interests and tends to exercise its censorial powers with undue consideration for box office receipts.

(5) The large theatre interests favor the continuance of the censorship bureau because it gives questionable productions immunity from prosecution by the local authorities.

(6) The great literary lights of England are almost unanimous against prepublicity censorship.

These considerations led the special Parliamentary committee to recommend the abolition of prepublicity censorship in Great Britain.

The Parliamentary committee, after the most elaborate hearings, reached this conclusion:

Censorship of the stage can only be reasonably supported by one prepared to say that books, sermons, speeches, newspaper articles and lectures should be censored as well as plays. . . . The effect of the censorship is to coerce into conformity with conventional standards. But conventional standards are not absolute. It is axiomatic that only through toleration of what one age thinks an error can the next age progress further in the pursuit of truth. . . . In view of the danger that official control over plays before their production may hinder the growth of a great and serious national drama, we conclude that the licensing authority should not have the power to impose a veto on the production of plays.

This is the verdict of the great literary minds and of a Parliamentary committee of Great Britain against even censorship of the stage. In the face of this condemnation it is now proposed to censor also the moving pictures.

VOTE NO.

Make Gaston Your Choice

We think that Mr. Lawrence Ford's reply to the charge that the firm of Gaston, Snow & Saltonstall received several million dollars in fees in ten years from the Boston Elevated is, or ought to be, an effective reply to a most misleading attack upon Mr. Gaston.

When we first read the charge that Mr. Gaston's firm had received so much money from a bankrupt corporation for mere legal fees, we received a shock. It seemed bad, and it would have been bad, but the answer, of course, explains it. Whether, after the deductions which Mr. Ford properly makes, the payments are still excessive, we do not know or pretend to say, but the deductions are very large indeed and ought to have been made by those who first made the accusation.

This newspaper prefers Gaston to Lodge with a perfect understanding of Mr. Gaston's limitations, but we have to make a choice. We always have to make a choice in elections. There never is a perfect candidate; never was and never will be this side of Utopia. So, our task is always to choose between two imperfect opponents. It is a matter of judgment. Mr. Gaston is for a lower tariff. He is for a tariff on finished products and not for any tariff on mere raw materials. This will at least help the cost of living in New England.

He is against the Four-Power Treaty Pact. That means that he is honestly against the whole business of interfering in foreign affairs and subjecting ourselves to the dangers of war. It means also that he was sincere in his opposition to the League of Nations, just as it means that Senator Lodge did not want to keep us free from entangling alliances and when he opposed the League of Nations he was not fighting in the spirit of the Fathers who warned us against entangling alliances.

Aren't these differences alone enough to determine a choice? We think so.

Fitzgerald Will Spur It Up

If you want a man in the Governor's chair who will shake up our State government, awaken it and try out its speed, if you want a man who will do at least these things, but whose promises indicate that he will do a great deal more, then you ought to vote tomorrow for John F. Fitzgerald for Governor.

There are some things about a man which nobody denies, and all admit. These are the things which Fitzgerald can claim as his very own beyond all cavil, beyond the denial even of his worst enemies. He possesses great energy, great optimism, great confidence in his own destiny and the destiny of everything he lays his hands on. He possesses the power to wake things up around him. Nobody can go to sleep within the sphere of his activity. No engine can stall. No locomotive can stop from lack of steam. He is sure to carry on the pace at which the government is going when he leaps aboard and seizes the wheel. He is sure to speed it up.

Be Sure!

Something to Think About

Are We Worth While?

By Bruno Lessing

A PARIS newspaper is having a lot of fun discussing the question whether or not the discovery of America was a good thing for mankind. We are not very popular in Paris just now. It's hard for a creditor to be popular.

This newspaper blames us for furnishing cochineal and indigo, which are the bases of many cosmetics, and for giving the world numerous diseases which it would not otherwise have had. It gives us credit for tobacco, cocktails and our generous support of French dressmakers and milliners. I like to see a newspaper happy.

The ladies of ancient Egypt and Assyria used cosmetics without the help of indigo or cochineal. You find cosmetic pots in their tombs today. They probably wanted to take them along to Heaven.

As for diseases, the only one I can think of that is purely of American origin is the coupon-cutter's thumb. The real pretty diseases that support the doctors were known in Europe when Paris was a Roman village.

In spite of the Anti-Cigarette League, we ought all be glad that we gave the world tobacco. It has been a great consolation. Cocktails we're not so proud of. They are an atrocious drink, whether you believe in prohibition or not. As for supporting French dressmakers, some day we will probably amend our constitution to forbid it.

You could have done much better, Monsieur le Redacteur. You could have arraigned America for its real shortcomings. Our administration of justice is abominable. No one is ever punished for lynching. When a man kills another over a woman he is judged by an unwritten law—which means that the jury tries the murdered man and not the murderer. Women are very rarely punished, no matter what crimes they commit.

Our literary taste is low. Our art is mediocre. Our music is awful. Our specialty is jazz—in intellect and taste.

But we have developed the creature comforts of life. You get your bath tubs, your electric lights, your telephone, your telegraph, your machinery and most of the things that you use in business from us. We showed you how to organize your industries.

Leave It to Europe

Editor Boston American:

Your very wideawake paper started early enough to warn the people against being drugged by propaganda and led to another slaughter, but even moving pictures are showing some of the massacres of the Greeks by the Turks. The only thing they have "forgotten" to mention — that the Greeks struck out to give the Turks just what the Turks are giving them, and now that they're getting licked they're abused and want America to drive the Turks off. It is my opinion that President Harding will defy the community of interests to whom war would be valuable and try to keep us out of this mess, for mess it certainly is, and if those crazy Europeans were allowed to beat each other into the ground it might take a little of the fight out of them. Let's insist that they fight it out without us.

The Dinner Pail

Editor Boston American:

The full dinner pail, according to Senator McCormick, is the issue for the present campaign. Thinking that he might be right, I looked into the pail and found the following:

Lower wages.
Higher prices.
Daugherty injunction.
Four-power pact.
Bonus veto.
Reduction of surtaxes on large incomes.
Iniquitous tariff law.
Delay of important legislation.
Complete golf outfit.

History in Schools

Editor Boston American:

As a former resident of Boston and still a constant reader of the Boston American, let me express endorsement of your articles on the condition of affairs in the Boston public schools, which permits the presence of history books which treat America and Americans unfairly. As the father of seven children who received part of their education in the Boston schools, I had occasion to learn the unfitness and lack of capability of several of the leading school officials who are paid high salaries at the expense of the tax payers. I really believe that most of the head officials of the Boston schools have so little ability and actually know so little that their services are worthless to the city. The superintendent of schools, Mr. Burke, is directly responsible for the conditions in the schools and should be held responsible for books of the wrong kind.

Letting Doctors End Life

By Universal Service.

LONDON, Nov. 6.—The proposal of A. E. Cook, a Labor member of the Bath City Council, that doctors should be allowed to put an end to patients who are suffering from incurable diseases, is dealt with in the article below by the Rev. G. A. Studdert-Kennedy, the "padre," who became so immensely popular during the war. The writer won the M. C. during his war service, and the nickname of "Woodbine Willie" was conferred on him by the "Tommies" in the trenches. He says:

"The modern traffic in wild ideas seems to know no limits; it has even undermined the foundations of St. Paul's, and the dean, in desperation, has taken to eugenics, which is the extremest form of Bolshevism. The Bolshevist stays without scruple the people he does not like. The eugenist would not even allow them to be born.

"And now Mr. A. E. Cook, in the kindness and goodness of his heart, comes along with the proposal to put people in extreme pain out of their misery.

"What the eugenist and the 'Cookist'—to coin another term—do not perceive is that literally the whole fabric of civilization, such as it is, depends upon the doctrine of the sanctity of the individual human life.

"Anything which aims at that aims at the very foundations. Already the power of the doctors, and its corresponding responsibility, is awful to contemplate.

"If they are to be burdened with this extra responsibility, who would be a doctor? And who would want to live with the possibility of such a tyranny and its abuses hanging over their heads like a threat?

"Anyone who has visited the sick and stood by the deathbed of those whose departure from this life is attended with prolonged agony must have enormous sympathy with the spirit of pity, tenderness and humanity which lies behind Mr. Cook's proposal; but often in this life, shrinking from the duty of being cruel that we may be kind, only leads us into the error of being kind to be ultimately cruel.

SEEN AND HEARD

MISS JANET NGUK LENG HO of Foochow, China, who was graduated from Boston University School of Religious Education last June, is putting to a good test her training received in Boston and has assumed the charge of a Chinese parish consisting of thirty villages.

That Somerville folks are not averse to learning is evidenced by the attendance at the Evening High School in that city. Six hundred and twelve students have registered, thereby shattering all former records.

Downtown Boston district, where 776 buildings were destroyed by the great fire that started November 9, 1872, "when no water was to be had on Summer street," is getting to look something like the photographs of fire ruins preserved by the historical societies. This is due to the tremendous amount of building razing done to make way for new construction work, among which an outstanding feature is the new home of PRESIDENT F. S. SNYDER'S organization, the Boston Chamber of Commerce.

LIEUTENANT H. B. NICHOLS, aide to MAJOR-GENERAL C. R. EDWARDS, had a recent experience in the Maine woods. He saw a deer looking at him through the bushes. He had a forty-five-calibre pistol and a Springfield rifle. He dropped the rifle in his excitement and snatched his pistol and went for the deer. The deer dodged him and the bullet struck a tree. The lieutenant is now wondering how he came to miss the deer.

LAURIN A. WOODWARD, although well along in years, still attends to his duties as station agent for the B. & M. at Somerville Junction. MR. WOODWARD has "seen them come and go," having been in his present position since the old "single-track" days.

A minister who believes in saving money for his church is the Rev. JOHN L. WHEELER, pastor of the Central Methodist Episcopal Church of Taunton. MR. WHEELER and some of the leading members of his congregation have started to shingle and paint the new parish house.

DR. WILLIAM A. COGGSHALL, head of the astronomy department of Indiana University, is authority for the statement that a new comet has been discovered in the region of Cygnus. It can be found in the Milky Way, in the midwestern sky, about the middle of the evening. It is not yet visible to the naked eye.

GARRETT P. SERVISS ON ASTRONOMERS' WORK

By Garrett P. Serviss

"Astronomers often give the weight of a certain planet or star, and they even mention that their atmosphere is lighter or denser than ours, and that it is made up of this gas or the other. How do they arrive at these conclusions and be so accurate when they are not even able to determine if life exists there?—M. A., New York."

THE problems are very different. The weight of a planet, or rather the mass, to which weight is proportional, is determined by simple mathematical calculations, based on unquestionable data. The method requires no assumptions, or guesses, but only careful observations to determine sizes, distances, motions, etc.

These basal facts once ascertained, it is only necessary to apply the law of gravitation in order, so to speak, to balance a satellite against its planet.

The determination is much more accurate when the planet has a satellite, and all of the planets have one or more satellites except Venus and Mercury. Suppose take the planet Mars, which has two small satellites. We need consider only one of them, say the outermost. The equation used by the astronomer is as follows: The mass of the planet equals the mass of the sun (which we may call unity, or 1) multiplied by the cube of the satellite's distance from the planet divided by the square of the satellite's time of revolution around the planet, and this result, again multiplied by the square of the time of the planet's revolution around the sun divided by the cube of the planet's distance from the sun.

If you take the respective distances and times from any text-book of astronomy and work out this equation you will get, in round numbers, 1-3,000,000, which shows that Mars weighs about one three-millionth as much as the sun.

In the case of the two planets which are unattended by satellites—Mercury and Venus—this method does not apply, and then it is necessary to estimate the mass by considering the effect of the attraction exerted by the planet under examination upon the earth or some other planet, or upon a comet which happens to pass comparatively near. This is the principle of "perturbations," i. e., of irregularities produced in the motion of a planet, or other heavenly body, revolving around a centre of attraction, by the interfering attraction of a third body.

The application of this principle requires some of the most difficult work done in astronomy. But the fact that it gives reliable results, proved that the observations on which the data are based have been accurately made, indicates the exquisite refinement of the astronomer's methods and operations.

Applied once, in the case of a planet, suspected to exist, although no one with telescopes had been able to find it, this method led directly to the desired discovery. The reference is to the discovery of Neptune through the perturbations that its attraction produced upon Uranus.

The conclusion of astronomers concerning the atmospheres of the planets are based upon visual observations aided by the spectroscope. When a planet has an atmosphere, as all of them do, unless possibly Mercury, should be excepted, its existence can be detected by means of various telescopic appearances.

When we come to the question of the existence of inhabitants on any of the planets beyond the earth we are in a field of almost pure conjecture. Mathematics does not help us here. There are no equations, firmly founded on facts and leading to certain conclusions. We are not even certain from any direct evidence that vegetation, let alone animal life, exists on any body in the solar system except the earth. The probability seems very strong that both kingdoms of life are represented on one or more of the planets, but the proof is not yet forthcoming.

ASTOR SAYS WORLD NEEDS REVIVAL

LONDON, Nov. 6.—World codes must be received in conformity with the teachings of Christ, according to Viscount Astor, if Christianity is not to become a failure.

The world is disturbed by new points of view regarding the position of women, class distinction, the movement against alcoholism, the relations of capital and labor, the brotherhood of man. Hosts of citizens are challenging these new advances, the Viscount said.

America is now in the midst of a great moral struggle that may influence the trend of Christianity, the Viscount said. America gave up initialism but as with many a man who has done likewise, the American people are experiencing a moral struggle as to whether or not they are able to carry out their resolution. The cause of Christianity must be affected one way or another by the result of this struggle.

France is a drawback to the progress of Christianity, the Viscount indicated.

"France," he says, "seems often very materialistic. Women's outlook, which is usually more moral and spiritual than man's, has but little influence on French national policy.

"Parisian life exemplifies too closely the saying: 'Eat, drink and be merry, for tomorrow we die.'

"On the whole French opinion, even in the provinces, considers man to be a sensual animal, and expects the Government to make unchastity as safe for him as possible."

Throughout the world as in France, temperance and chastity are challenged, the Viscount said, but Christianity has not failed.

"What the world needs now is fearless leadership and honest thinking. Democracy and Christianity have not failed where and when they have been properly tried. Christianity has not failed. It cannot have failed, because it has not been really tried, fully applied and understood.

"Democracy is not wrong, because we are not yet able or willing to apply the ideas of the brotherhood of man.

"There are indications of an awakening or resurrection from materialism, selfishness self-indulgence and thoughtlessness, the awakening of our common conscience on the traffic in women and children, on the deception of alcohol, on slums and war.

"All these are hopeful signs that we are striving to arise out of mental satisfaction and out of mere selfish physical enjoyment and are indications of vitality and progress."
